Judge Cancels Cleaver Hearing

FAIRFIELD (AP)—The judge who set Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver free last month has ordered the state Adult Authority to cancel his scheduled parole violation hearing at San Quentin Monday.

Late yesterday Solano County Superior Court Judge Raymond J. Sherwin also ordered the authority to show cause why it should not be restrained indefinitely from holding the hearing, or at least until the state's appeal against his release has been resolved.

Cleaver had been confined at the state Medical Facility at Vacaville following an April 6 shootout with Oaland police. He was charged with parole violation, but when Judge Sherwin ordered his release June 12 he stated no evidence had been presented of parole violation, and that in his opinion Cleaver had been confined for his political opinions and skill in expressing them.

Cleaver was paroled after a 1958 conviction in Los Angeles County for assault with a deadly weapon and with intent to commit murder.

When Judge Sherwin ordered the 32-year-old Panther minister of information released last June 12 and ordered him admissible to $50,025 bail, the state attorney general's office immediately appealed the order.

Earlier this week it became known that the Adult Authority had ordered the hearing for Monday.

Judge Sherwin said: "This business of scheduling a hearing on charges that were the subject of the original habeas corpus petition is a possible violation of the order admitting him to bail, from which there has been no appeal."

He said the California Code "clearly sets forth that prisoners with appeals pending on writs of habeas corpus, as in the case of Cleaver, may be released on bond."

When the new parole hearing for next Monday was announced earlier this week, Adult Authority administrator Joseph Spanglet said it was based on four charges: 1, having a gun in his possession; 2, associating with persons of bad reputation; 3, failing to cooperate with his parole officer, and 4, failing to obey all county, state and federal laws and to conduct himself as a good citizen.

HUBERT B. SCUDDER SUCCUMBS AT 79

Funeral Set Monday For Ex-Congressman, Former Assemblyman For Marin, Sonoma

Funeral for Hubert B. Scudder, who served Marin and six other North Coast counties in Congress for five terms, will be at 11 a.m. Monday at the O'Leary Funeral Home in Sebastopol.

Scudder died Thursday in a Sebastopol hospital. He was 79.

His public service career dates back to 1912, when he was appointed supervisor of water and fire chief in Sebastopol.

Twelve years later, he was elected to the Sebastopol City Council and in 1925 was elected state assemblyman from Marin and Sonoma counties. For a time, he was fire chief and mayor of Sebastopol, as well as a member of the state Legislature.

He served on the agriculture and military and veterans affairs committees in the state Assembly, until retiring from public life in 1940.

His retirement was short-lived, however. In 1940 he was elected secretary of the California Republican Central Committee and three years later, Gov. Earl Warren appointed him real estate commissioner. Before entering public service and during his brief retirement, Scudder was an insurance and real estate salesman.

In 1948, Scudder was elected to succeed Clarence Lea as representative of the First Congressional District and was consistently re-elected until 1958, when he decided not to run again. His immediate successor was a Democrat, the late Clem Miller. The First District is now represented by Republican Don H. Clausen of Crescent City.

During his time as congressman, Scudder supported tariffs and quotas to protect the industries of his district and was instrumental in improving harbor conditions in Marin and other coastal counties.

Scudder was a member of most of Sebastopol's service clubs, veterans groups and Masonic organizations.

Survivors are his wife, Helen, and two sisters, Edith Cruse and Elizabeth Phillips, all of Sebastopol.

Johnson In Latin America

COMBINED AP & UPI

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — President Johnson's bubbletop limousine became the target today of red paint bombs and eggs hurled by youths in an otherwise cheering crowd of tens of thousands, after his arrival in this smallest Central American nation for a summit meeting.

Most of a dozen or so paint bombs missed the car but a few paint spatters hit their mark. An egg splattered against the side window by Johnson's head.

OTHER CARS HIT

But some cars carrying the five Central American presidents with whom Johnson is meeting were hit by the paint bombs as well as eggs.

The paint was described as water based and could be easily washed away.

Because of the bubbletop on his limousine, the President never was in danger of being hit by the missiles.

They were thrown by about 100 youths gathered on a hill overlooking Johnson's motorcade route from San Salvador's airport. They stood under a banner reading "Asesino"—assassin or murderer. Other posters proclaimed Johnson "Vietnam assassin."

TRUCK IS TARGET

A press photographers' truck preceding the President's car was the target of at least two eggs.

But the rest of the crowd cheered the President and waved American flags. Some of the crowd swarmed into the path of the motorcade and two jeeploads of police and motorcyclists had to clear the way.

Johnson started out in the motorcade after saying in an airport statement that he had come to meet with the Central American leaders to find out "What more we can do together."

With all the ceremonial trappings, President Fidel Sanchez Hernandez of El Salvador welcomed Johnson in full military style. A 21-gun

'Trapped' Remark Is Denied By Ray

LONDON (UPI) — Alabama lawyer Arthur J. Hanes met for 70 minutes today with James Earl Ray and said the accused killer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. denied he collapsed when arrested in London, muttering "Oh my God, I feel so trapped."

Hanes said he spoke with Ray at Wandsworth Prison through a glass panel with guards on either side. Ray has been under maximum security guard since his arrest on June 8.

It was their second meeting in two days.

Hanes said Ray restated his objections to testimony at his extradition hearing Tuesday by Scotland Yard Chief Superintendent Thomas Butler. Ray had protested to the Judge over Butler's testimony that he collapsed and said he felt "trapped" when told there was reason to believe he was the man wanted for killing King.

"He categorically denies he behaved in such a manner," Hanes told newsmen.

He quoted Ray as saying, "You might expect a 10-year-old girl to make such a remark, but not a grown man."

Hanes said he called Ray "buddy or pal—any old thing" during their talks. He said he did not address him as Ray or as Ramon George Sneyd, the name under which he was arrested. Hanes has refused to give any indication he takes the authorities' word that his client is in fact James Earl Ray.

The Birmingham lawyer said he and Ray "had a rather lengthy talk—there was a little more relaxed feeling on his part and my part than yesterday."

He said Ray was "quite pleased and satisfied with his treatment" at Wandsworth, where he is being held pending his appeal against the order to send him back to the United States to stand trial in Memphis, Tenn., for the shooting of King last April 4.

Hanes said the guards described Ray as "very cooperative"

Another Heart For Blaiberg?

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Dr. Philip Blaiberg, longest-living heart transplant patient, weakened in his struggle for life today and his psysicians considered giving him yet another heart to try to save him.

Mrs. Christiaan Barnard, pioneer heart transplant surgeon who gave the 59-year-old Blaiberg the heart of a 24-year-old man last Jan. 2, examined Blaiberg at Groote Schuur Hospital and consulted with other physicians.

Blaiberg, who had appeared to be making a remarkable recovery, re-entered the hospital last month suffering from hepatitis, a liver ailment. He developed "lung complications" yesterday and hospital sources said this indicated pneumonia.

Louis Washkansky, the first heart transplant patient, died of pneumonia last December, 18 days after Barnard gave him a new heart.

Powder Puff Derby Off To Late Start

VAN NUYS (UPI) — The 22nd annual Powder Puff Derby got under way today at 7:33 a.m. PDT, 33 minutes late, when the first plane, a Cessna 210, took off on the initial leg of the 2,459-mile course to Savannah, Ga.

Piloting the Cessna 210 was Barbara Willis of Santa Monica with co-pilot Ann Penn of Redondo Beach. They were the first of 140 lady aviators, aboard 76 airplanes, to head from here for Savannah, which they must reach by sunset Tuesday.

Communist Guns Down Two U.S. Fighter-Bombers

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist ground gunners shot down two U.S. fighter-bombers over North Vietnam yesterday, boosting to 863 the number of American planes lost north of the border, U.S. spokesmen said today. (See also story on teen entertainers killed in ambush, page 2.)

The four crewmen of the two Air Force F4 Phantom jets were listed as missing in action in North Vietnam's southern panhandle, where U.S. pilots flew 136 missions Friday below President Johnson's 19th parallel curtailment line.

In two other developments in the northern quarter:

American leathernecks reported killing 78 Communists in a day-long battle near the allied outpost at Gio Linh on the Demilitarized zone. Four Marines were killed and 40 wounded in the all-day fight yesterday, the communique said.

A Marine reconaissance team spotted two guerrilla bands moving across a field near Da Nang and called in artillery fire that killed 27 of them, spokesmen reported.

Aide To Somoza Guilty Of Murder

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 6 (AP) — Oscar Morales, a former national guard commander and long-time aide to President Anastasio Somoza, was found guilty of murder last night in the slaying of a student leader.

The verdict of the military tribunal carries a maximum penalty of 13 years.

According to testimony, the student leader, David Tejada Peralta, was beaten to death and his body thrown into the crater of a semiactive volcano on the outskirts of Managua. The body was never recovered.

Clay Asks Supreme Court To Overturn Draft Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former world heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay asked the U.S. Supreme Court today to overturn his conviction and $10,000 fine and five-year jail sentence for refusing to be drafted into the armed services.

The appeal was filed on the last day permitted since his June 20, 1967, conviction in Houston federal court was upheld last May by the Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Clay, who prefers his Black Muslim name, Muhammad Ali, is free on $5,000 bond.

Clay seeks either a ministerial exemption or status as a conscientious objector on the basis of his beliefs as a member of the Muslim faith.

In a 75-page brief filed with the court his attorneys argued that Clay's ordered induction violates his constitutional rights.

They asked the court to find "the systematic exclusion of Negroes" from Clay's local and appellate draft boards invalidated the draft order and requires reversal of his conviction.

"This case should be viewed in the context of our history—a history of racial segregation in the armed forces," said Clay's lawyers. "The lily-white Selective Service System is but an unconstitutional and statutorily prohibited remnant of our racially discriminatory past."

The attorneys said no Negroes served on either the Kentucky or Texas local draft boards or appeals boards that handled Clay's case.

They also said large numbers of letters and newspaper clippings attacking Clay were in-

Rockefeller Sees An Open Convention

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says there are enough uncommitted delegates to assure an "open convention" when the Republican Party meets in Miami Beach next month to pick a presidential candidate.

"Today there are over 200 uncommitted delegates," he said yesterday as he met with reporters while vacationing in Hawaii.

These fence-sitters "are shifting all over the country," the New York governor said.

TO SUPPORT WINNERS

Rockefeller said that if he loses the fight for the nomination he will support the winner, whether it be Richard M. Nixon or any other Republican.

In the meantime, he said, he is unfazed by charges that he is sowing disunity in the party.

"I'm simply repeating what he said in writing and speeches and pointing out where I differ with him," he said of Nixon. "I am trying to offer a choice to the Republican Party—and to have a choice there has got to be differences."

Rockefeller conferred briefly with Hawaii's GOP convention delegates, but the other major presidential contenders treated yesterday as a day of abstention from speechmaking and public political muscle-flexing.

They unwound in places and ways of their own choosing—Nixon in Miami, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy in Washington and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, McCarthy's rival for the Democratic nomination, in Minnesota.

RARE CEASE-FIRE

It was a rare cease-fire, perhaps the last until November. Nixon said Friday night as he attended a quiet 20th birthday dinner for daughter Julie that this weekend would be the last plateau and that from now on he will be working nonstop.

Humphrey relaxed at his lakeside home in Waverly, Minn., but planned to mount the stump again tonight in Poplar Bluff, Mo., for a Truman Day rally.

George Wallace, American Independent Party candidate, was also booked for a speech tonight in Dayton, Ohio.

Humphrey wrote Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., chairman of the platform committee for the Democratic national convention, urging that hearings be held throughout the nation so that all segments of opinion in the party can be sampled before the platform is drafted.

"If we are to make clear that our party is fully aware of the currents of change which are running swiftly in America and the world, and that it is truly responsible to the needs and problems of the future," he said, "I believe every Democrat must have a full vote in the shaping of our 1968 platform."

Teen Entertainers Killed In Ambush

SAIGON (UPI) — Automatic weapons fire from ambush cut down four young American entertainers and their Army escort on a lonely highway near Saigon last night. Two of the teen-aged performers were killed and the other three persons in the party were injured.

The entertainers were members of the "Bandi Perry and the Bubble Machine" music group from Los Angeles. They had come to South Vietnam a month ago to entertain American troops. The names of the dead were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The injured entertainers were identified as Paula Levine, 20 a vocalist, and Jack Bone, 18, a bass player. The military withheld identification of a wounded U.S. Army sergeant who accompanied them.

It was not immediately clear who was responsible for the attack. A spokesman for the group said the ambush occurred only 100 yards from a South Vietnamese troop compound. He said one of the four men who took part in the attack fired an American M16 rifle.

One of the survivors said the attackers wore civilian clothing. He said he was under the impression they were Viet Cong.

The ambush occurred on Highway 15 about 18 miles east of Saigon. The party was traveling to the town of Vung Tau for an evening performance. Miss Levine said they had planned to leave in the morning but delayed their start because their pickup truck broke down.

Twice en route the vehicle passed through roadblock check points. But at a third roadblock, South Vietnamese militiamen advised the group to turn back because it was after dark.

They had returned about three miles, Bone said, when a burst of automatic weapons fire tore into the vehicle. One of the musicians was hit in the elbow by a bullet, and the truck rolled into a ditch.

"We stopped to see if it was our side by mistake," one survivor said. The girl stayed in the truck as the four men got out, "put our arms up and said we are Americans."

Four Viet Cong dressed in civilian clothes "took our ID cards, wallets and a couple of suitcases" containing musical instruments and left. The Americans couldn't get their truck out of a ditch.

In 30 minutes, the four men returned and opened fire, killing two young men and wounding the two others.

Flag Bill Signed By President

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Johnson has signed a bill making it a federal offense for demonstrators to burn or desecrate the American flag.

The President acted yesterday more than a year after a series of incidents which saw Vietnam war protestors burn, spit upon and trample the flag.

An angry House passed the bill in a tide of patriotic debate and the Senate finally approved it last month.

The bill states: "Whoever knowingly casts contempt upon any flag of the United States by publicly mutilating, defacing, defiling, burning or trampling upon it shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both."

The measure also covers a picture or representation of a flag. In addition, it specifically declares that similar laws of the 50 states and many communities remain in force, so that authorities may decide whether to prosecute an offender at the federal, state or local level.

Opponents of the bill, including the American Civil Liberties Union, charged that it violated the constitutional right of free speech by curtailing expression of opinion.

The measure does not prohibit speech or protest, does not cover "accidental or inadvertent" desecration, and does not prevent burning old and worn flags to dispose of them.

The Justice Department was initially cool toward the bill, suggesting the problem would be better dealt with under state or local laws. But it promised to enforce the legislation if enacted.

Stanford Fire Repair May Be $300,000

STANFORD (AP) — It may take $300,000 to repair damage caused by arsonists who broke into the office of Stanford University President Wallace Sterling, university officials estimate.

The figure does not include the value of personal belongings and memorabilia destroyed, Alf E. Brandin, university vice president in charge of business, said yesterday.

Firemen said the blaze, reported at 5 a.m., probably started in the retiring president's office, and spread to several other offices.

There was a strong smell of gasoline and the "evidence clearly pointed to arson," said Bruce Wiggins, Santa Clara County fire marshal.

University spokesmen declined to blame any individual or group, but there was a clue that indicated antagonism toward the Stanford Research Institute.

A green book bag, filled with SRI records stolen from a filing cabinet, apparently was dropped outside the building.

The SRI, of which Sterling is an ex-officio director, performs much defense work and has come under attack by antiwar groups.

Strike Slowing BART Tunnels

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Closures of Bay Area Rapid Transit System tunneling projects are spreading because of a strike against Kaiser Steel's fabricating plant in Napa.

Work on a tube under Broadway in Oakland was suspended yesterday after the crew ran out of lining segments manufactured exclusively for BART at Napa.

Closed Wednesday was one of BART's two tunneling projects on Mission Street in San Francisco, after the supply of concave segments was exhausted.

In Napa, seven other unions were honoring picket lines set up by Local 317 of the Laborers Union. The dispute has idled 1,400 employes.

The main issue in the dispute is working conditions.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Hall May Be Red Candidate

NEW YORK (AP) — Gus Hall, general secretary of the American Communist party, is expected to become the party's first presidential candidate in 28 years.

Hall

A highly placed source said yesterday that Hall's nomination would come tomorrow at the close of the party's 19th convention. Hall, 57, has said he will accept nomination if it is offered.

Earl Browder, in 1940, was the last American Communist candidate for president. He got less than 40,000 votes against President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The convention, which began Thursday, is being attended by about 300 delegates and has been closed to the press and public.

G.M. Rejected

NEW YORK (AP) — A State Supreme Court has rejected the main legal arguments advanced by the General Motors Corp. in seeking dismissal of a $26-million invasion of privacy suit brought against it by Ralph Nader.

Nader, a 34-year-old Washington lawyer who has crusaded for automobile safety and consumer protection, alleged in his suit that G.M. waged a concerted campaign to discredit his attacks on auto safety.

Justice Joseph A. Brust said yesterday in a five-page ruling that the corporation had, in part, acknowledged many of the allegations "for the purposes of this motion."

Cardinal Dies

TOLEDO, Spain (UPI) — Cardinal Enrique Pla y Daniel, Spain's highest Roman Catholic leader, died last night of an embolism after an illness of several days. He was 91.

Song Writer Dies

LEONIA, N.J. (AP) — Song writer and vaudeville performer Ben Ryan, who wrote "Inka Dinka Doo" for Jimmy Durante, died yesterday at his home here after a long illness. He was 77.

He also wrote scripts for George White's "Scandals," material for comedians Jack Benny, Groucho Marx and Fred Allen, and acts for burlesque shows.

Crash Kills Four

GENEVA (UPI) — Four persons were killed and ten and one-half tons of medicine destroyed when an International Red Cross plane crashed in Biafra early this week, it was reported today.

Gregory In Hospital

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — Entertainer Dick Gregory began the second month of a fast in Tacoma General Hospital today about 50 pounds lighter than he was at the start of a 90-day jail sentence for illegal fishing.

Gregory, who vows he will take nothing but distilled water while conscious, was hospitalized yesterday after his physician, Dr. Daniel Thomas of Tacoma, reported the comedian might be coming down with pneumonia.

Earth Trembles

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — Seismographic instruments yesterday continued to record aftershocks of two earthquakes that jolted Santa Barbara and Ventura counties Thursday.

There have been more than 40 aftershocks.

Nasser's View

MOSCOW (AP) — Egyptian President Gamel Abdel Nasser, conferring with top Kremlin leaders today, has branded last year's United Nations Middle East resolution "insufficient and unclear."

The resolution, which authorized U.N. troubleshooter Gunnar V. Jarring's peacekeeping efforts in the Middle East, called for Israeli withdrawal from territories occupied in the June 1967 six-day war and renunciation of the Arab nations' state of belligerency with the Jewish state.

Peace Pary Files $1.2 Million Suit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Damages of $1.2 million are sought in a suit filed against the city of San Francisco by 11 Peace and Freedom Party candidates.

The suit, filed yesterday, contends voters were told write-in votes would not be counted in the June 4 primary.

The plaintiffs claim Basil Healey, registrar of voters, and four other city employes tried to "preclude individuals registered with the Peace and Freedom Party from voting for individuals attempting to run for office as candidates of the Peace and Freedom Party."

Police March With Guns To Restore Paterson Order

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — Police with shotguns marching 10 abreat broke up a crowd at the scene of a fire without incident and calm returned today to the city's Puerto Rican areas hit by four consecutive nights of disorder.

Officers said there were no arrests at the fire scene but reported that nearly 30 persons had been arrested—mostly on minor charges—in other incidents Friday night and early today.

Minor incidents of window smashing occured until shortly before midnight when a fire broke out in a hardware store on Main Street, the heart of the area which has been the focal point of disorders.

As helmeted police converged on the fire scene they were jeered and cursed.

They ordered all persons off the sidewalks and porches in an eight block area near the fire and dispersed the crowd without arrests.

The streets were littered with garbage cans and other items hurled by residents. Several cars occupied by newsmen were pelted with rocks.

salute boomed as Johnson strode down the ramp of the presidential jet. Mrs. Johnson and their daughter Luci Nugent accompanied him.

Five Central American presidents greeted Johnson. All six men stood at attention for the playing of the six national anthems and all six trooped the honor guard line.

Johnson spoke, praising the Latin Americans for their efforts to achieve economic union and to ask more in terms of social progress.

"I come to San Salvador to learn," he said in prepared remarks. "I come to find out from my fellow presidents what our nations have achieved toward improving the lives of the people. I come to ask what more can we do together.

"I know that in a few short years you have virtually completed the framework of a common market," Johnson said. "More than that, you have moved beyond the purely economic aspecs of integration to produce important social advances."

Johnson noted that the United States contributed $200 million to the Central Bank for Economic Integration and in the fields of health and education. He flew in on the final day of the Central American Common Market conclave and arranged to attend the final session to sign documents assuring more U.S. financial backing.

"But nothing would have been possible without the leadership and determination of the Central Americans themselves," he said. "And it must always be so. The unity we seek is above all else a state of mind.

"If we all believe societies can and must change, they will. If we all believe that men can and must cooperate with each other to insure peace and progress, they will. If we all believe that poverty and misery, disease and injustice, can and must be eliminated, they will.

"I come to San Salvador knowing this," Johnson said. "But I come to learn how we can hasten the day of progress."

Fog Hampers Fighting Of Gate Fire

Dense fog and steep terrain kept firefighters from Marin County and the Presidio of San Francisco busy for nearly four hours yesterday before they controlled a 100-acre fire beneath the northern end of the Golden Gate Bridge.

Four county fire engines and eight men responded to assist some 200 Presidio firefighters at 3:45 p.m., as the blaze began to threaten radar sites on the Fort Barry-Fort Baker military reservation.

Presidio officials said the fire broke out about 3:20 p.m. near Kirby Beach on state property almost directly beneath the Golden Gate and quickly moved up the hill into Fort Barry.

Two planes called to drop somthering chemicals on the fire had to turn back because of the thick fog.

Firemen finally brought the blaze under control shortly before 7 p.m. County firemen said the cause is under investigation.

Newspaper Survey Refutes Claim Good Teen Projects Not Printed

DEAR HELEN:

It's no wonder so many teenagers give up trying when all the good things they do go unnoticed, but the bad things are shouted from the front page. Newspapers glory in running stories on drugs and orgies and riots, all playing up the youth angle. But our Youth Conferences, Teen Juries, school achievements are hidden in the ads, if printed at all.

You probably won't print this as it's against your profession. But it's true. — GARY

DEAR GARY:

Not true. And I can prove it. So can you, if you'll take time to count inches in your local newspaper. Over an extended period you'll find the ratio of good to bad teen news runs five or six to one, in favor of the good, and this includes favorable placement as well as space. Trouble is, no matter where it's put or how much coverage it has, a story about a Young People's Conference or school cleanup day or whatever, simply doesn't have the drawing power of a small item on teen crime. You're blaming the paper, when you should be aiming at the readers — and never forget, chum, you're one of them.

Several representative newspapers, among them the Grants Pass Daily Courier (Oregon), and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram (Texas) have made week-long surveys on this subject. Here's an excerpt from the Star-Telegram's findings:

"It is sometimes difficult to make a jugement as to whether news is 'good' or 'bad.' For instance the longest story run during our survey period, that we classified as 'bad' . . . concerned a demonstration at the University of Texas. Many people believe a demonstration for peace is 'good.'

"Basing our arbitrary decisions on stories about 'good' young people versus stories about 'bad' young people, the survey showed that we ran (on the 'good' side) 246 inches in the news section and 230 inches in the sports section. This totals 476 inches. In addition, we ran 17 pictures in the 'good' category, which measured approximately 165 inches. This totals 631 inches devoted to news about 'good' young people — in one week.

During the same period we ran 113 inches of news about young people engaged in things we felt the people generally would consider 'bad.' There were no pictures. In the 'bad' category, 12 stories ran in the first section of the paper, only one of them on Page 1. There were 24 stories in the 'good' category in the first section, one on Page 1.

"The survey was made because this charge is so often lodged against . . . newspapers."

Underlining Of Suits Depends On Fabric Weight And Pattern Style

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

Is it necessary to line and underline a summer cotton suit? I have been doing this to my suits since I have been reading your column and love the results. Yet for summer, I don't want a suit that is too hot for comfort. Please help us. — MRS. C. B.

DEAR MRS. C. B.:

Once again may I repeat, it all depends on the weight of the fabric and the style of the garment. If you use a cotton tapestry, seersucker or linen, in other words, fabric that has a great deal of firmness and body, it will not be necessary to underline the garment fabric.

As to lining, this is optional. If you do line a summer suit, use a lawn, voile, printed or solid color, or one of the batiste cotton prints. If the garment is going to be washed, be sure to check that all fabrics and interfacings have been preshrunk. It is usually best to use interfacing for the front sections as well as the collar to retain shape.

If you aren't lining your suit, you should finish the seams. You may turn under the edge of the seam and machine stitch them close to the fold, or bind them in a cotton bias binding. Armholes are best if trimmed fairly close and then bound.

MANY MOTHERS who are sewing fall slacks for their daughters entering college have written to me asking how to fit slacks. The general problem seems to be with the slacks bagging in the seat. I'm not supposed to repeat directions but since this is so important to good fitting slacks, I'll give you the directions again. Be sure to clip these instructions and keep them in your sewing file.

If slacks are baggy in the seat, it is caused by too much length in the crotch seam. The ready-made slacks usually have a very short crotch and are much more comfortable and becoming.

If you are uncertain about the length of the crotch, it would be a good idea to build up the crotch seam 1 inch both front and back. If it is too short, you can always make it longer again. Also, remember to machine stitch the front and back in-seam of the legs first, then make a continuous seam from the waistline at the center front to the center back of the waistline.

MRS. L. G. SAYS:

"In the summer your nerves can be worn to a frazzle by having to replace a constant barrage of zippers in shorts, slacks and skirts. This is because children simply won't take the time to put their clothes on and take them off with care. Sew a double fold of fabric, or a double strip of hem tape across the lower end of the zipper (wrong side) just about 1 inch above the end of the slide. The zipper won't slip down farther than the tab, and it prevents stretching and tearing at the end!"

DEAR EUNICE:

Is it possible to make our own swimming suits? So many of the suits today are made of cotton anyway. Please give us some hints. A group of my friends want to make them because our parents won't give us so much money for the few inches of material you get in a ready-made suit. — MISS P. K.

DEAR MISS P. K.:

Yes, I say this every year. I'm sure you can make your own bathing suits. I have seen some darling ones with the matching jackets made by high school girls. In fact, you can copy some of them for less than $5, where the ready-made ones would cost over $30 for the ensemble.

Usually the fabric is used double, especially for the bra part. It often works out well to actually sew the front part of an old bra right into your suit. It will become easier to get a good fit. Remember to finish all the seams well. Usually this is done in a French seam that won't come apart easily.

Instead of making the jersey pants the patterns suggest ,just tack a pair of cotton panties in your suit that you can buy. Depending on how brief the suit is, you may want to reinforce the jersey panties in the back and undersection.

Use a heavy-duty zipper for the closing. There is usually so much strain and pull on a zipper. Also, be sure to use an extension under the zipper and apply the large grippers to this extension. You can find these used on your ready-made swim suits. When you close the grippers first, there is less strain on the zipper.

Necklets And Bracelets Are New Accessories For Males

By MARIS ROSS

LONDON (UPI)—A year or so ago London's fashion conscious young men began wearing beads and bells and now they're the "Mod" thing for males in the United States and elsewhere.

So pretty soon it is likely American men will be wearing necklaces and bracelets, too, not to mention brooches. Because they're "in" with the boys in London this season.

The necklaces—called "necklets" in the male versions—and brooches are designed to relieve the stark fronts of polo-necked shirts and turtleneck sweaters. They serve in place of a tie.

Right now just about anything goes in male jewelry on the London scene.

ROLLING STONES' guitarist Keith Richard, 23, wears an ornate silver necklace from South America. Sir Mark Palmer, 26, whose shoulder-length locks make him the longest haired baronet in England, likes to hang around his left wrist a bracelet bearing many tiny bells.

Garrad's, jewelers to Queen Elizabeth II, have on sale some classy gold necklets for men that might well make ladies drool.

The more simple gold ones start at 80 pounds ($192). Add a diamond pendant and the price goes up to 150 pounds ($360).

"And if someone comes along wanting something encrusted with rubies and emeralds, it becomes fairly expensive," said a Garrard's spokesman.

"I think men like the necklets very much. Obviously there was a need to put some decoration on the polo neck shirts without having any tie.

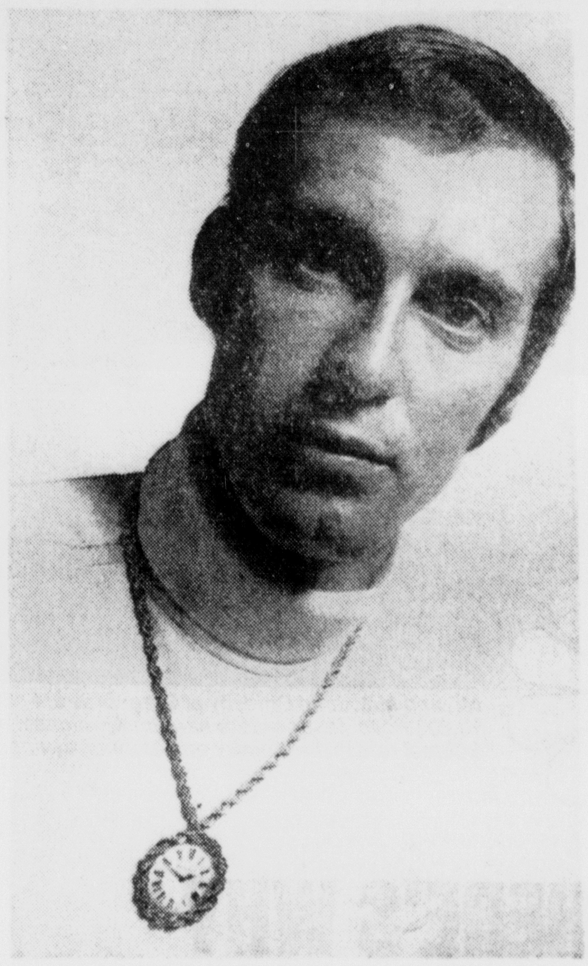
"THE FASHION goes back to the old, almost medieval times when men had badges of rank which they wore as official seals."

The spokesman said, "Men have become much less inhibited in the last two or three years generally in their approach to the jewelry they wear."

The Jewelry Information Center has gone so far as to issue a guide on what men should wear to complement the color of their suit:

"With blue wear sapphires or lapis; with green-tourmaline, green emeralds, chatham emeralds or doptase; with maroon— ruby crystals, cut garnets or rose quartz; with gray— haematite or amethyst; with brown—agate or smoky quartz crystal."

So now you know.



WATCH DESIGNER Richard Loftus decided to tune in on the current fashion of pendants, beads and bells for young men and he marketed this style of watch pendant. The past 18 months the young Britisher has sold a million in Britain and the United States. (UPI Telephoto)

TO PUBLISH ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING STORIES IN THE I-J

Forms for engagement and wedding story information to be printed in the Independent-Journal are available from the I-J offices in San Rafael, Novato, Mill Valley, Tiburon and Corte Madera.

Wedding forms should be returned promptly to the I-J office in your area and information will be printed immediately after the wedding. Photographers should be urged to submit a print of the wedding picture promptly. Color photographs cannot be used.

The Independent-Journal does not print wedding stories more than seven days after the wedding.

An engagement form may be accompanied by a professional black and white photograph, which may be picked up at the I-J office after publication. Snapshots, polaroid or color pictures are not suitable.

First Aid Aid

A box of baking soda is a good emergency first aid item to include in picnic gear. Soda mixed with water into a paste soothes the itch from bramble scratches, chiggers and insect bites and the pain of sunburn. Dumped dry on an overactive fire, soda slows the blaze; added with water to empty vacuum thermos jugs, it prevents milk or fruit juice pulp from sticking, and makes them easier to clean when you reach home. And of course, bicarb provides an antidote for picnickers who overindulge.

Coming Nuptial Cause For Sausalito Shower

By MOLLY MARIN

MRS. FRANK B. Williams of Sausalito honored her goddaughter, Pamela Nelson of Mill Valley, at a shower. Pamela will be married to Gary Rittenhouse on Aug. 10.

Attending the shower were the bride elect's mother, Mrs. Thomas C. Nelson Jr., and Mesdames Fred H. Ferber, Francis Seitz, James Phelps, Donald Burbeck, John Nahapiet, Walter Nelson, Roy Ibach and T. J. DeLasaux.

MR. AND MRS. Robert K. Birkie of San Rafael are parents of a baby boy, Drake Gardiner, born July 1 at Samuel Merritt Hospital in Oakland.

The baby has a sister, Brooke Karla, 6, and a brother, Wolfe Fenton, 4 years old. His father is with the district attorney's office in San Rafael, and his mother is an assistant professor at San Francisco State College. Maternal grandparents are Judge and Mrs. Samuel W. Gardiner of San Rafael.

DOWN IN the Monterey Bay area for the Fourth of July weekend are the E. H. Messerschmidts of San Rafael and the Ralph Noahs of Belvedere. The Noahs are houseguests of the Samuel L. Wrights Jr., who formerly lived in Marin.

THE PAUL SATUR family of Sausalito is doing a lot of traveling this summer. On June 23 Mr. Satur, accompanied by daughter Michelle, flew a Beach Bonanza plane from Petaluma to Houtzdale, Pa., to visit relatives. They had an exciting trip and write that they could probably have driven faster because of storms they encountered. They are expected home Sunday.

Mrs. Satur and her son Wesley will leave soon to drive to Calgary, Canada, where Mrs. Satur, as member of Toastmistress Club 651, will attend the first International Toastmistress Convention to be held outside the United States July 14 through 17.

She will take with her a basket full of mussel shells she has collected on Sausalito beaches and painted with the words "greetings from Marin County." She plans to give them as souvenirs to other delegates.

On their way home Mrs. Satur and Wesley will pick up the Saturs' second daughter, Elaine, who has been spending the early part of the summer in Forest City, Iowa.

Steve McQueen Does His Thing At San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Steve McQueen ambled through the crowded airport terminal with a distant half-smile frozen below his ice-blue eyes.

Cigarette dangling from his lips, turned-up collar covering his turtleneck sweater, he was Lt. Frank Bullitt, the coolest detective since the invention of the refrigerator.

"Man," said McQueen, flopping into a chair during a break in filming, "I'm getting an education. I never liked cops before in my whole life."

ADMIRERS WATCH

Nearby, beyond a dozen temporarily dulled camera lights, a band of young admirers craned their necks to catch a glimpse of McQueen, who 15 years ago was earning $40 a week for his one-line part in a Yiddish play on New York's Second Avenue.

"They say I'm a tough guy," said the 165-pound actor. "I'm not. I'm just doing my own thing. I'm not fighting the establishment. I just want to do what I want — without hurting anyone along the way.

"It used to be if you were one of the oblique people — you know, Negro, Jew, long-haired, someone different — you couldn't even get a job. No more, though. If you can cut the mustard, you can get there today."

McQueen, needless to say, cuts the mustard. He makes about $1 million a film, shuns chances to add off-stage window dressing to his on-stage image, and lives quietly with his wife, actress-singer-dancer Neile Adams, and two children in Beverly Hills.

Except for occasional appearances at a discotheque with his wife, McQueen avoids public exposure. His best friends include a fireman, a philosopher, "a couple of crooks — just people who know more than me."

An expert motorcyclist, he owns a fleet of bikes but no longer races professionally because he wants "to relax a bit and watch the kids grow fat in the orchard."

WAS A DRIFTER

It's an orchard that bore no fruit when McQueen was a child. Raised by his grandparents in Slater, Mo., he spent two years as a teen-ager in a Chino (San Bernardino County), home for wayward boys, then drifted through half a dozen states and Canada as a carnival huckster, ball-point pen salesman, television repairman, taxi mechanic and tree-topper.

Now entrenched in the film industry's loftiest echelon, McQueen admits he had reservations about playing a policeman in "Bullitt," a $5 million movie his Solar Productions is filming for Warner Bros.-Seven Arts.

"But I've learned what cops have to go through," he said, "that they deserve a fairer shake. Also that they shouldn't consider everyone with long hair their enemies. Just because you're different doesn't make you an enemy."

Varda's Symbol Chosen For Art Festival Mark

A special Phoenix symbol, designed by Sausalito artist Jean Varda, has been chosen as the signifying mark for that city's annual art festival over Labor Day weekend.

The Sausalito artist is in charge of the overall design for the event, Aug. 31 through 2.

Registration forms for entrants will be available after Aug. 2 until Aug. 15 at Creative Arts, 22 El Portal, Sausalito. Merchants have contributed the 10 prizes of $200 each which will be given in the main categories of painting, photography, sculpture and crafts.

The festival will also include poetry readings, jazz and rock bands, plus drama productions. All proceeds will go toward the creation of a Sausalito art center.

Women Voters Urge Work Funds

The League of Women Voters of Southern Marin has urged its congressmen to give priority to federal programs in education, job training and employment opportunity, water quality and international development in the fiscal 1969 budget.

In letters to Sens. Thomas H. Kuchel and George Murphy and to Rep. William S. Mailliard, Mrs. Edward J. Boessenecker, president, stated the league's awareness of pressure for reduction in federal spending but pointed out that the domestic and international programs the league supports are vital to the welfare of the country and the world.

"We in Southern Marin have begun to see gratifying results from a Head Start program and a continuation school for teenage mothers," she wrote.

"There are promising beginnings in youth and manpower training programs. It would indeed be discouraging to see the progress made so far wasted by a cutoff or curtailment of funds."

Hemingway Bust

PAMPLONA, Spain (UPI)— Mary Hemingway came to Pamplona yesterday for ceremonies today in which she will unveil a bust of her late husband, novelist Ernest Hemingway. The bust is on a street to be named after Hemingway, who popularized Pamplona's annual Festival of San Fermin and the running of the bulls in "The Sun Also Rises."

NOT SO BAD IN MARIN

'Resurrection City' Visit Detailed

Poverty in Marin County seems less grim to six young Southern Marin Negroes after a recent trip to "Resurrection City" in Washington, D. C.

"Everyone came away realizing they didn't have it so bad; that they have it a lot better here than those from the South do," Charles Richardson, organizer of the Washington trip, said.

Richardson said the group was not only shocked by the level of poverty but by the seeming acceptance of that poverty by the southern Negro in "Resurrection City." "They realized just what the southern Negro's life has been like these past years," he said.

Joining Richardson on the week-long trip were Fay Crutchfield, Bob Washington and Larry Adams, all San Francisco State College freshmen from Marin City; Gwen Jackson, a Tamalpais High School student from Mill Valley, and Helen Jackson and Delores Talley, both of Mill Valley, and both employed at the Sausalito Teacher Education Project (STEP) in the Sausalito School District. Richardson, 33, is a media specialist with STEP.

Funds for the trip were donated by St. Andrew Presbyterian Church in Marin City, the Mill Valley Community Relations Committee and a student organization at the College of Marin.

The young people came home determined to play a more active role in the civil rights movement, Richardson said. Their feelings were summarized in a statement written by Miss Crutchfield as the group left Washington. She said:

. . . "I am first very sorry I didn't take it upon myself to play a more active role in . . . 'Resurrection City.' . . . The people in the city are poor, as I am, but they are fighting poverty as I should be doing."

"These young people will become more active in civil rights now that they've been to Washington," Richardson said. "I can't see any reason why Marin County with its wealth of bright people shouldn't take the leadership role in the struggle against poverty."

Conditions in Resurrection City were "pretty bad" when the group arrived, Richardson said. "The city was flooded with mud and debris up to your knees, and it smelled."

Also, he said, the poor people had no real direction. "They were drifting. This is why the political pressure wasn't effective."

The poor people's campaign was missing the leadership, "The spirit, the magic of Dr. Martin Luther King," Richardson said. "They needed a hero."

Campaign leaders were "too bogged down in trying to run a city" to give political leadership, according to Richardson.

After three days in Washington, the group took a side trip to Philadelphia where they toured the historic sites of Revolutionary Days.

"That was just great. The tour leader at Independence Hall talked about 1776, comparing it with 1968 and the Negro's struggle." Having history tied into today had a "dynamic effect" on the group, Richardson said.

He said he thought the Marin visitors came away from Philadelphia with a "real feeling" for the country and its history. "Before it meant nothing to them."

But, he said, the most important thing about the trip was that "everyone now wants to be involved in what's happening."

The Changing Scene Of A Busy Growing City

The widening of Highway 101 from the San Rafael overpass (center, foreground) north toward Novato may not alter the view of San Rafael from an altitude of several thousand feet, but it will make a great difference to the traffic flow which the growth of Terra Linda and the rest of North Marin has congested in recent years. Such growing pains were only to be expected, for as a recent census revealed, San Rafael has grown 80 per cent in population since 1960, roughly from 20,000 to 36,000. Some of the new industry and new post office supporting this population are located around Bellam Boulevard (right, center) at the fork of Highway 101 and Highway 17 across the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge. Few institutions are more sensitive to the demands and rigors of growth than San Rafael High School, whose oval football field is in the middle of this picture just to the left of the San Rafael Canal. I-J Newspaperboys learn the route to success

The I-J's on the way—and so is he!

Perhaps it's the daily habit of delivering the news right to your home that gives I-J carriers, like him, a sense of direction in life.

Maybe it's the feeling of managing a route, where each boy is his own boss. Or the idea of collecting and banking money each month. Or maybe the channeling of energy into responsible effort . . . serving others.

It could be the solid training, too, which these boys receive from our experienced circulation advisors.

But one thing's certain: these boys develop AIMS and GOALS often a lot larger than the boys themselves. The aim to serve . . . the goal of a college education, for instance . . . with savings to attain it. They discover that delivering the paper on time, in place, can lead to the larger ends of independence and initiative.

A pretty good aim, don't you think? THERE'S A REAL FUTURE IN IT!

Today is Saturday, July 6, the 188th day of 1968 with 178 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Saturn and Mercury. The evening star is Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1699 the notorious pirate Capt. William Kidd was seized in Boston and deported to England.

In 1885 bacteriologist Louis Pasteur inoculated the first human being—a boy who had been bitten by an infected dog—and the youngster did not develop any rabies infection.

In 1933 the American League defeated the National League 4-2 in the first all-star baseball game. It was played at Chicago.

In 1959 Russia orbited two dogs and a rabbit in a space capsule.

A thought for the day: Greek historian, Herodotus said, "Envy is natural to man from the beginning."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Let's Face It, An Extra Entry To Dummy Improves the Chances

The advantage of having high cards in the dummy as well as in your hand is that you can lead from dummy for finesses instead of having to lead only from your own hand. The principle is illustrated in today's hand.

WRONG PLACE

South was delighted with his 22 points, but he'd have been much better off with the ace of clubs in the dummy and the deuce of clubs in his own hand.

The actual hand South's contract depended on the location of the jack of hearts. South won the first trick in dummy with the ace of spades and returned a heart to try a finesse with the ten.

When this finesse worked, South was home. If West had held the jack of hearts South would have been down at least one.

DIFFERENT LINE

A different line of play might give South a better chance. Declarer should win the first spade in his own hand and cash the four clubs at once, forcing the opponents to find three discards with very little to guide them. Then South can lead the queen of hearts to drive out the ace.

The game may still depend on a heart finesse, but South may improve his chances by encouraging an opponent to unguard the jack of hearts.

THE CHANCES

If dummy had the ace of clubs, South could take the first trick in dummy to lead a heart to his queen. If that won, he could get back to dummy with the ace of clubs to lead another heart. This would enable him to make the game if East held either the ace or the jack of hearts. Two chances are better than one.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 2 no trump (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ Q J 10 9 7
♥ A 7 4
♦ K 9 8 3

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three spades.

If partner raises to four spades you can try for a slam by a bid of 4 no trump. If partner bids 3 no trump over three spades you should next bid four diamonds. You plan to try for slam in spades, diamonds or no trump.

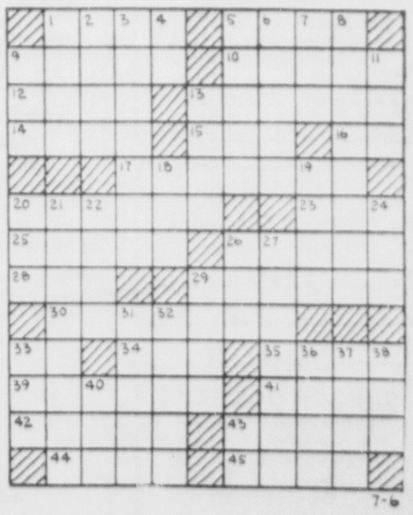
Yesterday's Answer



And How's That Again, Madam?

LONDON (UPI)—The Daily Telegraph reported this conversation between a Berkshire policeman and a woman driver he finally caught up with after she had driven the wrong way on a one-way street.

"Didn't you hear me calling to you, madam?"

"I'd no idea it was you, officer. I thought it was someone I'd banged into."

ON THE LOOKOUT—Nuns of St. Joseph's Home for the Aged in the British Crown Colony of Hong Kong stand guard duty at the home, which has been plagued by thefts in recent months, including the disappearance of 68 drums of cooking oil. (UPI Telephoto)

TO NAB A THIEF

The Good Sisters On The Watchout

HONG KONG (UPI)—If they catch a thief, the nuns at St. Joseph's Home for the Aged hope he runs away.

But if he does not run? "My goodness, I don't know what we would do," one of the Catholic sisters said. "I suppose we would all come outside and gather around and hope nothing serious happened."

The 18 nuns of the Little Sisters of the Poor mount their own guard around the home for old people.

The sisters are on the lookout "for the persons who stole our oil."

Sister Catherine, the American supervisor at the home since she came out from Boston in 1959, thinks they may return.

Thieves entered the walled grounds of the home twice in the past six months. They broke into the kitchen storeroom and escaped with 68 drums of cooking oil donated by Catholic charities in the United States.

After the last theft on May 20, Sister Catherine mounted the guard.

"We'd probably run faster than them if we saw someone," Sister Catherine said. "But at least they know by now that someone is up and around all the time."

All the sisters (except two who are 85 and 96 years old) alternate on two-hour watches nightly on the tree-shaded grounds of the home, where 400 elderly and poor people live.

"The sisters are happy to do it," Sister Catherine said. "If they are nervous about it, they haven't said so. Of course, if we see someone, it might be a different story."

The sisters on duty patrol the paths of the grounds in their snowy white habits in easy sight of anyone snooping about the premises. They carry no arms. "We wouldn't know what to do with them." Sister Catherine said.

She said they use the nightly patrols "to do a lot of praying."

She described an earlier visit from the thieves. "They stabbed our poor watch dog in the face and put a flour sack over his head," she said.

"And they were most brazen. The last time they came, they loaded the oil into our vehicle and drove it out the front gate. The lady watchman at the gate let them through because she thought they were with the home."

Police recovered the vehicle. Philanthropists in this British crown colony donated cash to replace the stolen oil.

"That's probably one reason why they steal from us," Sister Catherine said. "They know people will replace what they take."

The home is situated on the edge of a crowded urban center on the Kowloon Peninsula. But the hills in back are wooded and wild.

Police have promised to watch the home more carefully, but Sister Catherine worries all the same.

"They could cut our telephone wires and we wouldn't know what to do," she said.

But she hopes the thieves are not so cunning and determined. "If they come again, we hope they will see one of us and simply run away," she said.

RESISTANCE SEEN

New Seminary Look?

NEW YORK (AP) — Experts today foresee a vast reshuffling ahead in the location and make-up of theological seminaries in America.

But it is expected to meet entrenched resistance.

Describing the present prevailing pattern of small denominational seminaries, widely dispersed across the country and emphasizing "sectarian isolation," a two-year study report says:

"The whole apparatus is coming to look more like a monument to history rather than an instrument designed to serve the needs of the contemporary church."

In its place, the report predicts sweeping "revision in the current map" of American seminaries, drawing them together increasingly into "a small number of major clusters" near large universities.

These clusters "will be ecumenical in character," including "groups of confessionally based seminaries" maintaining their denominational links, but with transdenominational, interlocking programs with others, the report says.

It notes that under the pressure of current conditions, the trend already is under way, with newly forming Protestant-Catholic seminary complexes in Boston, New York, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Chicago and Rochester, N.Y.

Others are expected to emerge elsewhere.

The report was drawn up by an eight-member commission of Protestant and Catholic scholars for the American Association of Theological Schools, which includes 150 seminaries and divinity schools. It met June 10-13 in St. Louis.

Seeking to assess the shape of theological education in the 1970's, the report foresees a "basic redeployment of seminary resources," involving at least "the physical relocation of large numbers of existing seminary operations."

It says the rise of the ecumenical movement for Christian unity has reduced historic differences and made clear that those studying for the priesthood or ministry must do so "in a common setting."

"Small seminaries operating in physical and sectarian isolation from each other simply cannot effectively respond to the challenge of ecumenism," the report says.

Predicting a variety of "types of associations" ranging from corporate unifications to functional cooperation, the report cited a number of metropolitan-university cities where facilities exist for joint groupings, including:

Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.; Washington, D.C.; Atlanta, Ga.; Austin, Tex.; Denver, Colo.; Nashville, Tenn.; New Haven, Conn.; St. Louis, Mo., and several Canadian cities.

Rising costs and competition for quality faculty members also were cited as demanding cooperative seminary enterprises, rather than the past system of denominational seminaries trying to "go it alone."

Church Plans Upgrading Of Education

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Plans to upgrade the education of the disadvantaged were drawn here at a meeting of Catholic educational and social action leaders convened by the National Catholic Educational Association.

The program calls for the identification of outstanding Catholic educational projects for the disadvantaged.

These "model" programs will be analyzed and reported on to educators to assist them in developing their own programs for the disadvantaged.

The models to be evaluated include school programs, adult education projects and teacher training programs.

Joint Textbook Will Bring About Ecumenical First

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ecumenical history will be made this fall when for the first time about 250,000 Protestant and Roman Catholic teen-agers will study about the Bible and Christian beliefs from the same textbooks.

The development is the result of a joint publishing venture of the United Church Press, publishing arm of the 2 million-member United Church of Christ, and Herder and Herder, New York, publishers of Catholic books.

Involved in the program are six books on basic Christian beliefs, Biblical themes and social issues, and a manual of confirmation practices, prepared by United Church Press for confirmation classes.

PAUSES IN BASILICA

Pope Paul VI pauses in St. Peter's Basilica to kiss the foot of a bronze statue of St. Peter, revered by Roman Catholics as the first Pope of Rome. Recently the Pope announced that bones found in 1953 during excavations beneath the Basilica have been identified, to his personal satisfaction, as those of St. Peter. (UPI Cablephoto)

Minority Aid

NEW YORK (UPI) — A long-term program of aid to organizations of Negroes and other minority groups has been set up by the Committee for Racial Justice of the United Church of Christ with a yearly goal of up to $5 million.

Franciscan Monks Plan A Major Shift Into The West's Ghettos

OAKLAND (UPI) — The brown-robed friars of the Franciscan Order are planning a major exodus soon from schools and parishes for personal involvement in ghettos, farm labor movements and campus peace projects.

The major shift in priorities will involve a large percentage of the 490 Franciscan priests and brothers in seven Western states.

The new role for the Western province of the world Catholic order is in keeping with decisions reached at a meeting last year in Assisi, Italy, of friars representing the entire 26,000-man order.

At the same time new internal changes were recommended.

Father Alan McCoy, minister provincial for the province of St. Barbara, announced the plans for the Franciscans of the west following a meeting at Mission Santa Barbara.

"At the present time we are in negotiation with a number of dioceses to take on projects . . . which a small, mobile religious community of men might staff —and with the understanding that as soon as the work is finished we will be free to move on into other areas of work," McCoy said.

The emphasis on mobility and freedom to work where the need is greatest is an extension of the Franciscan ideal of focusing attention on "those who are poor or in any way afflicted."

The founder of the order, Francis of Assisi, later canonized by the church, spent his early 13th century ministry giving the material goods he could beg to the poor.

Friars have been appointed to a committee for new apostolates in order to organize the effort toward personal involvement.

Among projects given a high priority rating by the committee in the western province are:

Assistance by a team of brothers, all skilled construction workers, in a self-help, low-cost housing program for migrant farm workers in California's San Joaquin Valley.

Establishment of a center in a Negro ghetto area to serve the black community.

Assignment of a team of Franciscans to the Philippine Peace Corps.

Relaxation of routine duties for friars living in urban areas so they may devote almost full-time efforts to community action projects on behalf of civil rights and world peace.

LUTHERANS SHOW HIKE IN MEMBERS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The three major Lutheran church bodies in the United States reported a baptized membership of 8,711,489 at the end of 1967, an increase of 49,247 members or .57 per cent, over the preceding year.

Together, the three denominations — the Lutheran Church in America, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and the American Lutheran Church — represent more than 95 per cent of the Lutherans in the United States and Canada.

Second Oldest

ST. THOMAS, U.S. Virgin Islands (UPI) — Frederick Lutheran Church here is the second oldest Lutheran church in the Western Hemisphere.

Cardinals Look Like A Shoo-In

Nip Giants To Open Huge Lead

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —With a staggering nine-game lead prior to the All-Star break, one would think the streaking St. Louis Cardinals would be thinking about a second straight National League pennant.

Manager Red Schoendienst is too smart for any premature predictions however. Playing it coy, the St. Louis skipper refused to display any optimism following his clubs' 4-3, 12-inning victory over the San Francisco Giants last night.

"It's a pretty good lead," admitted Schoendienst after the world champions' fifth straight victory. "But it's not good enough. There are just too many good clubs in this league."

Schoendienst conceded he "had no idea we'd be this far ahead" when he made a preseason evaluation. "You can never tell how you'll do. I knew we were good, but it's like a trade — you never know how they'll turn out."

THE CHAMPS

The Cardinals flashed their championship quality by overcoming a 3-0 Giants' lead and riding the impressive relief of rookie Wayne Granger into the 12th.

Curt Flood opened the 12th with his third hit of the game but was forced at second on Orlando Cepeda's grounder. Mike Shannon's double sent Cepeda to third, from where he scored on Tim McCarver's bloop single into left.

Granger, called up from the minors on May 28, pitched his longest major league stint — allowing only two hits and striking out six in four innings to raise his record to 3-0.

"The Giants weren't hitting the ball hard, so Red stayed with me," explained the lanky right-hander.

NO CHOICE

"I really had no other choice," added the manager. "I wanted to go with a right-hander and Joe Hoerner had a sore leg and Dick Hughes had warmed up three nights in a row."

Third baseman Jim Davenport's error gave St. Louis two unearned runs in the seventh.

The Giants gave starter Mike McCormick a three-run bulge on Ron Hunt's double, Davenport's bunt single, Willie McCovey's sacrifice fly and Jim Hart's two-run homer—his 16th—off starter Steve Carlton in the sixth.

Singles by pinch-batter Ed Spiezio and Julian Javier chased McCormick in the ninth. Flood's run-scoring single greeted Bob Bolin for the tie.

WIMBLEDON CHAMPIONSHIPS

Billie Jean Wins Again

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King became the first player in 14 years to win three straight Wimbledon titles when she defeated Judy Tegart of Australia today for the women's crown in the first All-England Open Tennis Championships. The score was 9-7, 7-5.

The Long Beach housewife won the title in 1966 and 1967 as an ameteur. She turned professional in April.

First prize was worth $1,800.

The last player to win three Wimbledon titles in a row was Maureen "Little Mo" Connally, 1952-1954.

Miss Tegart, 30, winner over Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., in the semifinals, played the champion stroke for stroke for most of the opening set but missed two easy volleys and double-faulted for the sixth time in dropping the decisive service in the 16th game. The first set lasted 40 minutes.

The second set followed the pattern of the first. Both women played an aggressive serve-and-volley game, rushing to the net at every opportunity. Mrs. King came through in the big moments.

Rod Laver of Australia won the men's crown yesterday.

A packed center court gallery of 17,000 saw the 70-minute women's thriller.

Billie Jean drew first blood with a service break in the second game to lead 2-0. Judy twice pulled back from advantage against her but a fine volley into an empty court gave the champion the break.

Mrs. King's strokes were crisper and took her to 3-0, but Miss Tegart held service at 1-3 and 2-4.

Bother girls were volleying well behind their services, and games went with service to 8-7. Then Judy double-faulted for the sixth time in the match and netted a couple of volleys to give Mrs. King the first set.

Service still predominated in the second set, which went to 4-4 as both girls played attacking tennis, volleying powerfully. Mrs. King tried a few lobs to keep Miss Tegart away from the net, but the powerful Australian girl killed most of them successfully.

Then in the ninth game, Judy was within a point of a break when she swept a backhand across court with the champion out of position. Billie Jean got out of trouble with two volleys deep to keep ahead at 5-4. Judy, hitting with power, levelled at 5-5 at love. Then Mrs. King kept her service, also at love, for 6-5.

Then tragedy struck for the Australian girl. The champion, sensing that this was the moment, flung everything into attack. Three untouchable service returns brought her to match point, and she made no mistake with a punched volley to take the game to love, and with it the match.

Trevino Thrills His 'Fleas'

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Lee Trevino, the 28-year-old super sensation of the PGA circuit, and late-blooming veteran Julius Boros were the front runners going into today's third round of the $125,000 Buick Open at Warwick Hills.

Trevino, who gained fame with his victory in the U.S. Open, shot a four-under-par 68 over the 7,001-yard, par 72 course yesterday to move him to the lead after two rounds.

Added to his 70 in the first round, his 138 total score gave him a one-stroke lead over the 47-year-old Boros.

Steady with his long game and putting with a new club, Boros carved a 69 out of Warwick. Boros needed 30 putts in each round. He said he changed putters after the Cleveland Open, where he finished way off pace last week.

TRY ANYTHING

"When you get a little desperate you'll try anything," said Boros. "I guess the best part of my game is driving and the long irons. But putting makes the difference. It doesn't seem to make any difference whether it's a long course or a short course. I shoot about the same."

Trevino, who made the turn at 33, three under par, with the help of an eagle on the par 5, 491-yard 13th hole, was chagrined when asked at what point his game had improved since he won the U.S. Open.

"I've always played this well," said Trevino, a Mexican-American from Texas. "When I played in Texas, I had a plus five handicap. That means no matter what the other guy shot, I had to give him five strokes."

ENJOYS FANS

Turning more serious, Trevino said the large galleries he has attracted since he won the Open have added to his game.

"You miss and everyone says, 'Look at his form, look at his form,' " Trevino said.

At least 3,000 of the record weekday 23,000 crowd that showed up yesterday were following Trevino. The gallery has become known as "Lee's Fleas."

"I really enjoy them," said Trevino, "but they aren't very thoughtful toward the other players. As soon as I putt out, they start charging toward the next hole and don't give the other fellows a chance to finish."

Two strokes off the pace at 140 were Tom Weiskopf, the second leading money winner on the PGA tour; Fred Marti of Baytown, Tex., and 25-year-old John Stevens of Wichita, Kan.

Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael remained in the money race with a score of 72-73—145.

NFL FEUD

49er Rep Sees End To Strike

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The player representative for the San Francisco 49ers, Howard Mudd, said yesterday "the end is in sight" in the current feud between the National Football League Players Association and the NFL club owners.

Mudd said in a telephone interview from his home in Redwood City that settlement could come within a few days.

The 49ers hope to open their rookie camp next week and other teams will follow suit.

Despite Mudd's optimism, NFL players for the first time openly threatened to strike unless their demands for a pension plan are met.

A flat strike threat was issued yesterday by a players' spokesman and from Baltimore came the suggestion by Colts owner Carroll Rosenbloom, that the NFL consider suspending operations

Looks Like N.L. Will Adopt Two Divisions

It now seems certain the National League will adopt the American League's two-division system for the 1969 baseball season when both leagues expand from 10 to 12 teams.

A major rift opened between the rival leagues a month ago following separate closed door meetings to set expansion policies.

The A.L. announced an East and West division of six teams each with a 156-game schedule and best-of-five playoff to determine the World Series representative.

The N.L. announced a one-league circuit of 12 teams and retention of the present 162-game schedule.

BASEBALL'S EXECUTIVE - council composed of the commissioner, the league presidents and two owners from each league worked out a compromise. The council recommended the N.L. adopt the division system and the A.L. retain the 162-game schedule.

On July 10 during the All-Star break both leagues will meet in joint session at Houston and act on the council's recommendations.

THERE HAVE been lots of hints the council's peace formula will be quickly approved notwithstanding opposition from diehard traditionalists who feel divisional playoffs somehow will tarnish the glamour of the World Series.

But that isn't the big worry of N.L. club owners. How to split the league in two divisions is their chief concern. Should it be done on arbitrary East-West geographical lines?

GEOGRAPHY DETERMINED the division in the American League which will look this way next season: East — Detroit, Baltimore, Cleveland, Boston, New York and Washington; West: Minnesota, California, Oakland, Chicago, Seattle, Kansas City.

If geography is permitted to dictate the new look in the National League next season, the N.L. makeup will be: East — Atlanta, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York and Montreal; West — San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, St. Louis, Houston and Chicago.

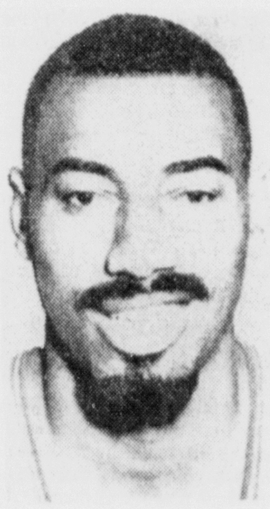
SO WHAT happens to the big New York gates the Giants and Dodgers always draw in their Shea Stadium series with the Mets? Atlanta now considers the Giants the No. 1 rivals of the Braves in the deep south. What happens to the big gates for Giant-Brave series in Atlanta Stadium?

The Giants and Mets drew 140,933 for their four-game series last month in Shea Stadium including the season's biggest single game crowd of 54,259.

THE GIANTS were looking forward to a big opening road series next season in Shea Stadium. The Mets opened this year in Candlestick Park and it is customary for the guest team to play host the following year.

One way or another the Giants are going to open in New York next season. The other day they announced a two-game series will be played on the final weekend of the training season with the New York Yankees in Yankee Stadium just prior to the start of the regular season.

IT SEEMED an odd time to choose for announcement of the [illegible] between the Giants and Yankees since the 1962 World Series. But in view of next week's joint meeting of the leagues, the announcement was particularly well timed. The Giants were telling everybody, regardless of how divisional schedules are drawn, they are opening in New York in 1969.



WILT CHAMBERLAIN
Bound for L.A.

Wilt Goes To Lakers, A.P. Learns

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, the Philadelphia 76ers' record-cracking giant, has been dealt to the Los Angeles Lakers for three players—Darrall Imhoff, Archie Clark and Jerry Chambers—and an undisclosed amount of cash, The Associated Press learned yesterday.

It also was learned that the National Basketball Association 76ers named Jack Ramsay, the general manager for three years, as its new coach. Ramsay succeeds Alex Hannum, who resigned one year after leading the 76ers to their only NBA title.

Asked if Chamberlain was traded and if Ramsay was named the new coach, the general manager replied:

"We have made no statement and we have no comment to make on that," he said.

The trade, however, has been confirmed for The Associated Press by an unimpeachable source.

'NO COMMENT'

In Los Angeles, the Lakers continued a policy of "no comment" on the report.

Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke and General Manager Fred Schaus were reportsd out of the city by a club spokesman.

However, informed sources noted that the Chamberlain deal has been a persistent rumor for weeks and the Lakers have never isued a strong denial, only "no comment."

Cooke, a millionaire noted for his flair for publicity, would obviously await his own time and place to make an anouncement of such magnitude if it were true.

Chamberlain, 32, considered basketball's greatest offensive player, will team with Los Angeles' great duo of guard Jerry West and forward Elgin Baylor.

The 7-foot-1 Chamberlain, in nine years in the NBA, is the only player to score more than 25,000 points. He has been on nine all-star end all-league teams. The past two years, NBA players named him the league's Most Valuable Player.

Mays, Mantle To Captain All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle will captain their respective squads in the 39th renewal of the All-Star Game in the Houston Astrodome next Tuesday.

The San Francisco and New York Yankee superstars were named today by the All-Star managers, Red Schoendienst of the National League and Dick Williams of the American League, because of their long and outstanding services in prior games.

Mays, selected for the 15th time, has played in 18 games and owns an over-all batting average of .355 with three home runs and nine runs batted in. His 19 runs scored and 22 hits are All-Star records.

Mantle, on the team for a 16th time, has appeared in 15 games. While his batting average is only .238, 2 of his 10 hits have been home runs.

The idea of team captains was suggested by Commissioner William D. Eckert. One of their duties will be to present the lineup cards to the umpires before the start of the game.

Saints Give 49ers Rose

SANTA BARBARA, (AP) — Veteran George Rose is expected to strengthen the San Francisco 49rs' defensive secondary, but the 49ers have given up veteran tight end Monte Stickles to get him.

The 49ers said last night that the New Orleans Saints have offered Rose for Stickles with the trade contingent on Stickles signing with the Saints rather than retiring.

Stickles, former Notre Dame star, is a seven-year veteran.

Rose, from Auburn, played three seasons with the Minnesota Vikings before being picked up by New Orleans last year in the National Football League expansion draft.

Saints quarterback Bill Kilmer, in San Francisco, said the Saints also are trying to get 49er pass-catching star Dave Parks. However, it was reported the 49ers were close to signing Parks, who has played out his option.

SOX IT TO 'EM

Boston Red Sox manager Dick Williams didn't like the call as Rod Carew of the Twins slid wide at second base in the fourth inning, preventing Rico Petrocelli from trying to complete a double play. Williams claimed interference. Williams points out spot to umpire Marty Springstead, argues nose to nose, peeks under hat as umpire Springstead looks down, and gets thrown out of the game. The Red Sox went on to win, 4-2, last night at Boston. (UPI Wirephoto)

SEVENTH STRAIGHT SETBACK

A's Fighting The Blahs

DETROIT (AP)—The Oakland A's are trying to get rid of the blahs—and a seven-game losing streak.

"The blahs have set in," says A's Manager Bob Kennedy.

"You've seen that commercial where the head rolls off the body. That's what happened. The mind has left the body."

Detroit Tigers catcher Bill Freehan joined the blahs in attacking the A's last night as he stroked a pair of three-run homers in pacing the Tigers to an 8-5 win.

That gave the Tigers their fifth straight victory and their 10th in their last 11 games.

Chuck Dobson, 5-8, went to the mound today to try to cool down Freehan, who has five homers in his last five games. Earl Wilson, 6-5, was the scheduled Detroit pitcher.

Freehan hit his 13th homer in the first inning and his 14th in the fifth.

Tiger starter Mickey Lolich was coasting along with an 8-1 lead when Oakland's Danny Cater hit a three-run homer in the sixth.

Pat Dobson then came on to hold the A's scoreless until they got another run in the ninth on Rick Monday's double and Jim Gosger's pinch single.

Lolich had pitched hitless ball until Reggie Jackson led off the A's third with his 11th homer.

'Skins Get McKeever In Trade

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Washington Redskins, in a National Football League deal, sent defensive back Paul Krause to the Minnesota Vikings for tight end Marlin McKeever last night.

The Redskins also said they will receive an undisclosed draft choice for next year along with McKeever.

McKeever played six seasons for Los Angeles before going to the Vikings last year.

Krause, a four-year veteran from Iowa, led the NFL in interceptions in his rookie year in 1964 and was all-pro selection his first two years. He tied for second in interceptions last season. season.

AUTO RACING

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Jim Hurtubise, driving an Offenhauser-powered, Indianapolis-type roadster, set a world record of 191.983 miles per hour for a closed course in a special run around Daytona International Speedway.

BASEBALL

CHICAGO — J. Kyle Anderson, head baseball coach at the University of Chicago for 36 years, was elected to the American Association of College Baseball Coaches Hall of Fame.

DALLAS, Tex. — Dusty Boggess, 58, a National League umpire for almost 20 years, was in critical condition last night at Parkland Hospital, suffering from a chronic lung disease.

Boggess, who was admitted to Parkland May 28, retired several years ago. He was allowed no visitors.

DETROIT — Eddie Mathews of the Detroit Tigers was reported in satisfactory condition last night following surgery.

Mathews, traded last year to Detroit by Houston, is suffering from a herniated lumbar disc, an affliction of the lower back.

TRACK AND FIELD

SKOEVDE, Sweden — Four of five competing American athletes won their events last night in an international meet.

Charlie Greene, Nebraska, took the 100 meters in 10.4; Vince Matthews, New York, won the 400 meters in 46 flat; John Mason, Ft. Hays State, won the 1,500 meters in 3:47.3 and Dick Railsback, UCLA, won the pole vault at 17-1.

Mere Wisp Of A Gal Leads Open

READING, Pa. (AP) — Mrs. Susie Maxwell Berning, a mere wisp of a gal, is the leader heading into today's third round of the U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship, but it took a soft-spoken blonde to sum up what really happened in yesterday's second round.

"It's a humbling game, gentlemen," said Mickey Wright, recognized by many golf experts as the greatest woman golfer of her time.

The 33-year-old Miss Wright had just completed a miserable round over the troublesome 6,232-yard Moselem Golf Club Course. She hit a ball out of bounds, sent shots flying over greens, took a penalty when her ball moved off a spike mark on a green, putted as a spectator dropped a pocketbook in a bunker, and failed to card a birdie.

SEVEN OVER

She would up with a seven-over-par 40-38—78 and a two-round total of 148, six strokes behind Mrs. Berning, a 113-pounder, who increased her lead over the field of 57 pros and 41 amateurs despite a faltering three-bogey finish.

Mrs. Berning shot a 36-37—73 for a 36-hole total of 142, four strokes better than Mrs. Murle Lindstrom, 29-year-old mother of two, and 1962 Open champion.

Another stroke back at 147 as the 44 qualifiers started today's third round were, Carol Mann, second leading money winner on the women's pro tour, and Mrs. Gerda Whalen, 30-year-old German-born pro.

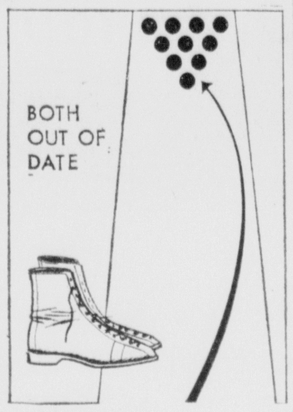
Miss Tennis Upset

Unseeded Ann Lamott and Bea Kilgore of Belvedere extended second seeded Anita May and Lori Scherbeck to three sets before losing a heartbreaker in the National Junior Hardcourt Tennis Championships at Burlingame Thrusday.

The Southern California favorites came from behind to win the girls age 14 and under doubles thriller 5-7, 9-7, 6-4.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Big curves are as out of date as high-button shoes. If you throw a straight ball, I think you are better off. A small curve, covering perhaps 6 to 10 boards, is ideal for both pros and amateurs. It is easier to control, easier to use for picking spares and easier to adjust from one lane to another. But if your ball doesn't curve — "hook" is the more popular description — don't worry about it.

BOWLING

It's Good To Be Bad In Low Ball

Sometimes you have to be pretty good to be bad.

Some bowlers find it fairly easy to get under 100, but young (17) Keith Ray did it the hard way in last Sunday's "Low Ball" tournament at Country Club Bowl, San Rafael.

Keith totaled 141 pins for three games for an average of 27 pins per game and the trick here is that you cannot throw gutter balls on a whim. They count 10 pins automatically so Keith's accomplishment is a little like Robin Hood splitting arrows.

Getting back into the area of the more you get the better you feel, Elmer Tynes racked up a fat 258-225-209-692 to take three-game series honors at Country Club. Elmer's from Novato and has been Masters League Champ for the past two years. Another Southshore League star, Al Tatum, was next with a 640. Ray Miller racked up a consistent 849 total in the 550 Trios for the four-game honors.

Jim Banister had high game for the Lutheran League with a 235. In the same league, Hope McIrvin just missed a triplicate with a 121-121-120 series and August Hanken picked up the 4-7-10 split.

On the distaff side, Nikki Simonian just missed a 600 series at Greenbrae, totaling 598 but she did come in with a whopping 258 game.

At Country Club, Lil Scotto had a 554, topped by a 214 in the Hi-Lo's while Charl Warcup had a 552 in the Elbow Benders topped by a 236. Kay Brem followed with a steady 185-187-179-551.

Little Pam Withers, only nine years old, rolled what must have looked like a junior-sized 300, coming up with a 140 in the Bantams at Country Club. Pam carries a 75 average.

Sohner Softball Team Upsets District Champs

Sohner Tree Service softballers made it two in a row over powerful Francis Realty of Santa Rosa by capturing a 2-1 verdict over the Realtors in Santa Rosa "A" League action Wednesday night.

The San Anselmo club thus won both encounters this season against the team that won the district (Sonoma, Marin and Mendocino counties championship last year.

Ron McCamish scored the winning run in the top of the seventh on a wild pickoff throw at third base. McCamish had opened the inning with a single and moved to third on a stolen base and a sacrifice.

Winning pitcher Morey Swarm limited the Santa Rosans to three hits.

The win gives Sohner a 9-3 mark in Santa Rosa League play and an overall record of 37-15.

Belvedere Tennis

More than 300 players have entered the Belvedere Junior Tennis Tournament, for 10-18 year olds, which starts Monday.

Bill Washauer of San Francisco has been named top seed in the Boys 18 division while Annette D'Antonio, also of San Francisco, is top seed for the Girls 18 division. Tournament competition lasts through Friday.

14-YEAR-OLD IN SPOTLIGHT

Hectic Half Hour Of Fun At Santa Clara Swim Meet

SANTA CLARA (AP) — Little Sue Pederson had one world record taken away from her almost before she got it. And she doesn't figure the one they did give her is going to last very long either.

In one hectic half hour at the Santa Clara International Invitational swim meet yesterday, 14-year-old Susan tied one world record, lost the race she tied it in, was told it probably won't be a world record after all and then went out and broke another record.

The fun began in the women's 200-meter individual medley where Susan, from the Arden Hills Swim Club of Carmichael, faced the world record holder, Claudia Kolb, who hadn't been beaten since Susan did it two years ago.

It looked as if Miss Pederson had done it again, but the judges, one mechanical and one human, gave the race to Miss Kolb. The problem was that the times agreed upon by the three stop watches on each girl had Susan in 2:25.0, tying the world mar, and Claudia, the winner, in 2:25.1.

AMERICAN RULES

And that's the way it'll go into the books even though according to American rules Susan's time can't be considered a world record. You have to win to get one. The international situation is a little more muddled and the possibility exists that Susan could get a share of the world record and not of the national record.

"We're trying to eliminate the human element," said one official. "But you can't as long as you deal with people."

Anyhow, while all this was going on, Susan led off Arden Hills' 800-meter freestyle relay team and there she broke the 200-meter mark—and no question about it.

IT'S A RECORD

Rules say if you lead off a relay you're eligible for a record and Susan's time, 2:09.5, is two-tenths better than that of Pam Kruse, the former record holder. The team also set a world mark, 8:46.4.

Susan isn't holding her breath about hanging on to the record though. Today, Debbie Meyer, probably the best women's distance swimmer around, is in the 200-meter flat race and, says Sue, "Debbie will probably break the record."

Mark Spitz, triple world record holder from the host Santa Clara Swim Club, came up in the final strokes to edge Mexico's Guillermo Echevarria in 4:08.1, just four-tenths off Spitz' own record.

Other winers yesterday were Karen Muir of South Africa at 1:07.7 in the women's 100-meter backstroke; Miss Meyer at 4:29.5 in the women's 400-meter freestyle; Fred Haywood of the host club at 1:01.5 in the men's 100-meter backstroke; Greg Buckingham of Santa Clara at 2:13.2 in the men's 200-meter individual medley; the Santa Clara team at 8:05.4 in the men's 800-meter freestyle relay.

End Of NFL Rebellion Seen

this season because of an impasse reached in talks over players' pensions.

Earlier John Gordy, president of the NFL Players Association, said a strike would result if accord on a pension plan was not reached. Such a strike could begin next week when several clubs have scheduled opening training dates.

No indication of scheduled meetings was made by owners or players and Gordy was reported flying from city to city trying to find a solution.

Earlier Gordy said in a statement that "as long as the owners refuse to resolve the pension problem, we have no other choice but to take appropriate action."

Asked if "appropriate action" meant a strike, a spokesman for the players association replied, "yes."

Gordy and others who met last weekend at Detroit with owners' representatives reportedly asked for contributions of $100,000 from each of the 16 NFL clubs to swell the pension account. The figure was reportedly too high for the owners.

"All of the players will be on strike if there is no settlement before next week," said Alex Karras, a teammate of Gordy on the Detroit Lions.

GROSS PROFIT

Bob Lurtsema, a defensive tackle with the New York Giants told the Midland Daily News that the $600,000 average gross profit made by NFL owners each year shows their ability

Jurors Treated Like Second Class Citizens

THE JURY SYSTEM is sacrosanct in our Anglo-American judicial institution.

This is justly so and reasons for it are well enough known by all that they need no recitation here.

But the juror is all-too-often treated as a second-class citizen.

First you are abruptly advised that your name has been selected for inclusion on the list from which jurors will be selected for trials in a certain jurisdiction.

Sometime after that you receive in the mail a "Trial Jury Summons" ordering you to report to a certain courtroom in the courthouse at a certain hour on a certain date.

The date and time will turn out to be among the most inconvenient imaginable, disrupting long-made personal or business plans.

The summons warns, "Herein fail not, under penalty of law."

WHEN YOU ARRIVE at the appointed place at the appointed time on the appointed date, the chances of your serving on a jury are small, despite all the inconvenience. First, you may find that the matter has been settled in advance of trial and jurors are dismissed — too late to do anything about the long-standing commitments you had to break so as to "fail not."

If a trial is still scheduled, you may be ushered to a jury room designed to accommodate 12 jurors in reasonable comfort. There are insufficient chairs to accommodate the large number summoned. The room is not adequately ventilated for the crowd jammed into it.

You must remain there seemingly forever without the slightest idea of what the delay is all about. It will turn out that one of the attorneys was "detained" and his arrival delayed. Or a judge "had other business." Or perhaps the litigants are nearing a settlement in pre-trial negotiations and the impaneling of a jury will not be necessary after all.

Meanwhile, you just sit uncomfortably and wait interminably.

If the matter is not settled in advance of trial, ultimately you will be ushered into the courtroom.

The atmosphere is different. The room is larger and better ventilated. Seats are more comfortable. Judge and attorneys treat jurors with more apparent consideration than they receive previously. The jurors' duties and responsibilities are solemnly explained.

When the first set of 12 names are drawn, many of those who were not selected heave a sigh of relief. They think they will soon be free to leave.

As questioning progresses, it becomes evident that few of the original 12 will actually serve and more names will have to be drawn.

All this takes time.

ONE RECURRING QUESTION to prospective jurors goes something like this: "If you were the defendant, would you be satisfied to have your case decided by 12 people like yourself?"

The answer is nearly always "Yes" with at least an implied "of course."

One cannot help if most prospective jurors don't answer this question as if it were worded, "Would you be satisfied to decide your own case?"

In a case where the defendant is black, or a bedraggled hippie or something other than a middle-class white Marin suburbanite, there is the gnawing suspicion that the prospective juror doesn't answer the question as if he really were the defendant. Rather he sees himself as replacing the defendant. It is doubtful that a prospective juror sees himself as black or as a bedraggled hippie standing in judgement before a white, middle-class Marin suburbanite jury.

One can't help wondering what kind of furor it would create if a thoughtful, perceptive and totally honest prospective juror came along and said, "If I were a tousle-headed hippie, of course I would not want to be judged by middle-class squares; I would want to be judged by my peers."

Aren't the peers of a tousle-headed hippie other tousle headed hippies?

Would the hungry ghetto blacks convict a peer of stealing food off the grocery store shelf to feed his hungry family?

Our sacrosant jury system is not without its flaws.

A thoughtful, reflective juror knows this and feels it. On him falls the burden of the terrible decision.

Is his burden of responsibility at least not the equal of that borne by judge and attorneys?

THE JUROR IS PAID, $5 per day. Trial dates are set to accommodate judges and attorneys, not jurors. Jurors when finally impaneled get the privilege of parking their cars in the courthouse parking lot, if they can find a space. The judge and prosecuting attorneys are assured of space.

In some respects, jurors and especially prospective jurors get herded around like cattle. It is as if they were mere pawns in the judicial game.

Perhaps a future generation of citizen jurors will organize protest demonstrations and force reforms.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BRICKBATS to the careless and thoughtless who destroy property and endanger lives by tossing lighted cigarettes, matches and fireworks, into our dry hillsides. The result: Human suffering and more cost to the hard-pressed taxpayer.

A BOUQUET to Bonnie R. Kissich, 19, of Sausalito, chosen Miss Marin for the Marin-Sonoma Fair in Petaluma.

A BOUQUET to George C. Goheen of Mill Valley for his long service on the Marin County Redevelopment Agency and the Marin County Housing Authority. He resigned from both agencies effective last month.

A BOUQUET to Richard P. Nave, who was installed to serve another term as president of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

A BOUQUET to the county supervisors for dropping the idea of creating a super-secretary category for county employees. Measurable criteria for the selection of such "super-secretaries" should be developed first to make the selection less arbitrary.

BOUQUETS to the designers of and participants in the Marin Art and Garden Fair for another "best ever" show.

COLDS LINKED TO MENTAL STATE

Common colds may be caused by depression—not viruses—according to Dr. Merl M. Jackel.

Speaking to the American Phychoanalytical Association, the doctor said he studied the incidence of colds in 10 patients over a three-year period. He found that 25 of 26 colds were preceded by depression.

People who rarely catch colds, he concluded, may be more inclined to fight feelings of depression. The doctor also noted that patients who had been successfully treated for emotional problems often found that they caught fewer colds.

The close link between our emotional and physical states should give us pause to ask ourselves how well we control our feelings.

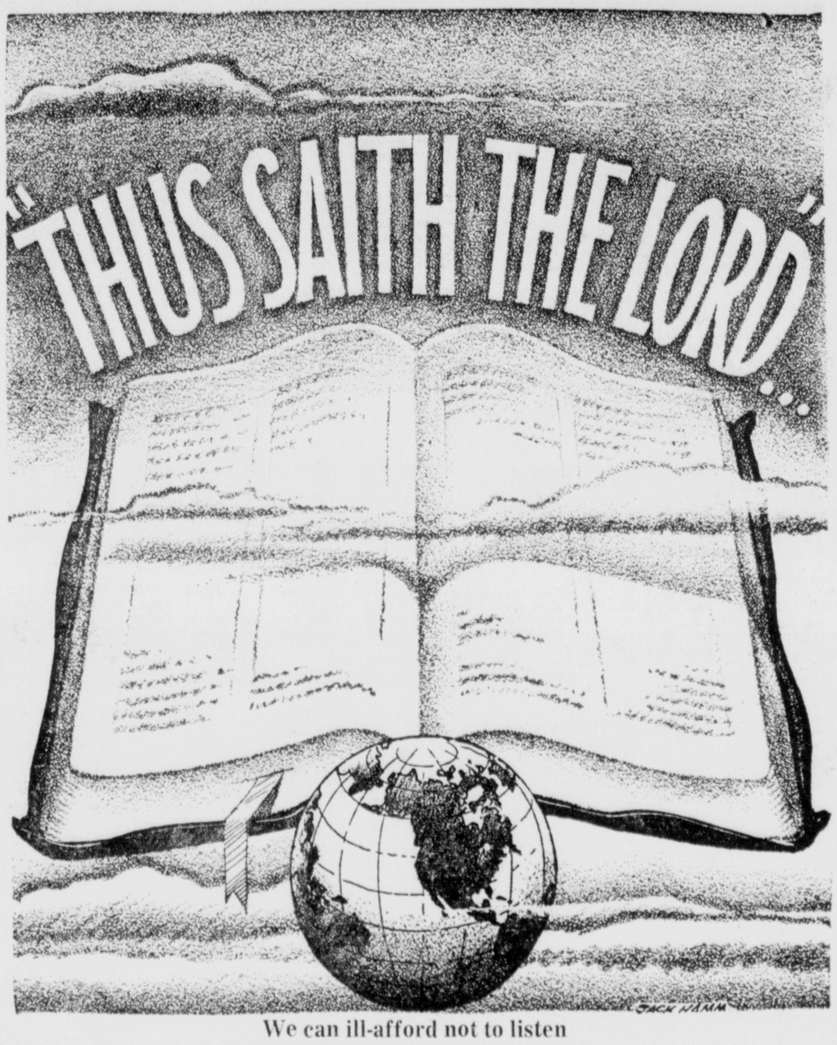
Expressing ourselves at the appropriate moment has an important value. But "letting go" or giving way to self-pity can have unhappy consequences.

Ask God, the Creator of us all, for the strength of mind and heart to face life's tensions bravely. We will be less likely to be overcome by our feelings.

"Have no anxiety about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God."

(Philippians 4:6)

Grant us the maturity to face up to our duties, Lord, without flinching or seeking excuses.



We can ill-afford not to listen

Doctor Warns Of Cigarette Hazard

With the majority of the Marin Hospital District board being cigarette smokers, it is not surprizing that the directors turned down the request from the Marin Medical Society that the sale of cigarettes be stopped in the hospital.

The California Medical Association's Council recently passed a strongly worded resolution urging all hospitals to act as exemplars in their communities by ending the availablility of cigarettes on their premises. Many of the leading hospitals had already shown the way.

The rationalizations that "health cannot be legislated" and that "people will continue to smoke in the hospital whether we sell them cigarettes or not" are analogous to those being expressed about the unrestricted sale of guns and by the proponents of legalizing the sale of marijuana. Ask advertizing and business people whether availability is related to use. We are all somewhat suggestible as well as influenced by repetition and visibility.

San Diego hospitals have replaced their cigarette vending machines with placards consoling, "It's gone because we love you." Our own medical society is soon to distribute to all medical and dental offices posters and tents with the established fact that "100,000 DOCTORS HAVE QUIT SMOKING. DO THEY KNOW SOMETHING THAT YOU SHOULD KNOW?"

Guard Rail Needed On Drake Boulevard

I wonder what level the death toll will reach before a guard rail will be installed along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from Highway 101 to Wolfe Grade.

The Planning Commission and the Department of Public Works have created a virtual freeway without any of the attendant safeguards necessary to protect all of the children who must continuously use this stretch of road.

Aren't there any parents on the Planning Commission?

San Rafael's Planning Could Use Upgrading

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A tender nerve must have been pinched by Supervisor Peter H. Behr when he recently said a proposed slash in the county planning budget "would reduce us to the kind of planning produced by the City of San Rafael."

His remark was aimed at the supervisor who unsuccessfully proposed the slash, John F. McInnis, a former mayor of San Rafael. McInnis took no particular exception to Behr's remark.

But the bellowing response from the San Rafael City Council would suggest that Behr had done something pretty terrible—beside call attention to a rather obvious fact.

Behr, brushing off a demand Tuesday by the city council that he retract and apologize for his statement, commented that he was "caught in the crossfire" between City Councilman Louis H. Baar and Supervisor Thomas T. Storer. Baar is Storer's opponent for re-election in November.

But the vehemence of the city council's demand, read at the supervisors' meeting Tuesday, is evidence that more than election year politics is involved. Just what is involved, is not clear.

PERHAPS the city's government really believes it provides good planning. Governments have been known to have made even less astute judgments.

Certainly many persons sensitive to good planning consider San Rafael a perfect example of absolutely no planning.

The council's statement, read to the supervisors by the city's planning director, Herbert G. Hotchner, dealt proudly with how all applications to his department during 1967 were decided within 28 days of their being filed. Little was said about the quality of the prompt paperwork, or about whatever attempts may have been made at control of development to ensure higher standards than have been set in the past.

A planning staff that administers paper work with a high degree of efficiency is not necessarily an effective planning staff.

SAN RAFAEL, with a climate balanced between the fog to the south and heat to the north, could have been the most delightful place in Marin. Instead, it made almost no attempt to preserve its central core—or even to take advantage of the mission or the city's waterfront.

The real responsibility for planning rests with the city council. A planner generally can be only as good as his council wants. And Hotchner has made no secret of his wish to retire in San Rafael.

The council's attitude toward planning is shown by its lack of imagination and lack of willingness to try to do something bold with the city.

Many horrified observers claim it is at least 10 years too late to make something of San Rafael's deteriorating environment, but to make the city look like it knows where it is going would require only a change in the council's attitude toward planning.

It was a waste of valuable energy to dispatch the city's planner to the Civic Center to berate a supervisor.

There should be more important things for San Rafael's planner to do.

Both Sides Mean Business In Nuclear Disarmament Agreement

WASHINGTON — The peace potential of the Soviet decision for nuclear disarmament talks with the U.S. can hardly be overstated.

It is almost without limit.

President Johnson moved rapidly to carry Moscow's willingness to talk into action. This is not surprising. The initiative to cut back the horrendous stockpile of nuclear weapons has long been the President's. He and former Secretary of Defense McNamara worked on the Russians for nearly two years to try to get negotiations under way.

That they will begin in the near future is, in part, due to LBJ's patience and persuasiveness.

The fresh ingredient, which opens the way to a new relationship between Russia and the United States, is Foreign Minister Gromyko's welcome yes.

This exciting development raises three essential questions:

Is it serious business or a propaganda ploy?

Why did this agreement to talk come now?

What would it mean for the peace of the world?

I AM CONVINCED that both sides are serious, that both sides want arms control and arms reduction and that, after false starts and painful delay, they have at last reached the watershed decision to try.

The U.S. has proved its seriousness by offering specific and practical proposals to cut back the volume of weapons-producing fissionable material and to reduce the manufacture and stockpile of nuclear weapons. The U.S. has never wanted to build a costly, dubious anti-missile missile even after Moscow started to deploy them. Eighteen months ago Johnson began to press Premier Kosygin to discuss how to avoid them.

We mean it and I am convinced that the Soviets mean it. A significant piece of evidence is that in his own latest disarmament proposals Mr. Kosygin outlined a series of meaningful suggestions and played very lightly the unrealistic, propagandistic music which goes — ban the bomb, promise never to use it, and peace will be everywhere.

WHENEVER a country proposes to put the end before the beginning, you can be sure it is not talking seriously about disarmament. Whenever a country wants to promise not to use a nuclear bomb instead of proposing not to build so many, it is not talking seriously about disarmament. Only arms reduction measures which can be inspected and policed can bring disarmament. This is what both sides are now beginning to talk about. That's why the outlook is encouraging.

But why now? Why has Moscow changed its tune from a year and a half ago when it showed no interest in Johnson's plea to discuss how to avoid the anti-missile escalation? Why did the President sieze Gromyko's words so eagerly and say the sooner the better?

GREAT NATIONAL decisions rarely rest on a single leg, but it seems to me likely that the Soviets finally concluded that they couldn't win the competitive missile race with the U.S., that the arms race was proving too costly, and that the uprising of consumer demand in Russia was becoming so great that the Kremlin could no longer safely pour such vast resources into an endless arms escalation.

Most Americans feel the same way and on top of this feeling is the awareness of the government that a higher priority must be given to doing more to meet the nation's explosive social problems.

This, it seems to me, is reason enough why for both sides the time to talk is now.

The road to agreement will probably be slow and difficult. But to begin is a significant achievement in itself. At the end of this road there is faintly visible the potential of the U.S. and Russia acting jointly to guarantee the peace — in Southeast Asia, in Latin America, in Africa. Every argument of intelligent self-interest makes this desirable and ultimately attainable.

A SENATOR'S NOTEBOOK

Lid Should Be Put On Awesome Campaign Cost

By EVERETT McKINLEY DIRKSEN

It is in the American tradition that anyone, no matter how humble his origin, may aspire to the presidency of this great land of opportunity. The inescapable fact exists in 1968, however, that such noble aspiration can be effectively dissuaded unless the candidate has at his disposal a vast personal fortune or is able to attract to his cause supporters who have at their command and are willing to commit to his campaign the large sums of money essential to communicate to the voters of the nation the policies and programs and personal qualifications on which he seeks to be chosen.

Candidates cannot be elected unless they can generate sufficient support, and they do this by attempting to influence public opinion.

There is no substitute for money in a campaign. Consider the essence of a political campaign. It consists of exposure of the candidate at meetings which must be arranged and advertised in newspapers and on radio, television and billboards. None of the advertising is for free.

The candidate's views must be made known. That takes advertising, meetings and literature. It requires organziation and that means staff, travel, telephones, speech writers and other activities. Those are not for free. It takes precinct workers to get out the vote and that isn't for free. Such items have always cost lots of money, but in 1968 the cost is infinitely more because inflation has hiked campaign costs even as it has raised the prices of groceries and clothing.

WHENCE COMES this money: The candidate may have substantial personal means which he is willing to spend. There may be organizations in his corner that are willing to contribute substantial sums. And, finally, there are dedicated individuals who contribute what they can afford.

In the case of senators and congressmen, there is a statutory limit on the amount that may be legally expended for election, but there is no federally imposed limit on expenditures in a primary. In many states a primary nomination is tantamount to election.

The Federal Corrupt Practices Act, enacted in 1925, is still in effect. It imposes a ceiling of $25,000 on expenditures by a Senate candidate, exclusive of literature, travel, telephone, personal expenses and other items, and a $5,000 limit on candidates for the House of Representatives.

THE QUESTION of how political contributions are expended became the essence of the Dodd censure case last year. Out of it came a code of ethics. Singularly enough, senators and congressmen are elected under the same laws in the same elections, but the ethical codes adopted by the two bodies are quite different.

Nowhere in any law is there a limit on what a Presidential candidate can spend on a pre-convention campaign. The sky is the limit. Nor does any law limit expenditures which may be made at the party convention itself.

Public office is a public service and the compensation is never adequately measured in the salary paid to the winner. A candidate should be spared to whatever extent sensibly possible the inordinate and awesome expense of campaigning.

THE MAO REGIME

Is China On Verge Of Stability?

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Red China of Maoism appears to be edging toward a form of military dictatorship which in the long run can bring a measure of political stability.

Reports of burning, killing, looting and rioting continue to pour into Hong Kong from areas of Southeast China. Some of these reports suggest that Red China's army is deliberately avoiding the exercise of control for the time being, as if to permit the storm to spend itself.

If and when it does, Red China should be ready to resume its interrupted but determined march toward the great-power status of a huge nation possessing atomic bombs and nuclear-tipped missiles.

For more than a year now, the same small group of leaders has been in control at the top in Peking, despite the turbulence in the provinces. A ranking security forces leader has predicted publicly that the upheaval called "the great proletarian cultural revolution," which burst upon China early in 1966, would continue until 1969.

China's neighbors still predict disaster for her in the wake of this upheaval. But apart from areas of Kwangsi and Kwangtung Provinces in the southeast and the city of Canton, much of the violence appears to have simmered down.

One indication of confidence among the present small inner circle of China's leaders may come in the form of an announcement that there will be a Ninth Congress of the Communist Party. It would select a new central committee along with its various bodies, including the ruling politburo.

Some sources predict this meeting will be held before next October, so that the new leaders may be shown to the country on National Day, Oct. 1. That is the anniversary of the Communist takeover of 1949. Although party rules theoretically require a congress every five years, there has been none since 1956.

The Soviet Communist Party newspaper, Pravda, recently forecast a serious political crisis for Red China whence, it said, would emerge the structure which would determine the nation's future. Pravda indicated — perhaps wishfully — A Soviet willingness to help those "healthy forces" which it said were struggling against Maoist terrorism.

The Soviet commentator described what has emerged from the cultural revolution as a "military-bureaucratic dictatorship" relying heavily on the support of the People's Liberation Army (PLA) to keep the followers of Chairman Mao Tse-tung in seats of power.

Some of this sort of Soviet comment is inspired by the endless feud going on between Peking and Moscow and by the obvious heavy damage China's attitudes have done to what once was "the world communist movement." Today there is hardly anything left of a "world" movement, and the Russians blame Peking, primarily.

Apart from the bias which obviously influences Soviet comment, there are reasons for speculating that something in the nature of military dictatorship is emerging. The structure of the party as it has been was destroyed in the cultural revolution, along with the party's far-flung bureaucracy.

Today the Maoist leadership is built around Lin Piao, the Defense Minister who bore the title of marshal before he, himself, abolished all military titles in 1965. Many high-ranking leaders once hailed as heroes of the 1949 takeover have been purged beginning with former Marshals Peng Teh-Huai, Peng Chen, Ho Lung, Lo Jui-ching, the once-revered octogenarian warrior Chu Teh and many lesser figures.

What remains of the PLA plays a prominent role in keeping down the foes of the Mao group throughout the provinces of China, practically all of which have been seared by the excesses of the cultural revolution and its hordes of young Red Guards. Today the people are told they must "learn from the PLA." The PLA newspaper, Liberation Army Daily, is a transmission belt for orders to Mao followers throughout the country.

For the record Mao's outstanding foes, men like Liu Shao-chi, the nominal president; Tang Hsiao-ping, the party general secretary; Tao Chu, once No. 4 in the ruling politburo, and perhaps even Peng Chen, the first of the big names to be brought down, remain members of the party's central committee. But all are under house arrest, at the least.

The full fury of the cultural revolution broke May 16, 1966, a day commemorated in Peking this year as the beginning of a new epoch. That was when, under Mao's name, a circular was issued calling his supporters to arms against his political foes. First to fall was the mayor of Peking and politburo power, Peng Chen.

Thereafter China experienced a raging storm. Mao's supporters, spearheaded by reckless teen-age Red Guards, wrought havoc with the structure of the party and government bureaucracy throughout the country. The aim of the Maoists obviously was to break the growing and entrenched power of the party and government bureaucrats whom Mao appeared to see as a threat to continuing revolution.

MAO TSE-TUNG
Leading the way

LIN PIAO
The heir apparent

In June, 1967, the important "name-lists" in the press listed, after Mao, his "close comrade-in-arms," Lin Piao, and then Chen Po-ta, the cultural revolution chief; Kang Sheng, the old-time security expert, Li Fu-Chun, Tung Pi-Wu, Li Hsien-nien, Nieh Jung-chen, Hsieh Fu-chin, the present secret police boss, and Chiang Ching, Mao's actress wife.

Today, all those still remain at the top in places of power, their positions varying only a little from time to time as name — lists appear. Mao's wife seems a sort of ex-officio member of the politburo's central executive, which is the all-powerful inner-politburo. She still seems to wield extraordinary power.

Only one or two of the names which appeared in a long name-list a year ago have disappeared since, suggesting a polarization has taken place which has effectively isolated Mao's forces.

The name of Nieh Jung-chen is important. He has the rank of army marshal and is a nuclear physicist who is in charge of the military side of China's nuclear program.

That program was interrupted several months ago, well after China achieved an explosion of hydrogen bomb years ahead of the time Westerners had thought it possible. A test failure may have had something to do with the long lull in explosions, and political situation also may have played a part.

If that situation has simmered down, Red China can be expected to press forward with the program, whose next step would likely be a long-range nuclear-tipped missile. That would bring China into full membership in the nuclear missile club.

The thought disturbs China's neighbors, including the Soviet Union and India. All along the Soviet border in 1966 and 1967 there had been sporadic violence which the Russians attributed to deliberate Chinese provocations. The Red Chinese claim 600,000 square miles of Soviet territory which they say was wrongly seized by Tsarist Russia under unfair treaties.

India has kept a wary eye on her borders, since the early 1960s when the Red Chineese exerted considerable pressure on the Ladakh area, disputing India's claim to part of that territory.

In some ways, a China in turmoil was more reassuring to her neighbors than a China which has prospects of finding political stability.

Behind The News

A KNOCKOUT VICTORY

DeGaulle, The Secret Poll Weapon

PARIS (UPI)—The French Communist Party called itself democratic and raced out to embrace the voters. The Communists got knocked flat. They do know what hit them—Charles de Gaulle.

"Blackmailer" and "dictator" are two of the more printable words party leader Waldeck Rochet and his comrades are using today to describe the president they had thought they had cornered.

The Communists gambled in May that student street rioting and a 10-million man general strike had finally doomed Gaullism. They joined hands with non-Communist leftwingers and demanded a new parliament, a new government.

Rochet thought he saw what he might have called a rosy fingered dawn rising in France. The day of the left had come.

Francois Mitterrand, chairman of the Leftist Federation, conferred with the Communists and went so far as to announce he was ready to replace De Gaulle as president and run the nation until the Communists and other leftists could organize a new regime.

Rochet announced that his comrades were strictly law-abiding, constitution-loving, non violent-overthrow Reds. Communists to be sure, but with table manners.

Careful not to smudge the new face of Communism, Rochet denounced street violence done by far left anarchist student groups, the naughty boys. Rochet's propaganda machine however backed student-worker demands for sweeping reforms and more pay. Then De Gaulle counterattacked.

He called the elections the Communists said they wanted. And then he blamed the Reds for the woes of France. He told Frenchmen they must chose between himself and "totalitarian dictatorship," -attempts at enslaving Frenchmen under a tyranny." The 77-year-old master politician used more than words in the brief election campaign.

His aides pointed to burning automobiles, flaming Molotov cocktails and flying cobblestones as the handiwork of a subversive drive for power. De Gaulle himself, always a man for the dramatic, suddenly flew from Paris to confer with military commanders. Soon tanks rumbled throughout northern France.

The Communists vainly fought back. Rochet claimed De Gaulle was painting a wrong picture. The Reds beat their chests, shouted their devotion to democracy. We make no plots, they said, we abide by the Constitution. The Communists had to fight a two front political war.

Besides trying to calm the great middle classes, the party got into an eyeball-gouging verbal dustup with extreme leftwing groups which accused Rochet's men of being traitors to the revolution. Political observers said the far left managed to convince many youthful voters that the Communist Party betrayed the cause of the students by its observance of democratic rites.

The reckoning came at the ballot box. The number of Communists in the 487-member National Assembly dropped from 73 to 34.

Juvenile Experts Hopefully See 'Family Courts' As A Solution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's 2,600 juvenile courts, thrown into turmoil by recent Supreme Court decisions, may eventually develop into more efficient, comprehensive "family" courts.

This hope was voiced by an expert in the field, the Rev. Robert F. Drinan, dean of Boston College Law School, at a two-day institute here on "The Changing World of Juvenile Law" sponsored by an American Bar Association.

The speeches and questions by professional people from 30 states, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and Canada revealed that juvenile courts, long the neglected step-children of the American judicial system, are up against a staggering problem.

The more serious include new attitudes toward the delinquent child, the need to afford him certain constitutional protections, a shortage of lawyers to represent him, lack of competent judges and a terrifying increase in juvenile crime.

The kind of family or domestic relations court envisioned by Drinan would treat a wide range of personal problems including divorce, separate maintenance, non-support, adoptions and family offenses. In the course of judging a divorce, the court would be obliged to protect the rights of the couple's children.

Drinan said the ABA's family law section, which arranged the institute, is working toward this goal. He is the immediate past president of the section.

Hawaii recently established a family court system. They also operate in New York and Rhode Island and in some city jurisdictions, notably Detroit and Milwaukee.

The Boston dean rested part of his hope on a model juvenile court law presented by Judge Eugene A. Burdick of the district court in Williston, N.D. The draft will be urged on all state legislatures if it is approved by the ABA's policy-making house of delegates at its annual meeting in Philadelphia next month.

"I hope it is the forerunner of a unified, integrated family court," Drinan said.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark sketches a bleak picture of juvenile crime. Although adult crime probably has not increased in this decade, he said, youthful crime has increased more than 60 per cent. In 1966, adult crime was down 1 per cent and youth crime up 9 per cent.

THIS WEEK In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

On the occasion of the signing of the treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons President Johnson announced the United States and the Soviet Union had agreed to talks on limiting missiles.

Parallel treaty-signing ceremonies were held in Washington, Moscow and London.

The treaty provides that those nations that do not have nuclear weapons will not produce or receive them.

The President described the new agreement:

"Agreement has been reached between the governments of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the United States to enter in the nearest future into discussions on the limitation and the reduction of both offensive and strategic nuclear weapons delivery systems and systems of defense against ballistic missiles," Johnson said.

"Discussion of this most complex subject will not be easy," the President said. "And we have no illusions that it will be."

Johnson had proposed such talks in January, 1967. Five days before the treaty signing, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko announced his government was ready to open talks.

At the Moscow signing, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin offered a nine-point program for disarmament and arms control. The major points were a ban on use of nuclear weapons, an end to manufacture of nuclear weapons and reduction in their stockpile, limitation of missile systems and liquidation of foreign bases.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

Tokyo: A chartered airliner carrying a crew of 17 and 214 American soldiers to Vietnam flew over Soviet territory north of Japan and was forced down by MIGs in the Kurile Islands. The U.S. State Department apologized for the intrusion of Soviet airspace and the plane and passengers were released two days later.

Miami: Two commercial airliners were hijacked within three days and taken to Havana. The two hijackers and one of the pilots remained in Cuba and all the others plus the planes returned to the United States.

New York: A man identified as Angelo Angelof shot a woman to death in a Central Park rest room and wounded three other persons before police shot him to death.

Paris: President Charles de Gaulle's supporters trounced the opposition in the French national election.

Saigon: U.S. jets, including B52 Stratofortresses, staged some of the war's heaviest raids against North Vietnam's southern tip and hit coastal batteries that harass U.S. warships and antiaircraft batteries along and inside the Demilitarized Zone. Allied forces in the Saigon area beat off guerrilla units and uncovered a large Viet Cong cache of rockets and mortar shells.

Stanford — Santa Clara firemen are probing a blaze which caused $200,000 damage yesterday to Stanford University President Wallace Sterling's office. The county fire marshall said the fire was deliberately set.

Berkeley — A week of militant student rioting turned into a peaceful Fourth of July gathering as more than 15,000 danced, sang and made political speeches in contrast to being broken up by tear gas earlier in the week.

Senate Probers May Look Hard At Poor People's Campaigners

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — Serious consideration is being given to a possible Senate investigation of the so-called "poor People's Campaign" whose bedraggled remnants are still plaguing the capital.

Congressional sources credit Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Permanent Investigations Subcommittee, with looking into the advisability of such a probe. Last week his committee made national headlines with sensational disclosures of a Chicago church being used as an arsenal and headquarters by a large ghetto gang whose leaders and members are on the payroll of a project financed with federal antipoverty funds.

Financial and other jolting reverberations of the "poor people's campaign" have been erupting since it ended in a welter of internal disorders and violence including razor and gun fights, robberies, assaults and other crimes, and glaring bungling, mismanagement and failure to pay bills and other obligations.

The latest instances of the latter are:

The local Travelers' Aid Society revealed that in the past week it spent more than $11,000 to provide bus transportation home for inhabitants of "Resurrection City," which was forcibly shut down by the government when its extended permit expired. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference had promised to furnish this transportation but failed to do so.

After persuading a number of campaign women with children to get arrested and jailed by participating in illegal demonstrations on Capitol Hill, on assurances the children would be cared for, SCLC did nothing about them. As a result, they were virtually abandoned. Some 30 of them finally found refuge in a Catholic academy.

A number of Negro women in Washington have organized an emergency committee to care for these children, most of whom need clothes and shoes.

In contrast to these developments, congressional authorities have information that SCLC officials and their families lived in first-class hotels and motels throughout the campaign, bought three trucks and nine automobiles for their private use, and received hundreds of thousands of dollars in contributions for which no accounting has been made.

Congressional investigators are of the opinion that the "poor people's campaign" actually has enriched SCLC coffers by some $250,000.

It is being pointed out that SCLC has failed to fulfill a number of its commitments.

Foremost among them is the pledge to restore the "Resurrection City" site to its original state as part of West Potomac Park. The National Park Service did that at a cost estimated in excess of $50,000.

Estimated total federal outlay during the six weeks' duration of the campaign is around $5 million. Included in these costs are large quantities of food and other supplies, care of the much-publicized "mule train," packing and storing of materials and abandoned personal possessions of the dismantled shantytown, and various emergency measures.

Marijuana Sale Gets Jail Term

Raymond Bruce (Sonny) Edwards, convicted by jury May 24 of selling marijuana, yesterday was given a suspended prison term in Marin Superior Court on condition that he spend six months in county jail.

Judge Thomas F. Keating also placed him on two years' probation.

Edwards, 26, of San Rafael, sold two pounds of marijuana to Marin County Drug Abuse Bureau undercover agents in Novato Jan. 16.

San Rafael Plans Street Repairs

Director Norris Rawles of the San Rafael Department of Public Works announced yesterday that five San Rafael streets will be closed at various times during the next week or two for resurfacing.

He asked public cooperation in parking elsewhere and taking the prescribed detours as they are marked.

The first job will be Tuesday or Wednesday, when traffic from San Anselmo to San Rafael will be detoured into Greenfield Avenue at Ross Valley Drive for three blocks.

The other jobs will be on Chestnut Street from Elizabeth Way to Windsor Avenue; Knight Drive from Rollingwood Drive to Cottonwood Drive; Laurel Place from B Street to Lincoln Avenue, and Wildwood Way.

Do Something Club Has A Big Day

It was a big day for the Do Something members of Marin.

They almost doubled in number. They learned of enough service opportunities to occupy a small army. And they took out a checking account.

Sixty-five Marin teen-agers attended a meeting yesterday at Redwood High School to hear representatives of federal and local agencies speak on opportunities to aid handicapped and underprivileged people through various projects.

Of the 65, reported Do Something co-founder Robert Roth, 50 were new to the month-old organization which already had about 65 members.

"This meeting has been the biggest step for us," he said. "Before it was almost restricted to Redwood people, but it has spread to include the entire county. We had kids from Terra Linda, Tamalpais, Novato — I am just elated. The kids are really enthusiastic about it."

Representatives from Easter Seals, VISTA, Head Start, the Marin Volunteer Bureau and the Family Service Agency of Marin described the activities of these organizations and the opportunities for service they offer.

After an hour of these presentations, the gathering split into two groups to nail down specifics of times and places during the coming weeks.

The checking account was opened at the Wells-Fargo Bank in Greenbrae with contributions totalling $16.63. Roth said the group is trying to raise funds to provide transportation to and from its projects, some of which are in San Francisco.

He said that Do Something is receiving contributions at Post Office Box 73, Kentfield 94904.

He added that Marin residents going on vacation might wish to give the Doers remaining tickets in their Golden Gate Bridge commute book.

A partial list of Do Something activities Monday showed four supervising recreation at the Fillmore YMCA in San Francisco, four helping in the Head Start pre-school program in Novato, eight assisting at Marindale School for handicapped children and five tutoring at the Fillmore Negro Cultural and Historical Society, San Francisco.

Roth and two other graduates from Redwood last month, Gregory Duncan of Ross and Haig Mackey of Belvedere, organized Do Something last month in response to the murder of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Stinson Beach Water Budget Is Altered, Adopted

Stinson Beach County Water District directors have readopted their 1968-69 budget after deleting $500, bringing the new budget total down to $8,875.

The deletion of $500 from the previously approved $7,000 allocation for engineering studies will lower the estimated tax rate by 1 to 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation, according to Mrs. Harriet M. Greene, board secretary.

Directors agreed at a special budget hearing Wednesday night to supplement the $4,685 which would be raised from property taxes with $4,190 from the district's reserve funds to bring the budget total to $8,875, Mrs. Greene said.

The higher budget had been approved by the board at its June 15 meeting.

The Busy World Of Marin's Art Blum

"Marin is my refuge . . . you just have to get away from it all at least one day a week," Arthur L. Blum expounded from his Mill Valley mountain-top home, as he sat sun-bathing on his patio and pouring over a pile of papers.

For Blum, a San Francisco public relations executive and president of Art Blum Public Relations/Advertising, "getting away from it all" is simply doing his think work away from office telephones.

AT THE ART BLUM agency in San Francisco, impromptu "brainstorming" sessions are frequent events whenever a new account or project confronts the public relations firm. Here Blum, seated, and his "right hand man," Stu Mercereau, go over a suggested campaign with helpful comments from the distaff members of the staff.

AT HIS HOME in Mill Valley, public relations and advertising agency chief Art Blum takes time out from his hectic schedule for some fun and games with his wife, Jeanne, and the children. (Photos by Don Arons)

At 45, he is one of those frenetic executives whose energy exhausts even his 25-year-old wife as it drives him through a 14-hour day and then permits him to dance all night.

THIS ENERGY and drive also have been the forces behind Blum's establishment of one of the top public relations firms in Northern California in just a short 10 years.

He just isn't happy if he is not working or thinking about work, and, then in the evening, he just won't stop until the last dog is hung. . . . He has a need to communicate with people, all people" according to Jeanne, his wife, who is expecting a child.

Bubbling with the charm one would expect of a public relations practitioner, one also easily detects in Blum the unabashed aggressiveness of the born salesman.

IN CONVERSATION, Blum is a torrent of ideas, some good, some bad, some slightly disorganized. But the results are a wide range of exploits and activities that generally work out.

The volatile Blum, who has a touch of the showman in him and more than a slight yearn in that direction, is currently engaged in trying to build an authentic reproduction of Sir Francis Drake's ship, The Golden Hind, which he plans to place on public display in Marin County.

Working with Marin County Supervisor and attorney Thomas Storer, Blum's idea, originally, was to purchase an existing replica now in England. Then he discovered it was not in the best of condition, nor totally authentic. So he decided to have as an exact reproduction as possible constructed.

HE ESTIMATES it will be another year or so before the ship will be finished and displayed.

In the meantime, Blum has found himself helping Radio Station KABL bring the boat African Queen, made famous by the film of the same name with Humphrey Bogart and Katharine Hepburn as stars, from Africa to San Francisco. The vessel was restored in Marin County and shown here, first, then taken to San Francisco last weekend.

While there appears to be on Blum's part a preoccupation with boats, "it's all part of the public relations business," he says. For Blum admits to becoming very nervous on the water in anything smaller than the Queen Elizabeth.

ANOTHER creation of the fertile mind of Blum is MacBlum's, San Francisco's famed "Gentleman's Grooming Establishment" just off the financial district. At $7.50 for a haircut (Blum claims his establishment does not cut hair, but styles it), patrons are treated to surroundings and services more elegant than found in almost any beauty salon . . . and his customers are among some of the leading businessmen in the Bay Area.

The show business syndrome is very evident in the Blum personality, which may have something to do with his clinging to a boyhood dream of some day owning his own motion picture house. He has some wild ideas about that, wanting to create an intimate yet luxurious movie palace that "would show family films."

Blum also is an experienced master of ceremonies, whether it's for a banquet, a stage show, radio or television. Wherever a crowd is gathered, it takes little coaxing to get Blum to stand up and speak.

INDEED, HE happily admits that he is in his glory and having the most fun when he is organizing such publicity events as the annual Fisherman's Wharf Crab Cioppino Festival, and the KABL Radio St. Patrick's Day Snake Races, or publicizing such entertainment ventures as the Moscow Circus, Holiday on Ice and the annual Home Furnishings and Decorator Show.

It's not all "songs and dances and snappy patter" for Blum and his agency. He has some serious clients such as a savings and loan association, land developments and professional organizations such as the Northern California Pharmaceutical Association.

"We don't specialize in any one field," Blum declares, "because we feel creative enough to represent almost any type of account, and we have done so, such as political campaigns, consumer products, charities and what not."

A COMPULSIVE worker, Blum is a fanatic on tiny details "because I am not very well organized, myself." He also drives his clients and his own staff.

Not infrequently he will call a president of one of his client

A PROJECT dear to the heart of Art Blum is his hope to bring an exact replica of Sir Francis Drake's ship, the Golden Hind, to Marin County. He has the assistance of Marin County Supervisor Tom Storer, right, and the interest of television-radio personality Hilly Rose, left.

companies at home at 8 or 9 in the evening to discuss a public relations idea.

He thrives on pressure and appears always in a rushed, hectic state. As a result, he is sometimes thought abrupt, considered tough-minded and (to his dismay) disliked by some; but he and his firm are respected by all for their abilities and public relations achievements.

A NATIVE San Franciscan and journalism graduate from San Francisco State College, Blum first developed and operated several neighborhood newspapers in San Francisco. He sold them and traveled in Europe for a year, then returned to San Francisco where he was asked by several people to develop public relations programs.

His entry into the business was more accidental than on purpose, but once in it, he set out to learn everything he could, and profited by every experience, good and bad.

While still a one-room, one secretary office in 1960, Blum's firm was joined by an old friend of 20 years, Stuart Mercereau, whom Blum refers to as "one of the best public relations minds in the country."

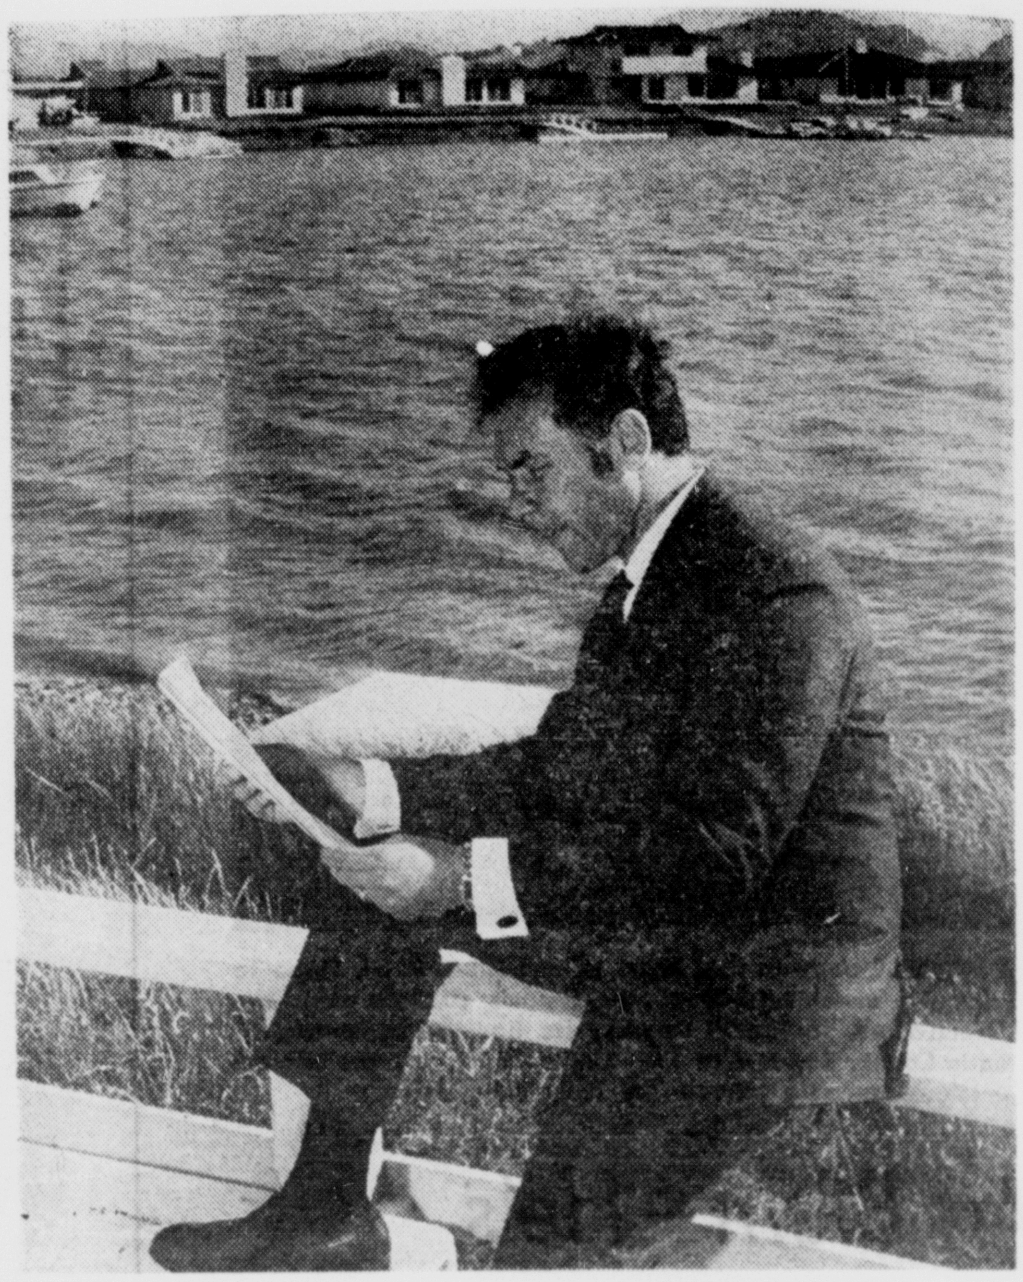
IT'S ART FOR Art's sake, quite literally, as Art Blum maintains MacBlum's Art Gallery and an art rental service in the same quarters where he operates his public relations and advertising firm. Here Blum discusses the price of a gallery painting with sales girl Ann Tyler.



AN INTEREST THAT is currently demanding a great deal of Art Blum's personal attention is his newest account, the Calypso Shores waterside development at Bel Marin Keys. Here Blum visits the site to check his copy against the locale, which is only a 20-minute drive from his Mill Valley home.

IT PROVED an ideal combination. The extroverted salesman, Blum, became the outside man, and, Mercereau, doing much of the planning and the creative thinking worked on the inside.

The two, as a team, complemented each other. Blum, hectic, compulsive and nervous, rattling ideas off the top of his head. Mercereau, a fast, versatile writer whose instinct about public relations, combined with experience, tends to make most everything he does look easy, often acting as a restraining influence on Blum.

Both men have several things in common, however, including keen pride in their abilities and an extreme identification with the client. This often results in the two of them entering into hot and heavy debates behind closed doors over public relations programs and approaches, the way

STILL ANOTHER Art Blum project is MacWade's Coiffures des Dames. Blum says that dealing with the fairer sex who patronize the hair-styling emporium "is literally the most monumental challenge I've faced yet." Here he chats with KPIX-TV personality Pat Collins, who is receiving the attention of hair stylist Carol Kost.

Art Blum Seldom Relaxes From Frantic Pace He Sets For Office

EVEN WHEN HE is entertaining at home, he can't keep his mind off business. So here Art Blum and Fred Reeve use the telephone from the deck of the Blum home to check into an angle in the restoration of the African Queen. Reeve owns the boat of movie fame.

THERE COMES A time when even the busiest man must pause and think. For Art Blum that time comes at dusk when he can sit on the deck of his mountain home and look out over wooded slopes, reviewing the day that is passing and planning for the days ahead.

a story should be written or a brochure created.

BLUM IS quick to credit much of his success to his attractive, brunette English office manager "who knows more about the fiscal matters of my office than I do."

He refers to Janis Nash, who somehow manages to know about everything that is going on in the office and can take care of any situation. In addition, she is an excellent advertising copy writer and layout artist, although she frankly admits she prefers no longer to be involved in those areas of communications.

To many people, it appears that Blum's business is his life, his major interest and his hobby. But those close to Blum say that his preoccupation is with people and that his public relations firm is the medium which allows him to meet and become close friends with a wide variety of persons from all different walks of life including personalities like Danny Thomas and George Liberace; financiers like the Kidwells of Eureka Federal; merchandisers such as Andrew Katten of Cost Plus and Cyril Magnin, and many others.

BLUM AND his wife love to entertain, and he enjoys escaping to professional sporting events with his 12-year-old son, Russell. Indeed, Blum's primary concern is really with his wife and his three children from a previous marriage, but it is a very private world. Jeanne has a daughter by a prior marriage.

If Blum has any other interests outside of his family and business, it must be travel, for he is an ardent tourist. He will escape with his wife to out of the way places to read, bask in the sun and explore quaint shops and restaurants, when his weekends permit. And, every so often, when the pressures of work and his own energy begin to take their toll, he will take time off to travel abroad.

However, it is only in the past two years that he has disciplined himself not to think of business when on a vacation.

ANIMAL - LOVERS

Professor Twill And His Creator

By DON KEOWN

Professor T. A. Twill, O.B., D.C., B.D., N.T., was born in Sausalito, reared in Mexico and then returned to Marin County to spend his adult years — when not traveling.

So reports the professor's creator, Bob Gumpertz, graphic artist and cartoonist and himself a Sausalito resident.

Gumpertz explains the thumbnail biography of Professor Twill thusly:

"I WROTE 'Professor Twill's Travels' in Sausalito one long afternoon in 1963. I carried him to Mexico with me, and there I rewrote the story several times while living in San Miguel de Allende. Eventually I finished designing the rough book and submitted it for publication in 1967."

By then, Gumpertz was back in Sausalito.

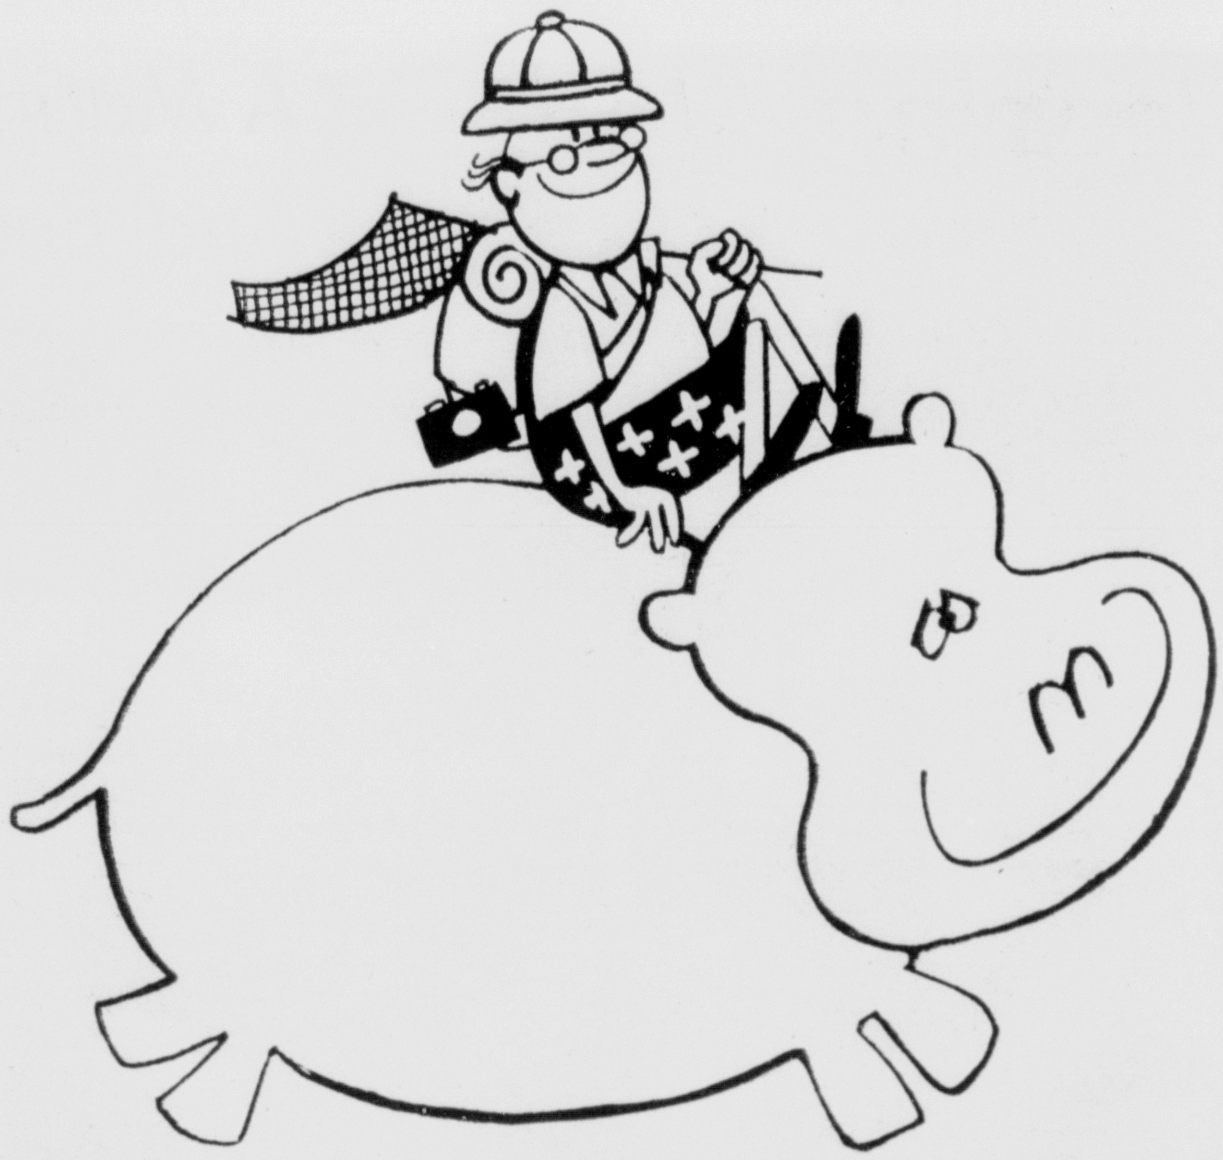
"Professor Twill's Travels" represents his first book for children, although his "The International Dog," a novelty collection of cartoons for adults, appeared in paperback earlier this year.

With Houghton Mifflin as his publisher, Gumpertz has crashed the hardcover ranks with "Professor Twill's Travels" ($3.50).

JOINING THE unpredictable professor, who "roams the world over to look for new pets," is a zany and colorful cast of animals ranging from autograph-hunting lions to a waltzing walrus.

Once back home with his new friends, Professor Twill encounters housing problems, but arrives at an ingenious solution.

The story, told in catchy rhyme, may have something of the feeling of the Dr. Dolittle tales that have attained great popularity since Gumpertz worked out the first draft of his own story. But Gumpertz' art is distinctly his own, loaded with humor and fun. It has been reproduced in four colors.



PROFESSOR TWILL, the hero of "Professor Twill's Travels," the new children's book by Sausalito's Bob Gumpertz, is not only a confirmed traveler, but also a student and lover of animals. But his tastes run to the more exotic pets, such as this rotund hippo.

THE CREATOR describes T. A. Twill as "a professor of zoology, biology, oceanography, gastronomy and a few other things who suffers from a common disease caused by train whistles, ships' horns and warm breezes, a sickness called wanderlust."

And Gumpertz admits that there is undoubtedly something of himself in the character he has created.

"I'd love to be able to hop from Tasmania to Bangkok, and I do love animals. I wish I had room for some exotic beasts of my own, although Sebastian Intrepid, my Irish setter, might be considered exotic, since we hold long conversations, and he is learning to play chess."

THE FUN-LOVING Gumpertz is a native of Southern California. He attended California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland. A Marin resident for 10 years, he has worked in the graphic arts, animated films and television in San Francisco and in New York.

His cartoons have been published in Punch, Playboy and the Saturday Review.

At present he is a freelancer with a studio in North Beach in San Francisco. And there, resisting as best he can the call of train whistles and ships' horns, he plans to produce more books in the future including, possibly, some further adventures of Professor Twill who must be feeling the wanderlust urge again himself.

LIKE THE CHARACTER he has created in his book, Bob Gumpertz is also a friend of animals, up to and including this jaguar, Tirza, who is a Corte Madera resident.

Sleeping Under The Stars On The Patio

Outdoor Bedrooms Are Newest Thing Among Smart Marinites

There's a new fad in California — sleeping under the stars in outdoor bedrooms.

And it is making itself felt in Marin.

It is not really surprising, given Californians' passion for outdoor living and the benign climate, that they should decide to get night-time service from their sheltered patios by using them as healthful, relaxing open air sleeping areas.

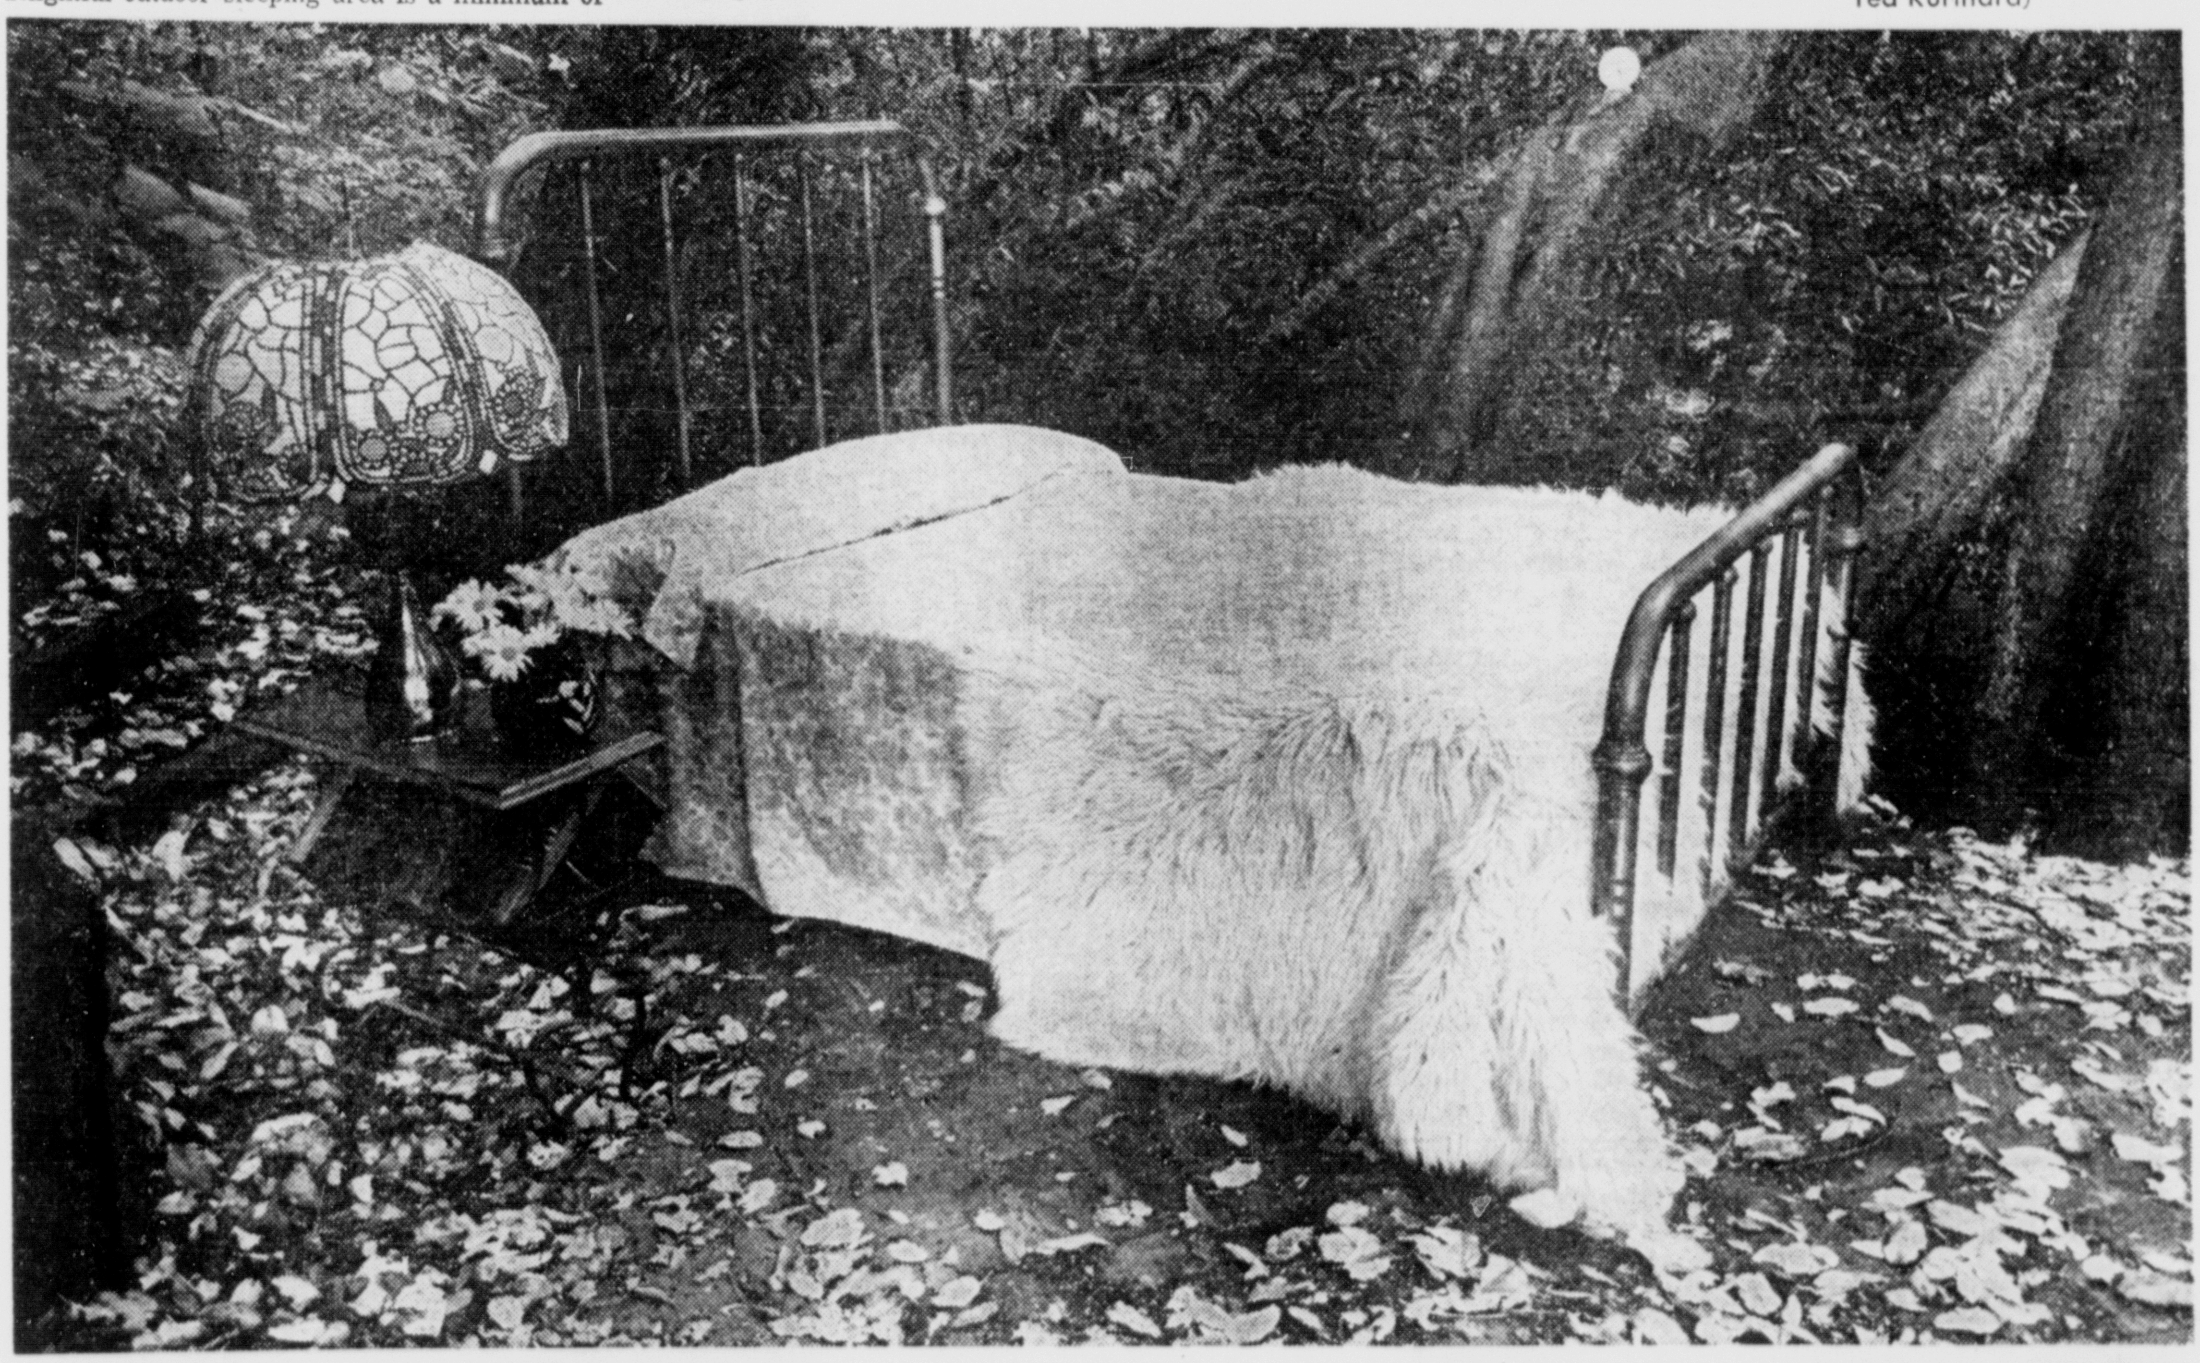
With some home owners, the outdoor bedroom furniture sticks to the more traditional forms. But with others, imagination runs riot.

All it really takes to convert a patio into a delightful outdoor sleeping area is a minimum of carpentry and a lot of imagination. A wooden platform 72 inches wide and 84 inches long will serve as a base for a generous king-size mattress that will sleep two adults comfortably. Overhead beams can support a canvas canopy that pulls out to protect the area in inclement weather. Ample pillows, books and accessories complete the sleep and relaxation center.

The westerner's inclination to move out into the wide open spaces is apparently still with us. And it's as strong after dark as it is during the daylight hours.

COVER PHOTO

THE SUNNY patio of the retreat of designer Roger Somers on wooded Mount Tamalpais has been converted into a delightful year-around sleeping and relaxing area with the addition of a king-size mattress on an extended platform. A canvas awning pulls out to shade the bed from rain and wind, and a hand-loomed Grecian throw rug adds a handsome, rugged touch. Such outdoor bedrooms are very much "in" among westerners these days. (Photos by Ted Kurihara)



YOUNG MARRIEDS Mike and Tanya McCurry of Mill Valley now regard the patio of their home on a wooded hilltop as their favorite sleeping place. The treasured old-fashioned brass bedstead belonging to Mike was made to fit his six-foot two-inch frame by reassembling it around a queen-size mattress and springs. The trunk of a nearby tree provides a handy receptacle for the alarm clock. A temporary canvas cover protects the bed from rain, but Mike is at work on a permanent canopy.

MARIN CLEANERS Phone 454-4792 — Member N.I.D. of San Rafael, Bel Aire & Fairfax

"Can A Coffee Stain Be Removed From Felt?"

Your daughter's felt skirt is in real trouble. Remember, felt is not a woven fabric. It is matted. A coffee stain is almost impossible to remove from felt. The mechanical action necessary to remove the spot will put a hole in the felt. Water on the spot will cause the dye to bleed, especially where there are two different colors in the same skirt, as in your daughter's. Further, felt tends to shrink in any cleaning process.

You have an additional problem, in that the coffee stain probably contains cream and sugar, making the stain even more difficult to remove than a stain of "black" coffee. I'm afraid in the case of your daughter's felt skirt, the coffee stain is there to stay.

A History Of Nicasio

Peaceful Valley Village Once Aspired To Be The County Seat

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

A family driving through the quaint and picturesque village of Nicasio on a Sunday afternoon cannot visualize that this community aspired at one time to be the county seat.

It considered itself to be the geographical center of Marin, and the land barons there were shipping herds of cattle and thousands of feet of lumber to San Francisco and other coastal ports.

The long-time residents of Nicasio maintain that the large square in the center of the village was established for county buildings, including the courthouse. By a slim vote the proponents for the county seat at Nicasio lost out. Of course, there was the cry of outside influence on the vote.

The square is shown on the detailed map compiled by Hiram Austin, county surveyor, and drawn by Flora Whitney in 1873.

THE HISTORY OF the Nicasio grant is long and involved.

It was Don Timoteo Murphy, Indian agent, who applied for the grant of 20 square leagues for those natives of Marin who had been dispersed from Mission San Rafael Arcangel when it was secularized by the Mexican government. The grant requested extended from the lands of Don Timoteo Murphy himself, later the property of Don Timoteo's nephew, John Lucas, and his wife, Maria, along the shore of Tomales Bay.

The land was granted to the Indians by the Mexican governor, Jose Figueroa, on March 13, 1835.

DESPITE THE FACT, the land had been granted earlier to the Indians, Gov. Manuel Micheltorena granted 16 square leagues of Nicasio to Pablo de la Guerra and Juan B. R. Cooper in 1844. Cooper was a brother-in-law of Gen. Mariano G. Vallejo, while De la Guerra had been administrator of the custom house at Monterey. Evidently the grant was made to recompense them for their services.

However, grantees of land were expected to make improvements on it and there is no evidence that Cooper or De La Guerra did. An interesting footnote is that the United States Land Commission, appointed to review land grants after California was admitted to statehood in 1850, considered the 1835 grant made to the Indians and rejected that claim Sept. 25, 1855. Another defeat for the hapless redmen.

Many of the Indians moved to the shore of Tomales Bay, which, at that time, the white people did not consider valuable.

NICASIO VALLEY was rich land and the hills were covered with redwoods, oaks and many other trees.

The original grant was divided into large parcels of land. One of the owners was Jasper O'Farrell, the pioneer surveyor who laid out the boundaries of land grants for both Mexican and American authorities.

O'Farrell, who was born in Dublin, Ireland, in 1817, was a member of an English surveying expedition to South America. He came to Yerba Buena (San Francisco) on a United States coast survey ship Oct. 20, 1843. In 1846 he was granted a large parcel of land in Nicasio. About two years later he exchanged the Nicasio property for Rancho Canada de Jonive in Sonoma, which had been granted to the Scotsman, James Black.

BLACK'S HOUSE was one of the first substantial structures erected in Nicasio. His land extended to Tomales Bay. He had vast herds of cattle which he and his vaqueros drove along the trail, which was located about where the Lucas Valley Road lies today, and north to the gold fields. Fresh meat was at a premium there and Black soon became a wealthy man.

Other holders of large parcels of Nicasio land were Benjamin Rush Buckelew, who died when young and could not capitalize on his investment; William J. Miller, a real estate man, whose parents were Marin pioneers; and Henry Wagner Halleck, who owned more than 50,000 acres.

A graduate of West Point, Halleck was with the military in California. He resigned his commission to become a member of the law firm of Halleck, Peachey and Billings in San Francisco. Later he rejoined the army, became a general in the Civil War and was considered the highest-ranking Union military authority in Washington.

AFTER THE war he returned to Marin, and the Marin County Journal issue of April 17, 1869, reported: "General Halleck is at present rusticating in San Rafael."

Gradually the large parcels of land were divided.

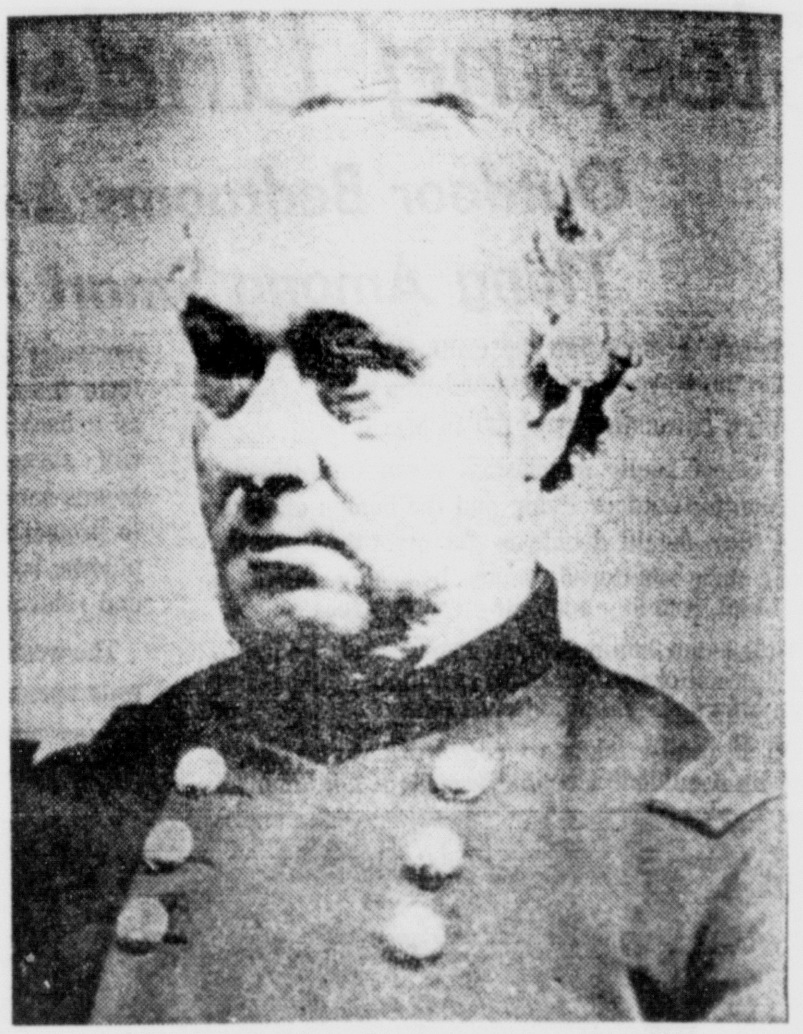
Two brothers, Hiram and Noah Corey, came to Nicasio Valley in 1852. Noah's house stood where the Nicasio Hotel was built later by William Miller. The brothers had a sawmill.

Soon other sawmills were in operation cutting the gigantic redwoods and massive oaks. Some lumber was used locally, but most of it was hauled by oxen to Novato or Ross Landing for shipment to San Francisco or other coastal ports.

JAMES DIXON and James Ross built their sawmill in 1862. It had a capacity of 15,000 feet of lumber a day. The mill was run until 1865 when Dixon bought the Ross interest and moved the machinery to the vicinity of Fort Ross in Sonoma County.

Dixon was a popular and handsome man, and was well acquainted with many of the large landholders in the area. He was a close friend of John Lucas and his wife, Maria. In fact it was their daughter, the late Maria (Dotie) Lucas, who gave me Dixon's picture.

I am giving this detail because Francis Rodgers, who now lives in San Rafael, as do his brother, John, and his sister, Mrs. Alice Treanor, loaned me several legal documents. One of these was a deed of land from James Dixon to Francis' grandfather, Frank Rodgers, dated April 14, 1866. It was for 1,497.51 acres of the "southwest portion of the John Lucas ranch bordering on the White ranch."



ONE OF THE most colorful of the large pioneer land-owners in the Nicasio Valley was Henry W. Halleck, who won fame in American history books as an Army general for the Union cause in the Civil War.

ANOTHER LEGAL document, dated Nov. 2, 1866, signed by James Dixon, John and Maria Lucas, transferred title to Frank Rodgers for $5,590. The description of the land is long and involved because of early surveys, but some landmarks are easily recognized.

The deed mentions a small creek on the exterior boundary of Rancho San Pedro, Santa Margarita y Las Gallinas (the land grant to Don Timoteo) as the line from Big Rock "along Lucas' graded road into Nicasio Valley."

For many years the Big Rock Ranch at the top of the hill on the Lucas Valley Road was well known. Next to it was a ranch known by the fascinating name of Bull Tail. Close to that was the Rodgers ranch.

ISAAC SHAVER and Jonathan Mitchner also had a sawmill at Nicasio. It turned out 20,000 feet of lumber a day. The mill was operated in Nicasio until 1872 when the partnership was dissolved. Shaver brought the machinery to San Rafael and for years had a lumber and planing mill at the southern part of Shaver Street.

Shaver built many houses in San Rafael and many of these are standing today. They are substantial structures with large rooms; some are two-story dwellings.

Facing the square in the center of the village in Nicasio is Our Lady of Loretto Church, a Catholic church established in 1867. It is maintained as a mission of St. Cecilia's Catholic Church in Lagunitas.

THE CHURCH was first connected with the Petaluma parish, with one priest going from one community to another to say mass, and officiate at marriages, baptisms and funerals.

Prosperous dairy ranches, with herds of sleek cattle, grazed on the hillsides and in the meadows.

Nicasio also had its village blacksmith. The first one was Thomas Ward, who like his counterpart immortalized in verse, had his forge and anvil under the shade of a huge tree. There he worked until the rains came, when he moved his forge and anvil into a shed.

William J. Miller built a large hotel, luxuriously furnished for that era, on the side of the village square. It was completed in June of 1867.

IT WAS AN imposing three-story structure with 22 rooms for hotel guests, a large dining room, kitchen, parlor and bar. Immediately the hotel became the center of social life for the people of Nicasio and their neighbors.

The Marin County Journal, in an issue in 1871, stated: "Ball at Nicasio — H. Mellen, the worthy host at the Nicasio Hotel advertises a ball to be at that place, Tuesday evening, April 14, at which all the elite of the vicinity are expected — Mr. Mellen's reputation in matters of this kind is a sufficient guarantee that the affair will prove a success."

Peaceful, Picturesque Nicasio Has A History

The Nicasio post office was established April 13, 1870, and Hiram Taft was the first postmaster. He also was the Wells Fargo agent.

In 1880 the town had a general merchandise store, meat market, hotel, boarding house and livery stable. There were two school districts in the township.

ONE OF THE best-known families in Nicasio was that of Neil McIsaac.

McIsaac, a native of Nova Scotia, came to the United States when young. He served four years in the Union Army during the Civil War and after that came to California and Marin County. He had a large dairy ranch in Nicasio and had a ready market for the large amount of butter he manufactured.

Mr. and Mrs. McIsaac had six children, John; Hugh J. McIsaac, who served as Marin County district attorney; Flora, who taught school and was a member of the county board of education; Evelyn; Donald and Mary.

HUGH McISAAC attended public school and entered St. Mary's College from which he was graduated in 1896. He read law in the office of a prominent jurist and took a course of lectures in the law department of the University of California. He was admitted to the bar in 1897. He was elected district attorney Nov. 8, 1898.

Many of the Nicasio pioneers and their children have disappeared from the local scene. Others have descendants living in various parts of California. Among these is the Redding family.

Joseph L. Redding and his wife were reared and married in Nicasio. Mrs. Redding, the former Ellen Murray, was the daughter of Cornelius Murray, who had come to Nicasio in 1859 and had a large ranch there. Mrs. Redding was born on the ranch and the Reddings were neighbors.

JOSEPH L. Redding's father, William Charles Redding, came to California, around Cape Horn, in 1849. He engaged in gold mining for a few years and then came to Marin County. He had a large ranch in Nicasio.

Another pioneer who first tried his luck in the gold mines was Richard B. Magee. He came to California on the ship, Cordova. He mined for gold only seven months and then came to Nicasio where he and his wife had a 400-acre ranch. In their comfortable home they reared two sons and two daughters.

Frank Rodgers, mentioned earlier in this article as having bought a Nicasio ranch in 1866, was born in Vermont in 1830. His wife, the former Mary Byrne, was a native of Ireland. He had come around Cape Horn to California, while she came to San Francisco via the Isthmus of Panama.

MR. AND MRS. Rodgers were married in San Francisco Nov. 1, 1858. They had six children. One of these was Frank Edward Rodgers, father of Francis and John Rodgers, Mrs. Alice Treanor, and the late Arthur Rodgers. Their mother's maiden name was Caroline Scott.

After Frank E. Rodgers and his wife were married in 1900, they moved to the village of Nicasio. For more than 30 years he had a general store on the west side of the square. The Rodgers' house, which still stands, was just across the road and on the same side as the store.

Francis Rodgers recalls his boyhood in Nicasio. He says that on Saturday nights there were always balls and dances at the hotel.

ONE OF THE people he tells of is Jim Sam. This small Chinese was a waif in San Francisco's Chinatown when some young Nicasio men brought him to Nicasio. He grew up on the ranches. One of these was the McIsaac ranch. He learned to ride horseback and to rope cattle, becoming an expert rider and a full-fledged cowpuncher. He later became a jockey and rode horses in the Pacheco Ranch track.

Jim Sam was in later years a cook at the Nicasio Hotel where he prepared marvelous dinners. For recreation he played cards with his "boys."

Like many of his race, he excelled with the pasteboards. Stakes were high at the gambling tables and Jim Sam generally had the biggest pile of poker chips.

BUT IT WAS the deep affection which the people had for Jim Sam which became a legend. He loved children and they adored him. He always had candy in his pockets for the youngsters.

The whole village grieved when Jim Sam died in November of 1926. He was buried in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery in San Rafael and floral wreaths covered his grave.

Nicasio was a real Wild West town. Gamblers stayed at the hotel, as did the "drummers." They were joined by the hunters, who came from San Francisco to shoot deer and quail, which abounded in the area.

Francis Rodgers says that when illness, which could not be cured by household remedies, struck, the doctor at Point Reyes Station was called. He came as fast as he could, but in winter heavy rains fell and the good medico had to ford the swollen creek.

AFTER THE railroad, the North Pacific Coast, later the North Shore, was built from Sausalito to Tomales in 1875, a station was established at San Geronimo. Stages from Nicasio would meet the trains.

Gone now are the stages and the hotel, which was destroyed by fire. Also a victim of flames was the general merchandise store which had been owned by Frank Rodgers. It was at the height of a storm on Dec. 8, 1952, that the landmark was lost. In the howling wind and torrential downpour, 28 men battled the flames without success. Roads had been washed out by the rain and this hampered the fire trucks that were rushed to Nicasio.

Many deplored the action when the Nicasio Dam was built and much valuable ranch land was put under the water of the huge lake. But this also became an asset. One of the most scenic drives in the county is now along the lake.

NICASIO HAS retained its rural atmosphere and natural beauty. City dwellers have large estates in the redwoods and horseback riders come from their homes to the village. On Sundays and during the summer months the little community looks much like a frontier town as seen in the movies.

The riders wear brightly colored blouses and generally blue jeans. The women often have red bandanas over their hair. After resting in the village, the riders canter off to the trails in the hills, and through Lucas Valley where the land barons had driven their herds of cattle and sent their oxen-drawn teams with loads of lumber to the bay.

That era is now gone forever, but a younger generation, many descendants of pioneers, still enjoy life on the ranches.

AN INTERESTING addition to the story of Nicasio is the article published Jan. 1, 1886, in the Marin County Tocsin written by James Wilkins, owner and publisher of the paper.

It said: "We have already had something to say of this most attractive spot of Marin, the Nicasio Valley. Visit it once and the visit will be renewed. The climate is equivalent to the new grade of butter — gilt edge. The scenery, without being startling, is, in a soft, quiet way, the ideal of the picturesque.

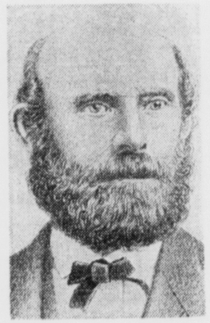
"Here, also, is one of the thoroughly well-appointed country hotels in the state. It was built at a time Nicasio had aspirations for being the county seat, and was constructed with a view to accommodating the great influx of population that such an event might reasonably be expected to superinduce. It is now conducted by Mr. Hugh Walker, who recently furnished it, regardless of cost, and is managing it on first class principles as to style and bed-rock principles as to charges.

"NICASIO OFFERS to the tourist, besides scenery and climate, unlimited trout fishing, quail and deer hunting, fine drives and everything dear to the sportsman's heart. As to the good people thereabouts, we have already had our say.

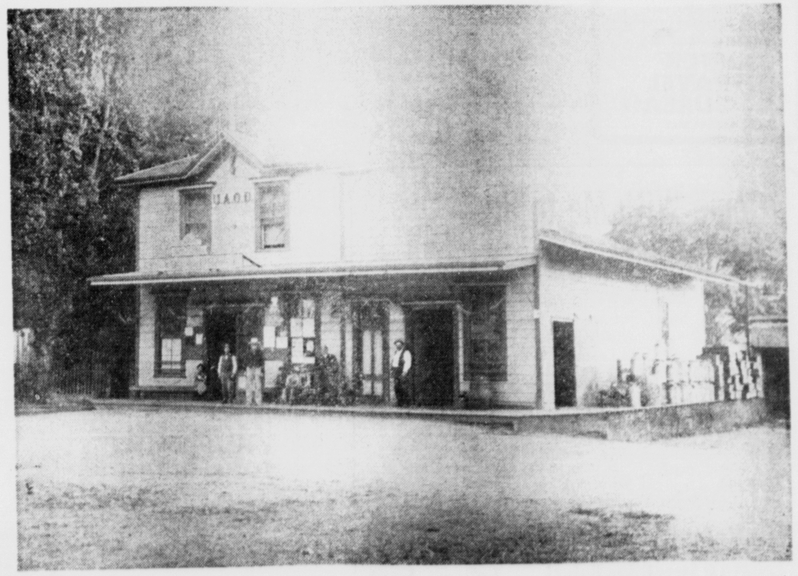
"In the dim future we hope to settle down and end our days in the picturesque valley of Nicasio and among those truly great farmers — and farmeresses — in whose heart there is no guile."

THE WOODEN FRAME grammar schoolhouse that has served the Nicasio Valley since 1871 is one of the area's landmarks. Its gingerbread is typical of the picturesque structures of the community.

BUILT IN 1867 by William J. Miller, the large and luxurious Nicasio Hotel was for many years the social center for life in the Nicasio Valley. It was destroyed by fire after long service to the community.



AMONG THE pioneer settlers of the Nicasio Valley was Richard B. Magee, above, who came from the California gold fields to a Nicasio ranch where he and his wife reared a family of two sons and two daughters.



LONG A KEY commercial and social meeting place for Nicasio residents and visiting sportsmen was the general merchandise store operated for 30 years by Frank Edward Rodgers. Like the nearby Nicasio Hotel, it was razed by fire. The photograph is from the Rodgers family.

Glacier Park Is For The Family

The Travel Page

Western Wonderland Has Something For Everyone

Sky-high Glacier Park, in northwest Montana, often called the "Crown of the Continent," offers a million acres of nature, rest and recreation to families seeking a different vacation.

It isn't just mountains, although their quiet force and constantly changing beauty capture the eye and penetrate the soul. Raw nature can prove too rich a tonic.

For those who wish to take it in smaller spoonfuls, alternating with civilization, there are both luxury hotels and moderately priced accommodations where humanity can reassert itself.

GLACIER CAN be both a together place and a solitary place. Most families need a little of both.

For mother, it's a garden, to be enjoyed alone or on a family nature hike.

It's a garden which tends itself, unmowed, unclipped, watered by melting glacial ice and natural springs. As winter's snow recedes, the mountain meadows burst with color. Yellow glacier lilies, mountain orchids, foliage in all shades of red, white, pink, purple, blue and gold carpet the green valleys.

AFTER A mountain ramble, all food tastes better. A camping family can enjoy an open air dinner by a mountain lake, with murmurous waters and wind in the pines for background music.

For those who would alter their pace, Glacier's hotels offer sophisticated cuisine, cocktail lounges and evening programs put on by the student summer staff. Mothers are especially pleased to learn that the student staff members are also good baby sitters and available during their off-duty hours.

After paying the nominal entrance fee for car and trailer, or displaying the $7 federal conservation sticker which admits travelers to all national parks, father is on his own.

HE CAN TEST his angler's luck on whitefish, salmon, trout, pike and grayling in the lower lakes. (The higher lakes and streams are too cold and swift, even for fish.) No fishing license is required.

He can golf, swim or loaf for a day or a week. Hunting is allowed only with a camera, but there are spectacular shots of mountain, valley, sky and wildlife at every turn in the road.

If the family would rather look than drive, there are two to five-day tours available from Glacier Park Inc., which provide red, open-top buses between park sites. The tours allow time to stop over at any point for an overnight pack trip, an afternoon hike or a morning of sleeping in. There's no hurry, no pushing and no crowds.

THE MILLION plus visitors expected this year, even if they all arrived the same day, would still each have an acre of ground apiece.

The park season lasts till about Oct. 15, or whenever snow closes the roads. Tours and hotel accommodations are available in the park through Sept. 9.

Overnight camping is allowed only in designated areas, all of which have fireplaces, tables and sanitary facilities. Most have running water. They are operated on a first-come, first-served basis, and there is no charge.

BOATS ARE available for rent and there are launch trips on the larger lakes.

The 1,000 miles of trails in Glacier provide exercise and breathing room for everyone.

Boys in the scientific collection phase can find rocks from every stage of America's development along the trails. A hike on an actual glacier and an awesome look into a crevasse are thrills at any age.

For the younger children the sight of wild animals and real, live Indians (the park was formerly a Blackfeet Indian hunting ground and this tribe still lives on the park's eastern border), will be the basis of many a tall tale and (perhaps) a more subdued school report. There are no "keep off the grass" signs to hobble questing feet.

THE TEEN-AGE daughter can develop her tan in a refreshing alpine setting, away from her usual hurried tempo. Since Glacier National Park and Canada's Waterton Lakes Park share the same border, she can thrill stay-at-home friends with exotic gifts from foreign shops.

The calm of the everlasting mountains, seen from a western saddle, away from hot rods and television, give a young man a chance to hear himself think. An overnight pack trip with some morning fishing thrown in, provides a complementary combination of excitement and healthy rest for a teen-age son.

The vastness of Glacier will clear his head and deliver a double-barrelled challenge . . . one to his spirit; the other to his muscles.

A FAMILY vacation in Glacier Park offers everyone a chance for refreshment, rest and renewal. Pursuing different trails allows each member to return with a discovery, and enjoy it doubly in the telling.

Glacier will then become not just a place once visited, but a part of family history.

Car-Sick Child, And What To Do About Him

Leaving level terrain behind, you look happily at the scenic hills.

Suddenly your mood turns sour. You have a car-sick child on your hands.

What to do? Stop the car, advises the National Automobile Club, and let your child out for a 15-minute breather. Encourage him to take a short walk if he feels up to it.

See that your child gets in the front seat before proceeding to the nearest town. Look for a drugstore so that you can buy a motion sickness medicine, but remember that children swallow the liquid kind easiest.

Don't resume your trip until you've waited for another 15 minutes. With your child again in the front seat, take the remaining hills and curves at a slower pace.

Canadians Can Count 727 Falls

There are 727 waterfalls in Canada, according to a new list compiled by the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

More than a third — 288 to be exact — are in the province of Ontario.

The most famous of all, of course, is Niagara Falls, and the list also includes Horseshoe Falls one longitudinal minute away.

ALTOGETHER there are four Horseshoe Falls in Canada: two in Ontario, one in Alberta and one in British Columbia.

The Horseshoe Falls at Niagara is 162 feet high —a mere trickle compared to Della Falls in British Columbia, which measures 1,443 feet and is Canada's highest.

Naturally, mountainous British Columbia has the highest waterfalls. Hunlen Falls at 1,300 feet and Takakkaw Falls at 1,248 feet easily out-fall all falls in other provinces of Canada.

THE WATERFALL on the back of the Canadian five-dollar bill is Otter Falls in the Yukon, but the Travel Bureau lists it as really only a rapid.

Canada has several Great, Grand, Big, Little and Lower falls, one Bad one and even a Bloody one.

There are Square Falls and Crooked Falls, Burnt, Broken and Ragged Falls, Winding Falls and several Reversing Falls. There are Silver, White, Brown and Vermillion Falls, Glassy Falls, Crystal Falls, Gravel, Granite and Marble Falls, Iron Falls and Wood falls.

THERE ARE Singing Falls, Talking Falls, Laughing and Howling Falls in Canada.

The province of Quebec has both the Chute Devil and the Chute du Diable, and British Columbia has the Angels' Staircase Falls as well as the Lord Waterfall.

Girls' names abound, from Alexandra to Virginia, and family names include Jones Falls, Smith Falls and Schwartzenback Falls. Two provinces, British Columbia and Manitoba, have Seven Sisters Falls, and both British Columbia and Ontario have Bridal Veil Falls.

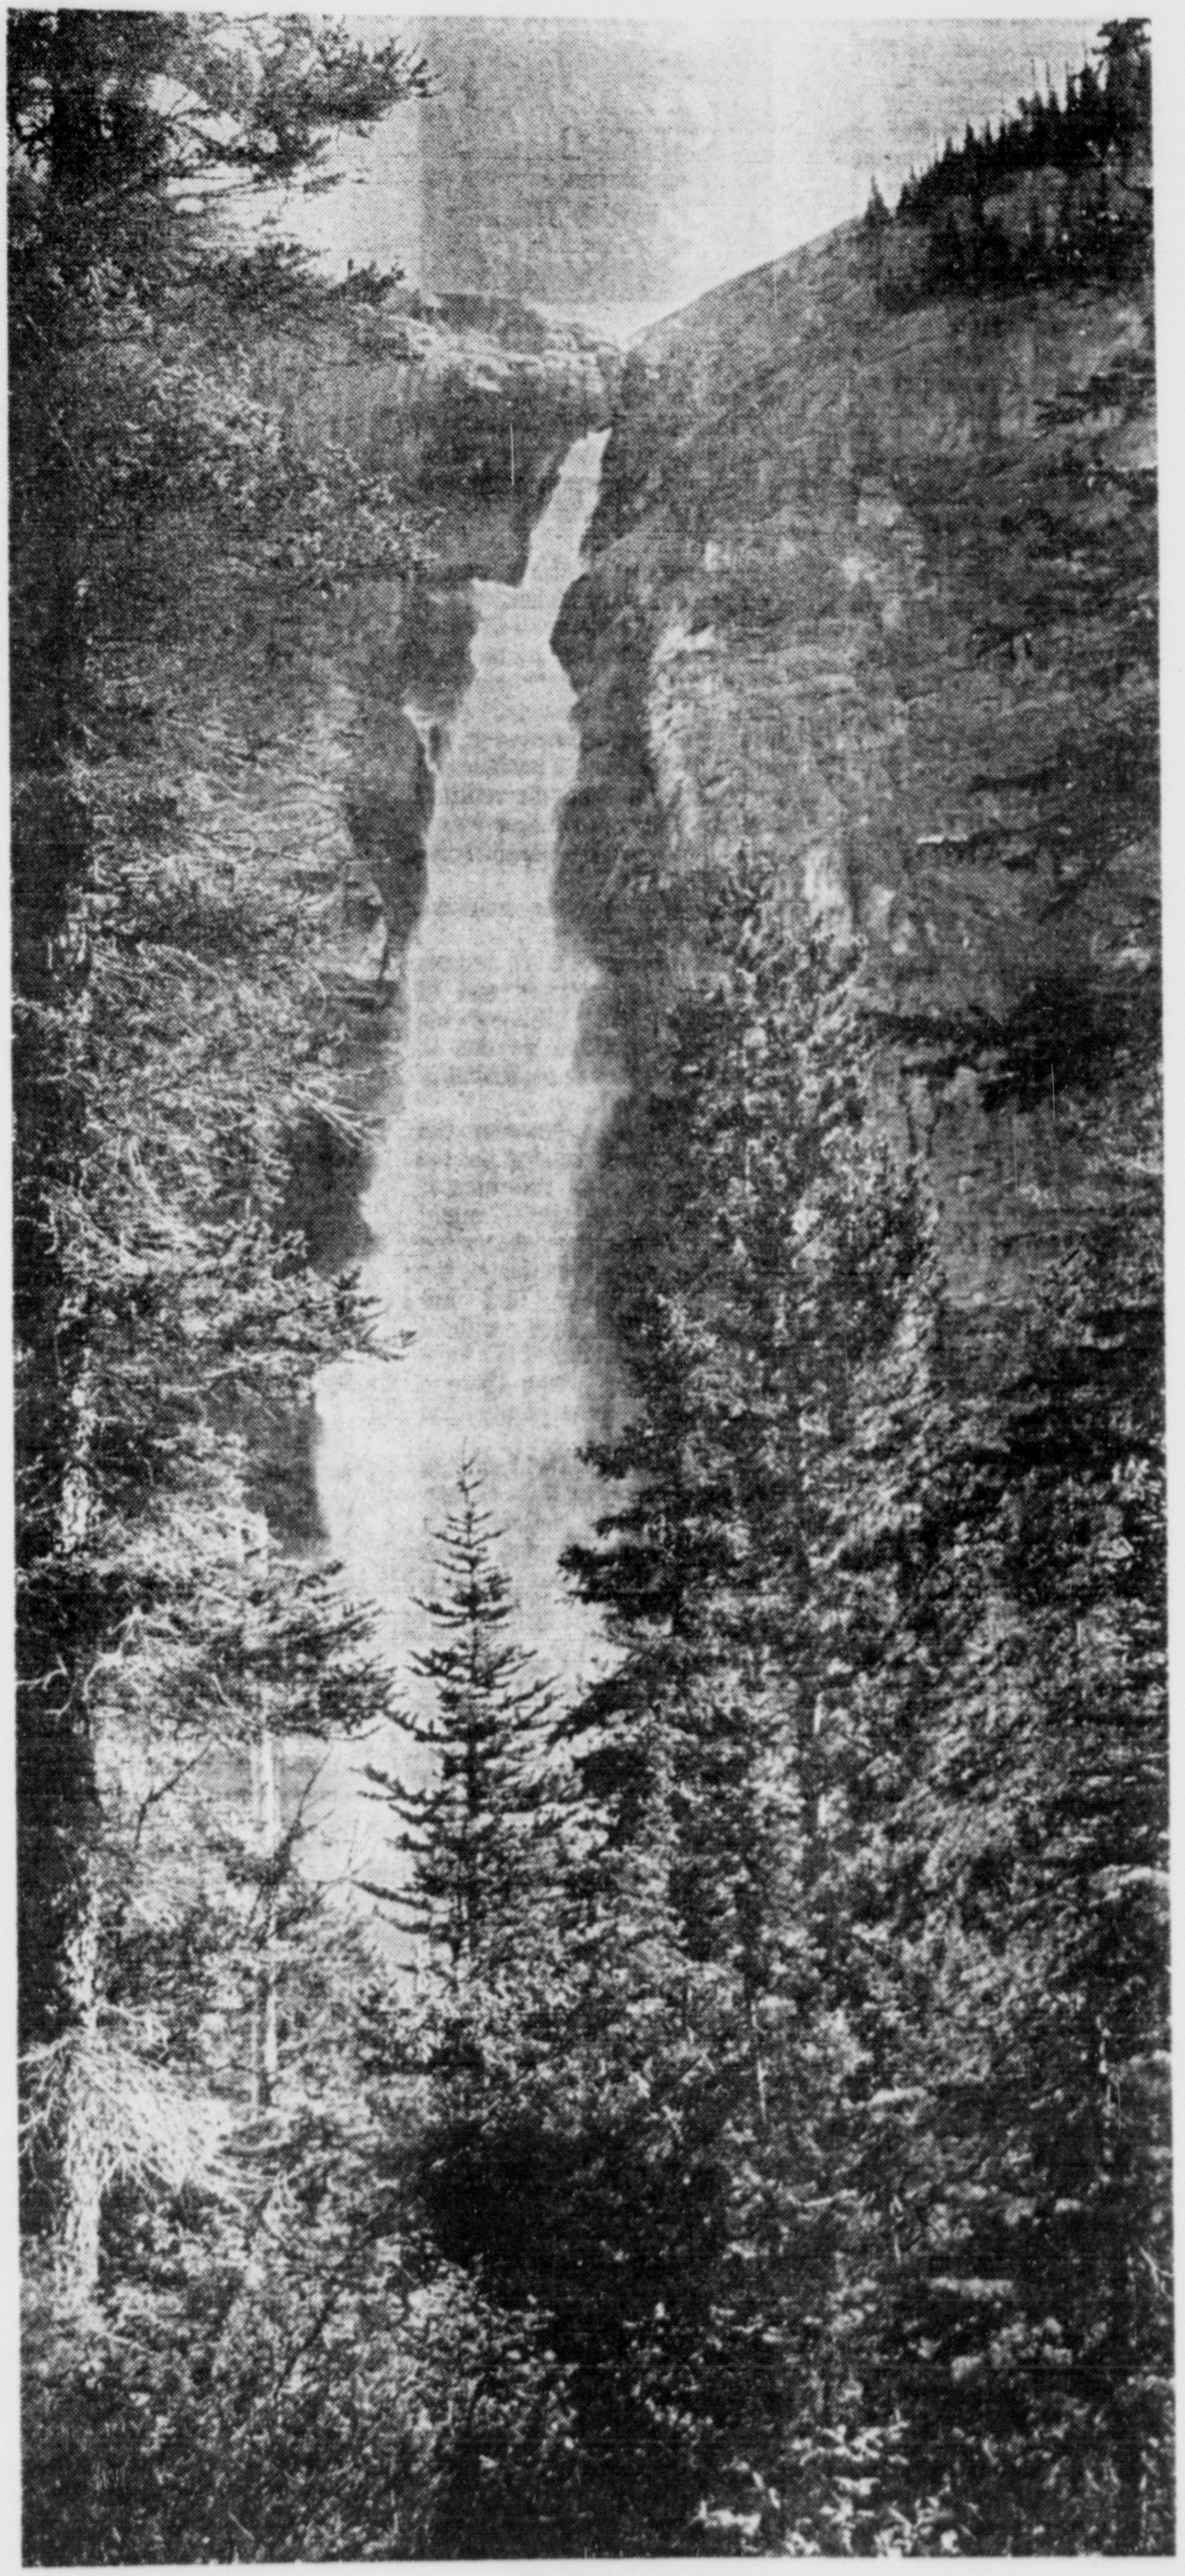
ONTARIO HAS a natural monument to bilingualism called Chute Falls, and Manitoba has what must be the meanest of them all — Lower Conjuring Falls.

Waterfalls named after animals include Bear, Beaver and Bee Falls, Caribou Falls, Deer, Dog, Eagle, Elk, Frog, Goat, Goose and Gopher falls, Heron Falls, Lion Falls and Loon Falls, Magpie, Moose and Muskrat falls, Otter, Panther, Partridge, Pelican, Pigeon, Raven, Salmon, Sea Gull, Snake, Squirrel, Stork, Sturgeon, Trout, Turtle, Wolf, Whitefish and Wildcat falls.

There are Jam Falls and Sugar Falls, Tea Falls and Kettle Falls.

ALBERTA HAS Punchbowl Falls; British Columbia has Brandywine Falls; Ontario has Whiskey Falls and Nova Scotia Guzzle Falls.

Perhaps that's why there are 21 High falls in Canada!



TAKAKKAW FALLS in Yoho National Park, British Columbia, plunges down a sheer rock face to become the second highest of Canada's 727 waterfalls. It is also one of the most spectacularly scenic.

UP DATE THAT MONO HOME MUSIC SYSTEM TO STEREO. If your home music system is of the component type and it is still monaural, now is the time to make the necessary changes to make it a stereo system. This can be done in easy stages with each stage adding to the musical enjoyment.

The first step in the conversion should be the purchase of a solid state (transistorized) FM Stereo tuner amplifier. Your present component electronics can be traded in. Modern tuner amplifiers are quite compact. The all-in-one receiver types contain a very sensitive Stereo FM tuner, some also have AM, a versatile control panel, and a stereo power amplifier. Solid state receivers do not radiate as much heat as do the tube types, thus they can be placed in any suitable location, without requiring extensive ventilation.

The stereo FM or AM-FM receiver will form the basis for the home music system. The FM section is now designed with automatic features so that when a stereo FM station is tuned in it will switch itself to stereo mode and provide music with full dimension. The controls allow tailoring the music to your taste.

The existing speaker system may be used for one of the loudspeakers. A second speaker system should be purchased for the second channel of the stereo system. The receiver and the second speaker will bring the family the enjoyment of FM Stereo broadcasts. The present record changer can be used with the above system by having a stereo cartridge installed; however, the second phase of the conversion should be the purchase of a quality changer with stereo cartridge unless your present unit is one of fairly recent design.

The next phase may be the matching of the speaker purchased for the second channel and trading in the original speaker. If the original speaker is proving satisfactory this step may not be required. The stereo system can be enhanced further by the addition of a stereo tape deck. The stereo receiver in step one will have all of the provisions required for the making of stereo tapes from FM or from records as well as the provisions for playing back stereo tapes.

This conversion to stereo in easy building block steps need not be expensive. There are many units to choose from. A visit to our stereo store will prove to be a rewarding experience.

A Conspiracy Theory

ANATOMY OF AN ASSASSINATION by John Cottrell; Funk and Wagnalls, 250 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

The murder of President Abraham Lincoln is that treated by British writer John Cottrell in "Anatomy of an Assassination."

In his opening chapter, Cottrell draws parallels between that killing and the assassination of President John F. Kennedy a century later — little dreaming that another Kennedy was to die by the same tragic route.

The first eight of the 10 chapters consist of recounting of Lincoln's White House years, the numerous threats on his life, the assassination, capture of Booth, and trial of the accused conspirators. This is all familiar, and Cottrell adds nothing to it, though he recounts it well.

All this, however, is buildup to the final chapters, which introduce "new evidence" found 92 years after the crime by Ray A. Neff of Gibbsboro, N. J.

This evidence consists of a message in a simple cipher on margins of a bound magazine volume, ostensibly put there by Lafayette C. Baker, who headed the newly created Secret Service — then a spy agency — during the Civil War.

The message claims — or hints at — a huge conspiracy involving "at least 11 members of Congress . . . no less than 12 Army officers, three naval officers and at least 24 civilians, of which one was a governor of a loyal state" to take the life of President Lincoln. Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton is clearly indicated as a leader in the conspiracy.

The message indicates the conspirators have been named in another similar message, but the magazine volume containing that one has never been found. Neff found the one volume in a Philadelphia second-hand bookstore.

The manner of the message, and its entry in cipher, are in character with Lafayette Baker. They read with the same flamboyant style as his "History of the U.S. Secret Service." It is also in character, however, for him to invent such a conspiracy, perhaps in hope of discrediting Stanton. Lafayette Baker was a man who saw conspiracies everywhere.

There are, however, some intriguing questions.

In his message, Baker reports he was being followed and "I fear for my life." Although his death was certified as due to meningitis, there is a possibility he was poisoned.

Even were it so, however, the dark conspiracy related in the cipher message — assuming it was Baker's message — might be sheer fabrication. Operating with uncurbed power during the Civil War, Baker had imprisoned many men without trial, and was alleged to have extorted large sums from others. There were plenty who hated him deeply.

The New York World said in Baker's obituary on July 4, 1868: "It was a favorite method of his to discover conspiracies which ended in nothing except much money and much dishonor to himself."

One thing may be said surely of the "new evidence" in Cottrell's book on Lincoln: that such could come to light nearly a century later, and pose the nagging possibility of truth, emphasizes the need to bring to light everything that was found in the investigation of President Kennedy's death. Confusion grows with time.

Reviews Of New Reading

DESPITE THE handicap of her sex, Peruvian-born Conchita Cintron rose to the top ranks among the bullfighters of Latin America and Europe. She tells her story in the newly-published "Memoirs of a Bullfighter."

An Early Novel From Nabokov

KING, QUEEN, KNAVE by Valdimir Nabokov; McGraw-Hill, 272 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Anne G. Stine.

This is the first English language edition of a novel published in Russia 40 years ago. It is a Book-of-the-Month-Club selection.

Nabokov has written short stories, memoirs, and novels. Born in Russia, he studied at Trinity College, Cambridge, became an American citizen in 1945 — where he taught Russian literature and creative writing — and now lives in Switzerland.

Nabokov says of this, his second novel: "Of all my novels this bright brute is the gayest." It is doubtful if most readers would agree with this statement.

The scenery is laid in Berlin and it is the story of the eternal triangle. Dreyer, the husband, is a middle-aged, wealthy business man, with some unpleasant habits. His wife Martha — age 34 — likes his money but detests him personally.

Dreyer's nephew Franz arrives in Berlin to take a job in his uncle's department store as a salesman. Martha, mainly because of boredom, is ready for a love affair; Franz is young and eager and flattered. He is unable to resist her cold calculations and so together they plan the murder of Dreyer.

Throughout all this Dreyer goes blithely about his business — including mistresses — unaware of the plot against him.

It is not easy to evaluate a translation of a book written in Russian four decades ago. Because the situations depicted are sometimes sordid, the reader is left with rather an acid taste. It is obvious that part of the story is parody and there is much that is truly funny.

But the characters do not really live: one feels for them, not with them.

In the final analysis this book seems to be a lark, written by an author with true imagination. Even at this comparatively early age, Nabokov demonstrated his tremendous command of words and wrote with a certain luminous quality which makes this novel unique.

Senorita Among The Matadors

MEMOIRS OF A BULLFIGHTER by Conchita Cintron; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 272 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

What is a more traditionally masculine occupation than bullfighting?

Still, Conchita Cintron of Peru rose to the top of its ranks in the bullrings of Latin America, Mexico, Portugal, and finally, Spain, meeting the bravest bulls bred on three continents.

The daughter of an American mother and Puerto Rican father, Conchita grew up in Lima, and as a mere 15-year-old fought in the major bullrings of Mexico to wild acclaim.

She fought on bills with the great matadors of her era and became acquainted with such as Manolete, Belmonte, Ordonez, Gaona. She felt the discrimination of the Spanish authorities who refused to let a woman fight the bulls on foot and the friendship of those who took up her cause.

But the personal story of the determined girl as she stood in a Peruvian slaughterhouse learning to place the sword for the quick kill and the adventures she and her mentor had enlisting the aid of simpatico herders to temporarily "steal" bulls to work in a practice tentadero in an abandoned brick factory are the kind that make her memoirs special and entertaining.

Several pages of photos illustrate the years of her career, and the book has an introduction by Orson Welles.

The Man We Are Up Against In Vietnam

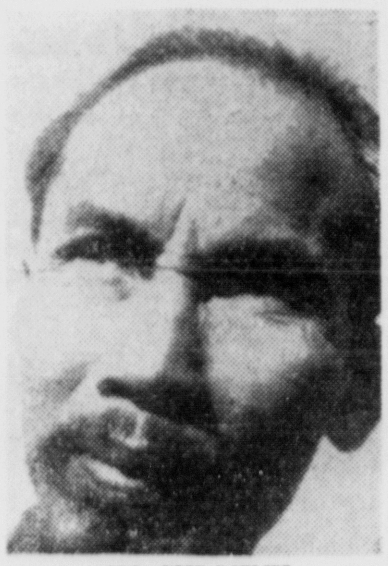
HO CHI MINH, A POLITICAL BIOGRAPHY by Jean La Couture; Random House, 313 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Harvey Bragdon.

There are very few warts in this admiring biography by a correspondent for the French daily Le Monde.

This biography is especially disappointing because Jean Lacouture is the Western journalist who probably knows Ho Chi Minh better than any other. He could have been more objective and analytical.

The most valuable and important chapter is that dealing with the events that took place shortly after World War II. France, seeking to regain its previous control and influence in Indo-China, Vietnam, seeking and granted independence within the French Union and as part of the Indo-Chinese Federation, through miscalculation, clashed. Lacouture traces, in detail, how first one side then the other attempted through minor armed skirmishes to gain political advantage. Ultimately these minor clashes lead to war, the French defeat at Dien Bien Phu and the Geneva Conference which divided Vietnam.

The author's discussion of this first war is important in understanding how we became involved and Ho's attitude toward the U.S. For as early as 1950 and again in 1953 (before Dien Bien Phu) Ho stated that the main enemy was the U.S. and that the French expeditionary force was Washington's tool.



HO CHI MINH
An admiring biographer

An area that Lacouture touches upon and which could have been a major contribution to our understanding of the future of Vietnam is his discussion of Ho's principal lieutenants and possible successors. Some of these men are the Washingtons and Jeffersons — the founding fathers — of Vietnam. As long as they are active they are the leaders to whom the people of Vietnam look up and listen. But there is little discussion of the second generation leaders.

These are the men who fought the French, then the Japanese, then the French again and now the U.S. These are the men whose next-door neighbor for almost 20 years has been Communist China.

If you can spare only a little time for reading about Vietnam, how it got where it is now and its single most important leader, there is enough detail in this book to make it worthwhile. But this book should be read along with: "Ho Chi Minh on Revolution: Selected Writings, 1920-1966," edited by the late Bernard Fall.

One Lawyer's Fight To Loosen Censor's Grip On Literature

By DON KEOWN

THE END OF OBSCENITY by Charles Rembar; Random House, 527 pages, $8.95.

In what Norman Mailer has called "a legal revolution" a series of literary trials ended with "Lady Chatterley," "Tropic of Cancer" and "Fanny Hill" all surviving obscenity charges and being cleared for publication in this country.

The chief strategist and field marshal of that revolution was the brilliant New York lawyer Charles Rembar.

With wit and cogency, he describes those court skirmishes in his book entitled "The End of Obscenity."

Rembar is a realist and under no illusions concerning the disapproval and the alarm with which a large segment of the American public regarded his arguments and their eventual acceptance by the courts. What the U. S. Supreme Court did was to discard at Rembar's urging the old test — if the obscenity outweighed the literary merit of a book, it could be banned — and substitute a much more liberal test — that a book could not be proscribed, despite the presence of objectionable material, unles it was also utterly without social value.

Rembar based his argument upon the protections accorded Americans by the First Amendment to the Constitution.

Rembar admits that books can work evil, but he adds: "But the risk that inheres in reading books is precisely the risk that the First Amendment contemplates." Again he says: "The First Amendment, of course, has its principal function where the majority disapproves. Where a work of any value is in issue, the fact that most of the citizenry view it as immoral or offensive cannot justify a forcible silencing."

Not the publisher or the bookseller, but the writer suffers the most from literary censorship, he maintains. "If he must keep an eye on the law, we are deprived of his best creative effort. And this has been the condition of things until very recently. . . . Things are different now."

Rembar has no greater use for organized non-governmental restraints than he does for censorship by the law and courts. "Collective self-censorship never pursues principle," he declares. "It flees in fear."

And of the critics of the new court decisions, he observes: "Nothing infuriates the vigilante so much as the combination of sex and intellect."

Rembar is not altogether pleased with the way the literary world has used its new freedom to date. "There is an acne on our culture," he says, speaking of the almost total preoccupation with sex. But he adds: "It will pass because it is not the freedom itself, but the taboo it displaces, that sets the stage for prurience. . . ."

Rembar writes with delightful flashes of dry humor, and with a humility and a respect for his opponents that is in pleasing contrast to some of the egocentric attorneys who have written other books or who appear in seeming perpetuity on television. He possesses, too, a remarkable gift for describing the legal processes and explaining the ground rules, so as to make them understandable to the layman, whereas more pompous and pontifical lawyers only serve to obscure and confuse.

He is a man who dares to think new ideas in many fields, and the book is filled with such suggestions — for instance, his proposal that attorneys should be paid by the government, an idea certain to infuriate conservatives, frighten many middle-of-the-roaders and even irritate some liberals in the legal profession.

But he makes a strong argument for his suggestions, even as he did for his revolutionary theory on literary censorship that brought about "The End of Obscenity." Attorney or author, Rembar is a spellbinder.

The Critics On Obscenity

Comments from leading book critics after reading Charles Rembar's "The End of Obscenity:"

". . . Right now we are at the extreme permissive stage. But if Nixon and the Republicans win the next election, I fully expect to see legislation introduced and perhaps passed . . . to bear down, jail people, and so forth." John Barkham, Saturday Review Syndicate.

"The writer is now freed as never before in America and the result is a great defeat for hypocrisy." Leslie Cross, Milwaukee Journal.

"Literature manages for itself despite laws for or against obscenity. In the long run books will be rotten as usual." Byron Dobell, Book World.

"Denmark is ideal — there is no obscenity law whatsover. And they have found as a result that the smut trade has completely folded up." Geoffrey Wolfe, Washington Post.

"BARNABY" (Dover, $1.50) is a paperback collection from the Crockett Johnson comic strip, reprinted unabridged from a 1943 edition. Along with Barnaby we are offered the wit and wisdom of a cast of supporting characters that includes Mr. O'Malley the Fairy Godfather, McSnoyd the invisible Leprechaun, Gorgon the Talking Dog and Gus the Ghost. Barnaby fans will be ecstatic.

"RECORD HOUSES of 1968," published by Architectural Record and McGraw-Hill, features 188 photographs and floor plans of 20 choice new architecturally designed American houses.

Included is one Marin County home, the Medford Schwarz multi-level house in Mill Valley, designed by Gerald G. Weisbach, built by A. Von Rotz and engineered by Fong Chan.

Accompanying photographs are by Karel Bauer.

THE INEVITABLE race to be the first to get a book about Robert F. Kennedy on the market after his assassination has apparently been won by Dell, which has announced that its "RFK: His Life and Death" will be published July 20. The writing is by Jay Jacobs and the editorial staff of American Heritage, and the book will sell for 95 cents.

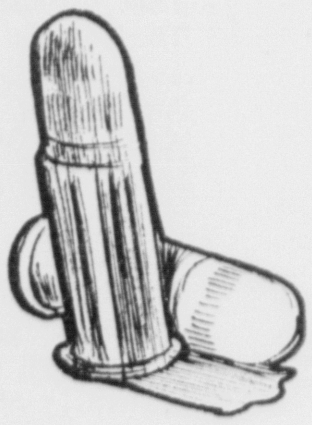
WILD MIDNIGHT FALLS by M. E. Chaber; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 179 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

Followers of M. E. Chaber and his adventurer, Milo March, are in for another treat.

March, disguised as a member of Syndicate and an expert on coin-operated machines, is sent to Russia to tell Russians how to use the machines — all with the blessings of the State Department.

Actually he's on a dangerous errand for the CIA. Mission: To convince the Russians he's a bonafide slot-machine man, and find a missing American agent — and, more dangerous, find out whether the chief of the murky Soviet Fourth Bureau is still alive.



Awash, as usual, in booze (mostly vodka, since the setting is mostly Moscow), March marches on, and the closer he gets to his quarry the deeper he sinks into trouble. As usual March more than manages.

Chaber has a touch-and-go touch. That's good.

Will A Book Better Your Reading?

A KEY TO BETTER READING by Paul D. Leedy; McGraw-Hill, 199 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Can you really learn to read better by reading books about how to read better?

After reading two or three on the subject, the latest Paul D. Leedy's "A Key to Befter Reading," we still don't know. Suffice it to say, we remain unconvinced that such books produce any really substantial, let alone spectacular, benefits.

Leedy's printed instructions, for instance, seemed to result in less tangible results for this reader of some 300 to 400 books a year than did a television series on speed reading carried by KGO-TV, despite its erratic scheduling and unimaginative production.

Leedy's preoccupation with the "structure" of the printed page — its subheads, its paragraphing, its punctuation, etc. — and his emphasis upon a pre-reading survey of those factors would appear to consume at least as much time as it saves. Unquestionably, there are some helpful tips in the book. Most of these are variations of the old "skip reading" technique, certainly a time-saver and useful in some situations, but not always satisfactory when it comes to comprehension. It may be faster reading. But is it better reading? Some clever tests have been incorporated by Leedy into his text.

Chapters on newspaper reading and book selection have the "feel" of padding, included to fill out what is nevertheless still a small book.

Despite some claims to the contrary, Americans are not only purchasing, but also reading, more books than ever before. They have more leisure time in which to do it. But there is also more competition for that time—television, hobbies, etc. Thus the desperate search by many for a means of hurrying their reading.

For those with less established

reading patterns, Paul Leedy's book might be useful. For more experienced, more dedicated readers, its value is less apparent.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

Like many reviewers with limited space, I don't review many releases of standard "warhorse" symphonic repertory.

The continual avalanche of Beethoven and Tchaikovsky symphonies, and Grand Canyon Suites are simply too much to keep up with. There seems to be a market for an umpteenth version of something like "Rhapsody in Blue," because they keep coming out.

This spring, for example, London Records announced the simultaneous release of two different performances of Brahms' "Second Piano Concerto." Perhaps there was once a strong move by record collectors to replace mono performances with new stereophonic ones, but I should think the peak of that has now passed.

However, to think the situation is new would be quite wrong. In 1933 in Great Britain, for example, you could purchase 41 different versions of "The Blue Danube Waltz," 37 different versions of Handel's "Largo" and 30 of the "Ave Maria."

The record industry is welcome to rack up a list of 143 Scheherazades, as far as this reviewer is concerned, if at the same time it provides listeners with more highly developed tastes such unusual fare as that highlighted in the following capsule reviews. In addition, all of these are low priced stereodiscs.

MUSIC AT VERSAILLES AT THE TIME OF LOUIS XIV — Turnabout TV 3410'S:

Interesting examples, mostly first recordings, of instrumental music for small orchestra by composers close to the Sun King —Rameau, Berton, Charpentier and Francois Couperin. The dance pieces are especially tasty.

NIELSEN: "String Quartet No. 3" — Copenhagen String Quartet; "Serenata in Vano" — quintet — Turnabout TV 34109S:

Denmark's greatest composer would share Gustav Mahler's joy to see that his time has, indeed, come also. The first recording of this fine E flat major quartet is well-performed here, as well as the first low-priced version of his "Serenata."

NIELSEN: "Helio Overture" and "Saga-Dream for Orchestra"; GADE: "Echoes of Ossian Overture"; RHSAGER: "Qarrtsiluni" and Suite from the Ballet "Etude" — Royal Danish Orchestra — Turnabout TV 3485S

A very unusual program of first-time-recorded (except for the Helio Overture) short pieces by Danish composers. "Saga-Dream" is top Nielson. And "Qarrtsiluni" captures the fierce polar night of Greenland.

THE YOUNG DANCERS of the Marin Civic Ballet will be among the featured performers on the closing day's program tomorrow of the 1968 Marin Art and Garden Fair at Ross. They will be seen at 8:30 p.m. on the Northgate Stage at the Marin Art and Garden Center where the colorful festival of flowers and culture will be concluding a five-day run. (Photo by Cecil J. WISH FOR WHAT IS NOW

For those who know not What it's like,
And somehow wish it were;
And when it comes
We recall how things were before Hoping it so and wish again
We'd never wished for what is now,
But been content with what was then.

SAN ANSELMO — DAN KEENER

TOTEM

Those who seek!
Those who challenge!
My liberties, my freedoms,
and justice,
Beware,
political or otherwise;
For it is one,
And only to one,
That listens;
The soul is eyeball
To eyeball,
And not of numbers,
And the spirit must Be transfer'd from you to me;
And when you are gone,
And history will tell
Of all the good,
or evil you have done.
Perhaps!
One step above the ground,
Your Totem will be added,
Known to all,
Carved from the moments of time;
Beware of the totem
of temporal power.

POINT REYES STATION — C. B. GEARHART

A Stopwatch Helps When You Stain For Certain Color

Seconds Can Make A Difference If You Aim For An Exact Hue

Obtaining the desired precise shade in the staining of wood depends on three factors: the color of the stain; the extent, if any, of dilution, and the amount of time between application and wipe-off.

Oil stain continues to be the most popular with the non-professional, possibly because it need not be sprayed on to achieve good results. Some favor application with a brush, some with a rag, preferably a cheesecloth.

OUR OWN recommendation is application with a brush, followed by wipe-off with a cloth.

When oil stain is diluted a little with turpentine, it produces a lighter shade. When the lightest possible shade is desired, there should be more turpentine than stain — and then, when the mixture is applied, it should be wiped off immediately.

Whether you wipe off at once or in 30 seconds can make a big difference in the final color.

BECAUSE THE amount of time the stain is permitted to remain on the wood so vitally affects the result, it is important that testing precede the actual application. This can be done on scrap wood of the same kind as the piece of furniture being finished or, what usually is more practical, on the underside of the actual item.

It may seem a little ridiculous, but if you're the type who wants a perfect result, utilize a watch with a second hand. You can then time each test.

Apply the stain to a small area, wait exactly 10 seconds, then wipe it off. Too dark? Apply it again a few inches away. This time, wait only five seconds.

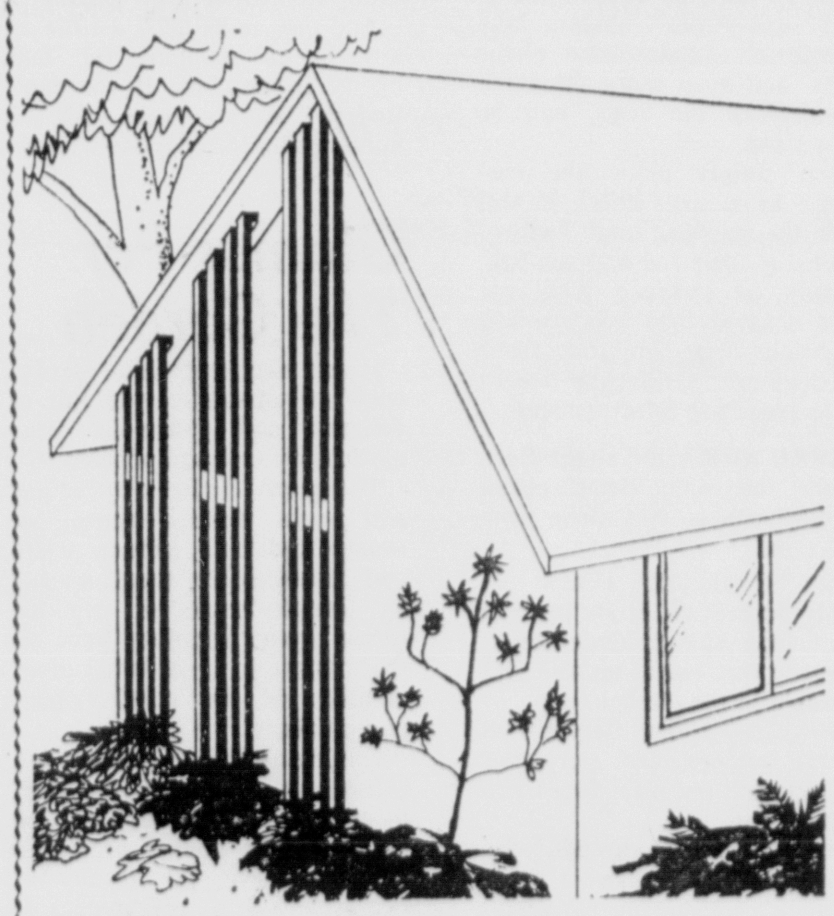
In this way, when you obtain exactly the shade you want, you'll know how many seconds you must wait before the wipe-off when you begin the job.

SINCE A stain will appear a bit darker after the final coat has been applied, you should make it a little lighter than you want it to be.

A stain requires a sealer to prevent it from bleeding through the final coat. However, many modern stains have sealers within themselves and so require no separate application.

Be sure to read the instructions on the container to determine whether a sealer is necessary and, if so, which kind.

A Device To Defeat Drabness



THREE SCREENS of Douglas fir two-by-twos have been used here to dress up the blank end wall of a small house. Set out from the wall so as to create the best shadow patterns, they have been nailed to a two-by-four against the roof overhang. The base, hidden by shrubs, is held above ground on bricks. Spacer blocks form built-in rail.

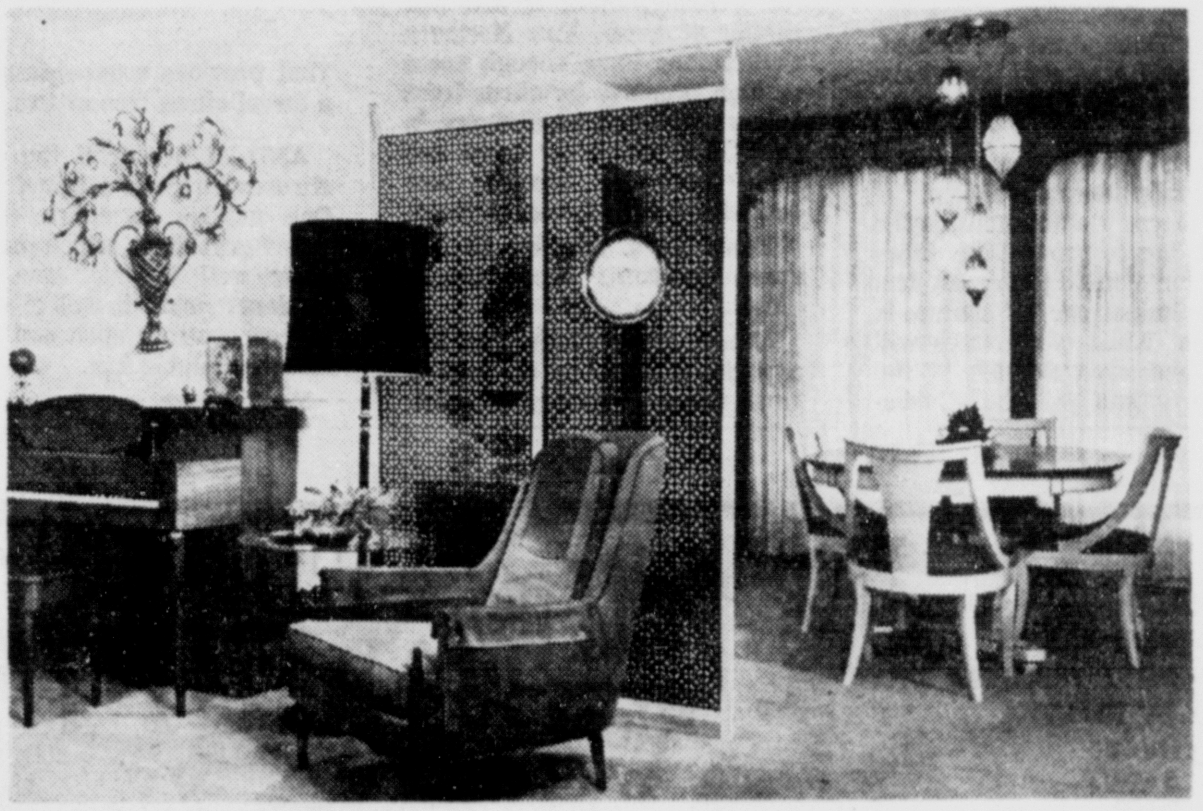
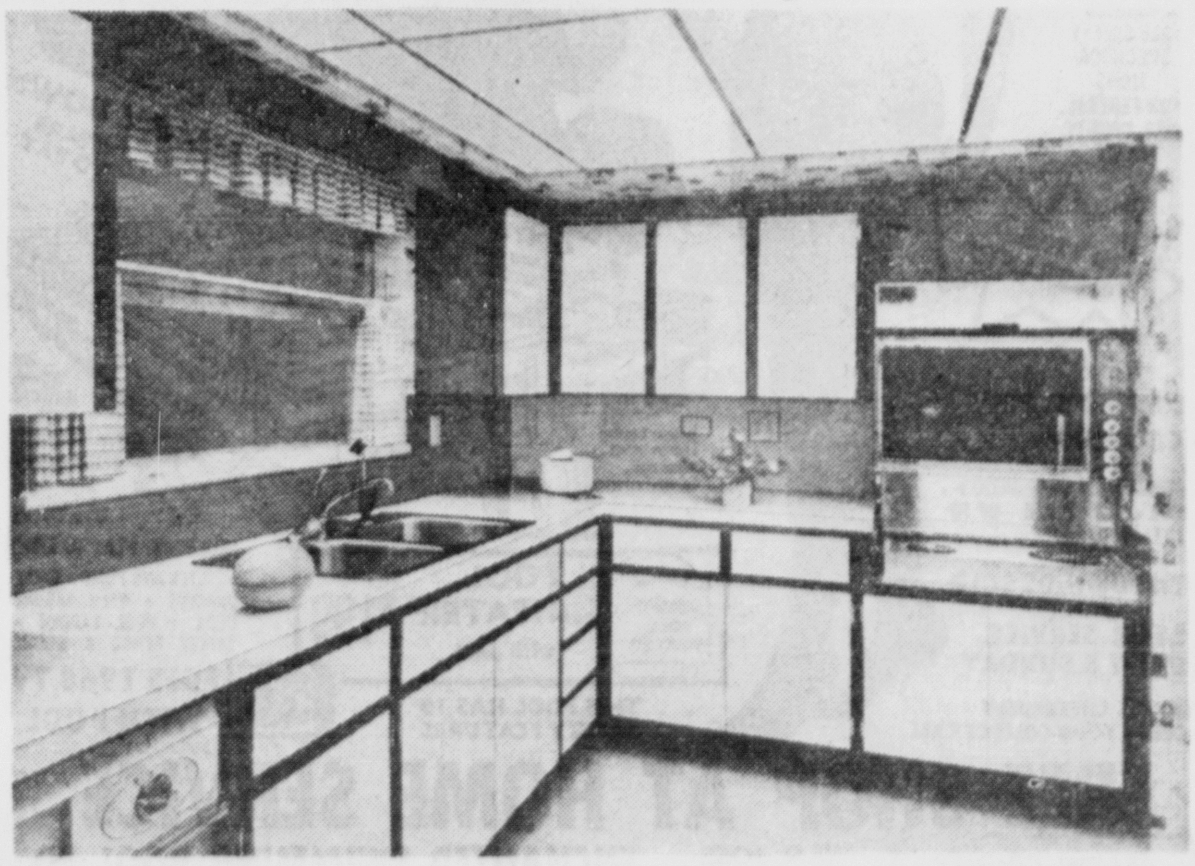
FOR do-it-yourself directions on how to build this garden potting bench, send 10 cents to the American Plywood Association, 1119 A Street, Tacoma, Wash., 98401, and ask for Plan No. 54-470. The bench is built of exterior-type plywood, 100 per cent waterproof, in large panels that require a minimum of cutting and nailing. The bench features storage space for equipment and materials ranging from sprinklers to garage or garden house. as part of a carport, garage of garden house. Working surface is 36 inches high and eight feet long. No difficult cuts or joints are involved.

MAKING THE HOUSE MORE LIVABLE



SEPARATING THE dining area from the living room with a minimum of structural work can be accomplished by using framed hardboard grillework. In this case the sculptured Oriental pattern provides a blending for the modern and Near Eastern decor of the two rooms. A wall arrangement of porcelains visible through the grillework accents the Moorish tear-drop chandelier of the dining room, while engraved brass accessories fastened to the divider add touches of charm to the living room.



PANEL LIGHTING in the ceiling illuminates each work area of this kitchen without glare. Other noteworthy features include automatic electric range with surface units in slide-out section below eye-level oven, built-in electric dishwasher and mixer unit built into counter, and the ample outlets for housewares.

Without The Citrus, It Isn't California

Without its citrus fruit trees, California just wouldn't be California.

Yet the state sometimes seems to be headed hellbound toward that disaster.

This is especially true in Southern California, where the larger citrus groves are located. Population pressures there have resulted in the uprooting of the choicest orchards to make way for housing developments that are usually less than choice.

Northern Californians who would like to grow citrus trees often have their problems, too. The principal one, of course, is climate. While citrus trees will grow and even flourish in the northern half of the Golden State, conditions are such that commercial enterprises are not feasible.

ALONG WITH the nippier temperatures that rule out growing orange or lemon trees for a living, there is also the matter of space. Few Northern Californians have enough room on their property for citrus trees in any number. A great many, in fact, lack space for even one such tree, no matter how desirable it might seem to them.

There is a solution to the space problem: the dwarf citrus.

Almost every Californian has a patio, a deck, or at least a small piece of garden or yard. That provides room aplenty for a dwarf citrus tree or two.

AND ALMOST all the dwarf citruses thrive in Marin County. One notable exception is the dwarf grapefruit, which does not grow well in our area. The gardener would do well to skip it and concentrate upon one of its more adaptable kin.

You'll have no trouble obtaining whatever dwarf citrus you set your sights on. Even if it isn't on display in the showyard of your neighborhood nursery, the nurseryman can obtain it for you quickly and easily.

Fortunately for Marinites, by far the largest Northern Californian wholesaler of dwarf citrus trees (Four Winds) is located in San Leandro, and will fill the orders of Marin nurserymen fully and promptly.

FROM YOUR dwarf citrus you will get a beautifully decorative shrub plus fruit that is all out of proportion to the size of the tree in its quantity, dimensions and quality. The dwarf tree produces fruit every bit as large as that which grows on the regular-size orchard tree.

Because dwarf citrus can be planted in a container such as a redwood tub, the climate factor that sometimes hinders the growth of standard-size citrus trees, and even more often the ripening of the fruit, can be minimized.

You simply place the container in a spot where it will soak up sunshine and heat — against a sheltered and sun-baked wall, for instance. What you have created then are growing conditions very similar to those of Southern California where citrus trees are most at home.

HERE ARE some suggestions among the many dwarf citrus from which you can make your selections:

The Ponderosa Lemon is highly decorative, lends itself to espaliering and produces oversize fruit that colors up well and is usable in the kitchen.

The better-known Meyer and Eureka lemons are somewhat less colorful, but provide a more usable fruit.

The oranges fall into two principal categories, the sweet, juicy Valencia, and the several variations of the navel.

THE BEARSS Lime yields a green fruit, the production of which reaches phenomenal amounts as the tree matures.

Rangpur Lime turns out an orange-colored fruit. While it is most often grown as an ornamental, some people like the tart flavor of the fruit. In Marin, however, it will not always mature sufficiently.

Then there are the Mandarins, the tangelos, the kumquats, with fruit of varying sizes that remain on the tree for months, offering a spectacular show in orange hues against a green foliage background.

And finally, the winter-ripening tangerine is yet another beauty well suited to Marin and Marinites.

GROWN IN A redwood tub on or near the patio or in a container at the entryway, a dwarf citrus unfailingly makes an attractive addition with its glossy foliage and colorful fruit. If that fruit is also edible, so much the better. But whether it makes for good eating or not, it most certainly makes for good looking.

And now is as good a time as any to go shopping for that citrus. Remember: If you can't find the one you want, ask the nurseryman to order it for you.

For That Rocky, Hot Spot

Marin County's topography and geology have their advantages for the gardener.

But they also create some problems and challenges.

One of the most frequently encountered is the dry, rocky embankment or slope, difficult to water or to maintain otherwise.

Marinites, however, have come up with the perfect answer to that problem — the rockrose or cistus, a shrub that rejects pampering, thrives in the hot sun and requires no special soil.

It's an evergreen that produces good-size open white or pinkish flowers.

Look especially at the Cistus pupureus, pink with maroon markings at the base of the flower petals. Also the low-growing Cistus corbariensis, with white flowers.

ONE OF THE MOST beautiful of the hardy rockroses that have found such favor among Marinites for planting in difficult maintenance areas is the Cistus purpureus, whose pink flowers with maroon markings have a crepe-like texture. (Photo courtesy of the California Association of Nurserymen)

Glamor For The Garden

If you want something showy, bold and dramatic, yet full of delicacy and grace in your garden, try Oriental poppies.

The great chalices up to six and eight inches across of orange, red, pink, salmon, white and intermediate tones appear as though made of crinkled tissue paper. Yet, they have all the sturdy, weather-proof qualities of the most rugged perennials.

Coming as they do early in the season, these 24 to 36 inch high blooms are doubly appreciated as accents in annual or perennial borders, in front of evergreens or as brighteners of shrub borders. With annuals, especially, they are effective for they supply color long before their border-mate and die down and disappear in summer when the annuals take over. (The coarse, ferny leaves reappear later in the season.)

Who Can Resist Fragrance On A Balmy Summer Night?

Who can resist the garden on a balmy summer night, when it's full of fragrance from some unseen shrub?

For evening fragrance there are many shrubs that rate consideration, chief of which is the Night-Scented Jasmine. So fragrant is it, in fact, that planting it a discreet distance from the home will prevent too much of a good thing.

Star Jasmine dispenses a delicate perfume and its show of white blossoms is worth planting for itself. Use it in sun or shade. Train it up a pillar, attach it to a trellis or let it ramble into mounding groundcover. Low-growing and spreading Angel Wing Jasmine is another that deserves consideration.

Gardenias are very popular for their fragrance and here again tubbing is one answer for hovering fragrance close at hand.

The true jasmine family — not to be confused with the two would-be jasmines mentioned above—give off delicate perfumes on a balmy evening.

Sweet Olive (osmanthus) is another favorite with longtime gardeners because of its scented flowers and adaptation to landscape use. A final choice is Bouvardia. If you've a warm, sheltered spot, you may want to give it a try.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Marinites who have not already done so should visit their 1968 Marin Art and Garden Fair at Ross in its closing two days. As always, the fair is a treasure trove of gardening and landscaping ideas.

✓ Plant Bird of Paradise from containers now for fall and winter bloom. Give them a sunny exposure.

✓ If you grow vine berries, cut off to the ground the old canes that produced this year's crop, when through, and loosely twine the new growth onto a trellis or other support.

✓ Dahlias are heavy feeders and will benefit by frequent helpings of plant food.

✓ Keep after the aphids on your roses. Try one of the new granular-type systemic insecticides which control pests and also feed the plant at the same time.

An appropriate name for this new bedroom group. The name means "view of Spain," and such a view is embodied in the traditional styling of this set.
The molded reproductions of original wood carvings are ours alone. And though they are a product of our own designers' creative talents, their roots are deep in the soil of Spain.
The handsomely carved fronts are combined with oak veneers and solids, finished with a rich brown distressed glaze. All drawers are center guided and glide on self-lubricating Raylex drawer runners. Greg Morris Takes Pride In Fact That He Is Not Typed As An Actor

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Greg Morris was fortunate to come along in what he terms the age of realization.

It wasn't as easy for Sidney Poitier, James Edwards, Harry Belafonte and other Negro actors who preceded him.

Until two or three years ago, Negroes found little work in films and television except as: 1. a singer or dancer; or, 2. as the victim of racial prejudice in problem dramas.

THAT HAS been changed with the emergence of Poitier as a box-office star of films in which his race is incidental and with the casting of Negroes as co-stars in television series. In the CBS series, "Mission Impossible," Greg Morris plays operative Barney Collier with little if any reference to race.

"I don't like to be called a 'Negro actor'," he remarked. "I am proud of being a man, an actor, and a Negro, but when I am referred to as a 'Negro actor,' that immediately places the connotation that I can only play Negro parts.

"But Barney Collier isn't a 'Negro part.' The next actor who was up for consideration for the role happened to be a blue-eyed Scandanavian.

"THAT'S HEALTHY. I think films and television have entered the age of realization, when producers realize that Negroes can play doctors, lawyers—yes, and villains, too. I've done them all.

"Of the 50 to 55 roles I've played in television and movies, most of them didn't concern the color of my skin. The most notable exception was a 'Ben Casey' in which I played a black nationalist who hated both Vince Edwards for being white and Sammy Davis for playing along with the whites. That's all right, too; such viewpoints should be aired so that people can try to understand them."

Greg Morris had an unsettled childhood, being the son of a broken family.

HE WAS BORN in Cleveland and graduated from high school there. After two years in the Army, mostly in West Germany, he went to Ohio State and the University of Iowa, hoping to develop his basketball skill to become a player for the Boston Celtics.

A theater arts course intervened. Married and with one child—he now has three—Morris left college in his third year to support his family. He landed in Seattle and worked as a waiter in the Hotel Olympia while trying to develop his acting in the daytime.

He played the Poitier role in a little-theater version of "A Raisin in the Sun," then repeated the role in Long Beach, where a Hollywood agent saw him.

A LOCAL theater presentation of "Purlie Victorious" was the turning point for Morris. It was seen by Carl Reiner, who cast him for the memorable "Dick Van Dyke Show" in which Dick feared his baby had been switched with another in the hospital; it turned out the other parents were a Negro couple.

The director of the show was John Rich, who cast Morris in his first movie, "The New Interns," and the actor was on his way.

Peter Lawford Joins The Peacock Revolt, But He's A Conservative

By PATRICIA E. DAVIS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Peter Lawford is part of the "mod" scene in the clothes department but don't call him a middle-aged hippie.

In his words, he's a "flexible Peacock." Or, in another of his definitions "a conservative mod."

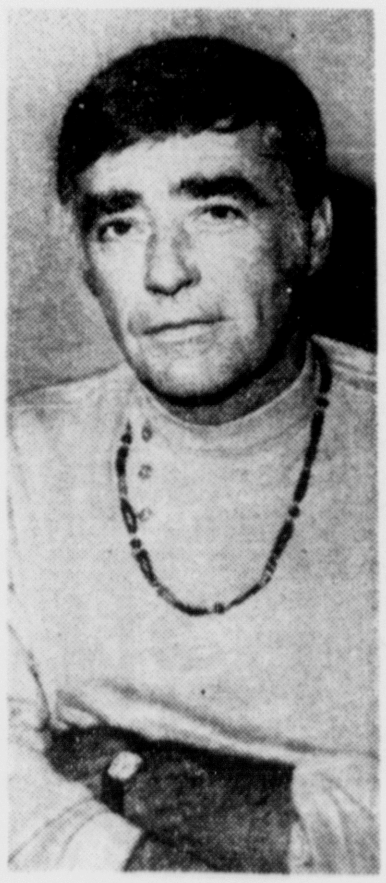
"I LOVE THE whole change in men's clothes," the actor says. "There's so much more you can do. The concept means freedom."

In an interview with UPI, Peter, wearing an "ultra-orange" turtleneck sweater, orange and yellow lobe beads, beige slacks and loafers without socks, credited Sammy Davis Jr. with making him aware of the "Peacock Revolution" in men's attire.

"When we were filming 'Salt and Pepper,' Sammy really turned me on with his beads," Peter explained. "There's something happy about the whole way of it—the beads, turtlenecks and Nehru jackets. It gives you a certain freedom.

"I FEEL good when I wear the beads. But I don't go overboard when it comes to clothes. I guess you could call me a flexible peacock."

Some of Peter's love beads are made by the sister of "a little girl in my doctor's office. She gave them to me. Love beads are more important if they're gifts. I would never buy any; they wouldn't mean anything."



PETER LAWFORD
With his love beads

The 44-year-old actor says his four children, whose mother, the former Patricia Kennedy, and he were divorced in 1966, think the love bead idea is great.

"WE KEEP preparing and trading beads," he says. "Love beads are fun. Lots of really groovy people wear them."

Lawford decries the "unwashed look" of the hippie movement, although he credits the hippies with starting the Peacock Revolution. "I certainly don't mind the beads and all that—but let's keep it clean. I just don't like the unwashed look."

The British-born Lawford, who lives in California but travels constantly because of his work ("You go where the 'bread' is") feels some good, besides the trend in clothing, has come out of the hippie movement.

"THE LOVE bit is a step in the right direction—it's better than having the kids hang out in pool halls. The basic concept of people loving each other is very groovy. But the drug and draft card burnings are a really bad scene.

"The trouble with the hippies is that they don't have a leader. They're looking for something, but they don't know in which direction to go."

One of Lawford's "greatest sorrows" is that he's never had a movie role which allows him to wear his new mod clothes. "I'm always being cast as a banker or doctor. They have to wear very straight clothes. It's frustrating."
